

GUGGENHEIM SUED BY EX-WIFE FOR A SECOND DIVORCE

Chicago Decree Against William, of Smelter Trust, No Good, Woman Says.

BOTH HAD WED AGAIN.

Her $150,000 Alimony Gone—Lawyer for Millionaire Calls Suit a "Strike."

After divorcing William Guggenheim, of the millionaire smelting family of Guggenheims, in 1901, in Chicago, to $150,000 worth of financial advantage and then marrying a youth fifteen years her junior, which union was dissolved recently in France, a woman calling herself Grace B. Guggenheim appeared through counsel before Justice Gerard today and asked for an absolute divorce from the man she divorced seven years ago. In the mean time William Guggenheim, whose first marital experience, his lawyer says, centered for but one night, had married again and lives with his wife and one child at No. 823 Fifth avenue in a $200,000 mansion adjoining that of Frank Gould.

Justice Gerard devoted but little time to the proceedings in the case of Guggenheim vs. Guggenheim today. By agreement of counsel the hearing was postponed until next Monday morning, Samuel Untermyer, in court as counsel for Mr. Guggenheim, denominated the suit as a "strike."

William Guggenheim took the first step in the tangled web which Justice Gerard will be called upon to unravel in November, 1906. He was at that time thirty-two years old and simply staggering under the weight of money.

Married Him in Hoboken.

The youngest of seven sons of Meyer Guggenheim, the wizard of copper and silver, William had so advanced himself in the business of the family at the time mentioned that he could afford to neglect his business. In pursuit of that occupation he met a very large, very blond and very positive woman at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. On Nov. 30, 1900, she took him over to Hoboken and married him.

They were to have sailed for Europe on a honeymoon on Jan. 4, 1901. William Guggenheim, conveyed by members of his family, boarded a ship alone for France, in which the marriage of the plaintiff in this action and the young man Wahl was annulled. He says the claim set up was that Wahl at the time of the ceremony was too young to marry. Explaining his case to Justice Gerard, Mr. Untermyer said:

"The moving papers declare that Grace Guggenheim is in financial distress. We are not to blame for her distress. When she obtained this Chicago divorce seven years ago she received $150,000 in her nimble fingers. It is she who has dissipated all that money it is no fault of ours."

"She came to New York, met this young Frenchman, Wahl, and they were married, though he is about fifteen years younger than she. They made a tour around the world and had a big old time. When the money was gone these two separated, but it was not until last May that the marriage was annulled by the French courts."

"William Guggenheim was very young when, meeting her at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, he married her. The Chicago divorce suit was first brought for dissolution, but later, having secured evidence, it was changed, charging the statutory offense, which would have been sufficient to entitle her to an absolute divorce in New York.

"As for her present claim that she did not live in Illinois and the court had no jurisdiction, she swore as a witness on the trial of her divorce suit in Chicago that that was her home and as a matter of fact she was born in Illinois."

"When was this defendant remarried?" asked Justice Gerard.

"He four years ago, and she seven years ago," said Mr. Untermyer. The Justice turned to Mr. Scoury and asked:

"This man has remarried, relying upon that divorce, and has a family; and Grace Guggenheim has stood by and made no objection until seven years after?"

"That cannot change our rights in the matter. We claim that divorce was void."

"But, Your Honor will remember that the lady has also taken another matrimonial partner, and the annulment was not asked for on the ground that the Chicago divorce was void, but on the ground of Wahl's youth and because they gave false names when they were married," returned Mr. Untermyer.

HAIR OF CORPSE OF MAN GREW OUT LONG AS WOMAN'S

Diver Working on New Sea Wall Finds Body of Bellevue Suicide.

CLOCK RAN WILD, BROOKLYN SCARED

Borough Hall Janitor Gave Big Timepiece Overdose of Electricity, Perhaps.

Edward Hickman, a diver, employed by the Dock Department, went down to the East River, at the foot of Twenty-ninth street, to-day, to work on a new sea wall under construction there. As he groped about on the bottom his head-weighted-foot struck something yielding in the mud and a body with long hair floating from the head drifted up past the glass front of his helmet.

Reaching out and grabbing hold of his gruesome discovery, Hickman called his helpers on the surface to pull him up. They almost jumped off the boat when they saw what he had brought up with him.

They lashed the body with ropes, and left it floating while they went and notified the police they had resurrected the body of a woman. Later examination showed the long brown hair had developed. The body was that of a man wearing the pink pajamas of the Bellevue Hospital alcoholic ward.

With the pajamas as clue the identity of the dead was soon established. He was Ulrich Fournier, twenty-seven years old, of No. 34 West End avenue, on Nov. 30 Fournier in a fit of delirium swept two attendants from his path, bowled over Policeman George Banks, on guard at the door, and rushed from the alcoholic ward into the hospital grounds.

A dense fog prevailed. Banks and the pursuing attendants saw Fournier disappear in the direction of the river and heard a splash as he went overboard. They could not see him when they reached the sea wall alongside the Morgue.

Fournier's hair was not of more than the average length of the hair of a man when he threw himself into the water. During the six weeks he spent at the hospital, the river his hair grew until it was mistaken for the hair of a woman.

CLOCK RAN WILD, BROOKLYN SCARED

Borough Hall Janitor Gave Big Timepiece Overdose of Electricity, Perhaps.

"dickory, dickory, dock!" The janitor went up the clock, the hands flew round the man ran down—dickory, dickory, dock! With apologies to Mother Goose for "stealing her stuff," but the old rhyme describes the state of affairs in the tower of Borough Hall in Brooklyn, at an hour to-day when thousands of workers were passing on the elevated trains and surface lines.

According to John Heffernan, secretary of Borough President Bird S. Coler, the clock has never misbehaved before, and nobody around the Hall is able to account for its sudden activity.

"It never showed any inclination to be fast in all the fifteen years of its life, and we always regarded it as a well-behaved timepiece," said Mr. Heffernan. "The facts are these—you can apply any theory you like. At 5 o'clock this morning the clock was slow, the same as ships, I believe—ran down, and about 9 o'clock the janitor mounted the tower to recharge the battery. The only way I can figure it out is that he sent in too big a charge, because it wasn't long before a dozen or two mechanics and men who work in this neighborhood ran into my office and asked if there was an earthquake coming off or if they had unexpectedly paid us a visit. The hands on the old clock were spinning round like mad and business men who are in the habit of pulling out their watches to set, on for the day were given a terrible shock."

"If I hadn't sworn off on the first of the year 'I'd have thought I had 'em again, sure," one of them said. For two hours those hands spun, and not until about 11 did she quiet down and set to behave. I believe she'll be good hereafter, but you never can tell."

CURES COLDS QUICKLY

A never failing home remedy for coughs and colds is made from the following formula to be mixed at home:

"Two ounces of glycerine, one-half ounce of Concentrated pine compound, one-half pint of good whiskey, mix and shake thoroughly in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours."

"This will cure any cough and is curable or break up an acute cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients all can be gotten at any drug store."

The Concentrated pine is a pine product refined for medicinal use and comes only in half-ounce bottles, each enclosed in a tin screw-top case, which is light, but be sure that it is labeled "Concentrated."

The Song of a Runaway Cow.

The past few weeks has witnessed a revival of real old Irish melodies in New York City and the introduction of many other equally charming Irish songs which had never been heard here before. For this Joseph O'Mara, the great Irish tenor, and the songs he and his company are singing in the Irish romantic comedy "Peggy Macree," at the Broadway Theatre, are responsible.

Among the best songs in "Peggy Macree" is "Co-Boo," the plaintive, half-humorous, musical story of a runaway cow. It is one of the most successful of all Joseph O'Mara's songs, and by special arrangement with the publishers, the John Church Company, No. 27 West Thirty-second street, the complete words and music of "Co-Boo" will be given with next Sunday's World.

Among the other real Irish songs in "Peggy Macree" are "Ladies, We Love You," "The Birds Fly South," "Peggy Macree," "Idle Colleen," "Family Pride," "O Lovely Rose," "The Old Plover Shawl," and "Lovely South Sea," all of which are published by the John Church Company.

S.S.S. REMOVES THE CAUSE OF CATARRH

No remedy that does not entirely remove the cause of Catarrh from the blood will ever make a permanent cure of the trouble. Just as long as the circulation remains contaminated with the impurities and catarrhal matters which produce the trouble, the mucous membranes or inner linings of the body will be kept in a state of irritation and disease. Sprays, lotions and other local applications will sometimes temporarily relieve the tight, full feeling in the head, buzzing noises in the ears, uncomfortable, stuffy feeling of the nostrils, and help to loosen the mucus in the throat; but Catarrh is a constitutional blood disorder and until it has been entirely driven from the system there can be no permanent cure. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by removing the cause from the blood. It attacks the disease at its head and by thoroughly purifying and cleansing the circulation, and ridding it of every particle of impurity, and at the same time enriching the blood, allows the inflamed and irritated membranes to heal, improves the general health, and stops every disagreeable symptom. S. S. S. reaches down to the very bottom and leaves no trace of the disease in the system. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.
