

HEROIC BOY HIT BY CAR THOUGHT ONLY OF MOTHER

"Don't Take Me Home This Way and Scare Her," He Pleaded With Rescuers.

WAITED FOR SURGEON.

Then 7-Year-Old Adolph Langmark Insisted on Entering Alone—Another Hurt.

Because his mother was ill, seven-year-old Adolph Langmark stayed in the flat on the fourth floor of No. 2195 Eighth avenue, this morning, until almost school time washing his own breakfast dishes and tidying up the kitchen.

Then he started at a trot for Public School No. 110, on St. Nicholas avenue. So intent was the youngster on reaching there that he didn't see a trolley car coming down Eighth avenue, as he started across at One Hundred and Seventeenth street. In an instant he was down, under the fender, being rolled over and over, while his cries started a panic among the passengers of the car, most of whom were women.

The motorman, James Wood, of No. 32 West Forty-eighth street, ground down the brake so hard he was able to halt the car within a few yards. He and Policeman Hausman, who had been riding on the rear platform, crawled under the fender and got little Adolph out. He was cut and scratched and most of his clothes had been torn off, but strangely enough there was no broken bones and no really serious wounds.

The men were carrying him into the flat house where he lived when he stopped them with this: "Please don't take me in this way, all covered with blood. My mamma is sick and it would make her worse. He pleaded so hard that they kept him in the hallway until Dr. Charlton arrived from the J. Hood Wright Hospital. The boy never whimpered while his cuts were being bound up and then he insisted on marching upstairs alone, so his mother might not be alarmed by the sight of strangers bringing him in.

At almost the same hour in the other end of the same police precinct Meyer Weis, aged twenty and forty-third street, No. 19, in Edgecombe avenue, was knocked down by an ice wagon team at One Hundred and Forty-third street and Seventy-seventh avenue and badly hurt. The driver carried the injured lad into a drug store and then jumped back to his wagon, whipped up his team and got away. Dr. Gillette took the lad to Harlem Hospital.

SWAM HALF MILE IN RIVER AFTER A FALL FROM SCOW

Captain of Street Cleaning Boat Dragged Ashore by Two Men.

The scow Bull, of the Street Cleaning Department, was the last of a long line of tows that trailed in the wake of a tug taking them from the North River out to sea at dawn to-day. In charge of the Bull was Theodore Engel, a Norwegian sailorman, forty-one years old, and six feet three inches in height, who has held the job ever since the four-master on which he shipped several months ago left him in New York.

Engel was walking along the edge of the scow toward the tiller when he slipped and fell into the river. He yelled for help when he came up, but the tug and the men on the other scows were too far away to hear him, so there was nothing for him to do but to strike out for the New York shore. He is a good swimmer, but it was over a half mile and the water was so cold and his clothing so heavy that he was nearly at the limit of his endurance when within a few feet of the Pennsylvania Railroad slip at Thirty-seventh street. His cry was heard by Lawrence Bohlen, a watchman at the pier, who got a boat-hook and pulled Engel into the slip. The water line was ten feet below the wharf, however, and Bohlen couldn't land the sailor, who was too weak and exhausted to help himself.

The watchman's call for aid brought Tony Lewis, a workman in the yards, and together they heaved and pulled until the dripping Engel was landed, and with such a bump that he rolled over and raised a welt on his head, while his rescuers sat down with great violence after their final effort. Engel was semi-conscious, and the roughness of his landing brought him out of his daze.

"For God's sake, Mister!" he cried to Bohlen, sitting up and clasping his hands. "You're not going to throw me back again?" "You bet I'm not," answered Bohlen. "I've had too much trouble getting you out." Policean Kohlet called Dr. Burnett, who ordered Engel taken to the New York Hospital. He is suffering from exposure and exhaustion and will not be out for several days.

TAXICAB VICTIM WINS $2,500 SUIT BY BAD BRAKES

Vehicle Couldn't Be Stopped, Car Smashed It and Company Is Mulcted.

A jury before Justice Amend, in the Supreme Court, to-day, awarded $2,500 damages to Mrs. Annie Flynn, wife of Orlando Flynn, of the Department of Buildings, for injuries in a collision between a taxicab, in which she was a passenger, and a Fourth avenue car, at Twentieth street, on Jan. 4, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Flynn, and Mr. and Mrs. James Groll, of Fifty-third street and Lexington avenue, had taken a New York Taxicab Company vehicle after a supper at the Knickerbocker, and were bound downtown when the collision occurred. The chauffeur made an affidavit that the brakes on his taxicab were out of order. This let the railroad company out of the case, and the verdict was brought against the taxicab company.

Mrs. Groll has also brought suit against the taxicab company. The men were unhurt.

"W. H. T." OLLEC

President Pleased with Name of Inauguration Day Youngster.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 11.—Joseph Ollec, who named his little son, born on March 4, William Howard Taft Ollec, telegraphed the news to the President and has received the following from the President's secretary, under date of March 8:

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram of the 5th inst., and to thank you on the President's behalf for the compliment you have paid him in the selection of a name for your little boy. Conveying the President's best wishes for the welfare of his young namesake, I am, &c.

A prominent local druggist makes the statement that this formula will cure the common cold in a day's time and that he has filled the prescription hundreds of times.

CUT THIS OUT.

Fine Recipe for the Quick Cure of Coughs and Colds.

Mix half ounce of Concentrated pine compound with two ounces of glycerine and half a pint of good whiskey; shake well each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

These ingredients can be obtained from any good druggist, who will mix them, or you can prepare them at home.

The Concentrated pine is a special pine product refined for medicinal use, and comes only in half ounce bottles, each inclosed in a tin screw-top case, which is air-tight and preserves all the original strength of the fluid, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

AQUEDUCT BOARD FINDS HANDS TIED BY CITY COUNSEL

Mayor McClellan and the members of the Aqueduct Commission are engaged in a game of official freezeout, with the Mayor holding the best cards, so far. He desires the Commission as a useless and costly body, and wants it abolished. This part of the game is up to the Board of Aldermen, but there are good Tammany men on the Commission and the Tammany controlled Board does not look with complacency on the Mayor's suggestion.

So the members are hanging on to their jobs declaring they will fight for retention to the end of the Mayor's term.

At last took another turn to-day when the Corporation Counsel declined to favor the Commission with an opinion as to its powers. The Board of Water Supply also has rebelled against co-operating with the Commission, and the latter's official hands are tied up in the matter of progressing with work on the Patterson reservoir and the Jerome Park reservoir, over which it had supervision.

The Mayor is going to play another card.

Spring Clothing

Youths' Suits, $9.94 to $29.75
Men's Suits, $14.75 to $36.75
Men's and Youths' Overcoats, $14.75 to $27.75

The foregoing is news of Spring Clothing condensed, squeezed, boiled down. From it you may glean the salient price range of the stock. Whatever we print will seem dull until you see the goods.

Take Men's Suits, for example: Worsteds, Velours, Cheviots and Cassimeres. Tried stuffs and true! The color mixes strike new chords—gray, stone, mode, green, blue, taupe—old names, but the shadings and combinations are not old.

The Overcoats that balance on the light-weight notch are looking up these sunshiny days. What style d'ye want? Dressy Top Coat, Chesterfield model or the conventional type that's always just right for every occasion?

We are not doing the greatest Clothing business in town. That's an incentive to keep us stirring. Hence, unequalled values may be found here whenever you come.

Let us figure on your Spring wardrobe.

Boys' Sailor and Russian Blouse Suits, all-wool cheviots and cassimeres; new models, with fancy pockets and cuffs; sizes 2 1/2 to 10 years, at $3.24.

Boys' Spring Reefers, three-quarter length model, all-wool cheviots and cassimeres; velvet or self collars, at $2.97 to $8.94.

Men's Shirts

It's a mistake to buy a Shirt that won't fit and can't be made to fit, no matter how you twist and turn.

All of the Shirts we sell are made to fit—and they are marked at fair prices—lower prices than others ask.

Sometimes we sell Shirts at half price. When we do this, there's a reason for it, and we tell the reason. Generally it's because sizes are broken, or quantities are dwindled, or because we just pass them on to you at a small advance above the bargain price made by a manufacturer who wants to unload.

Shirts, coat model, Spring patterns and colors, pleated bosoms, negligee attached or detached cuffs, 96c., $1.44, $1.98, $3.24.

White Dress Shirts, open front and back or coat model, fine linen bosoms, hands and cuffs; cuffs attached; hand-laundered; sold by others at $2.00, our price, $1.44.

Custom Shirts:

The French Madrases came direct from our Paris office. The Scotch Madrases are frae Glasgow. Prettiest of the prettiest. We know the cotton and the spinning and the dyeing are right.

Stripes? But such stripes! The designers must have caught their fancies from the streaks flashed from prisms; rainbow stripes; stripes in tints filched from flowers. Stripes are rampant—and none are quieter or more brilliant than the ones we show.

Shirts made to measure from the Scotch clan, $2.49, $3.44, $4.44.

Shirts made to measure from the French nouveautes, $3.44.

Shirts made to measure from silk at prices ranging up to $9.98.

Samples mailed on application.
