Inside the Ring with the Great Fighters by Charley White.

Didn't Know Joe Walcott Was Once a Great Sprinter, Did You? Well, Charley White Tells of Time at El Paso, Tex., When He Broke All the Records on the Books.

NO. 24.—JOE WALCOTT, Third Welterweight Champion.

At the time Fitzsimmons and Peter Maher were matched to fight at El Paso, Tex., O'Rourke procured bouts there for both George Dixon and Walcott. Dixon met Jerry Marshall and Walcott was matched to fight Scott Collins.

and then walking over to him, remarked: "Hey, don't you know we never allow niggers in here?" "Why, boss, I've gettin' a glass of soda water," replied Joe.

"Glass of soda, hey? Well, we don't sell no glasses here before I shoot you full of daylight," yelled the stranger.

"Ah don't know why you should pick on me," replied Walcott. "Ah ain't done nothing to you."

"Why don't you let him alone. He isn't hurting any one. He's a peacable little covey," said Glory to the big Texan.

round West put two terrific punches to Joe's stomach, saying as he delivered the last one: "Now, Joe, I'm going to give you a licking. Tommy's remark evidently got Walcott's goat, for the black refused to come out of his corner for the eleventh round.

Gave Decision to West.

"His head one—it am de broken one, Mistah Charlie." But I realized that he was either faking or just wanted to quit, and I gave the decision to West, who, I believe, had no part in the deal if there was any crooked work.

Walcott Shot His Hand.

The following year Walcott engaged in a number of fights. Toward the end of that year he shot several fingers off one hand, and as a result impaired his fighting ability that he soon dropped out of sight.

One time Joe was training near Utopia. The route over which he took his runs led him past an old-fashioned country house. Nearly every time that Walcott passed the house he would see two little boys playing out in the front yard.

"The next chapter will deal with George Green, fourth holder of the welterweight title.

A true cure for all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agent in the form of a liquid.
