PARALYTIC WALKS AT DOCTOR'S ORDER WHEN HYPNOTIZED

Physicians and Nurses See Mir- acle of Modern Science in St. Mark's Hospital.

GIANT CAN USE LIMBS.

Little Physician Works Won- ders, Even Keeping Would- Be Suicide From Death.

Seven doctors and a coterie of nurses at St. Mark's Hospital, Tenth street and Second avenue, to-day watched Dr. Alfred J. Fox demonstrate one of the miracles of modern science when he commanded a paralytic to walk, under the influence of hypnosis, and was obeyed. For three years the man had been unable to move himself.

It was one of those intensely interesting things that now make people think, but which, not so many years ago, would have caused the doctor performing the feat to be burned at the stake as an ungodly person who communed with familiar spirits.

The doctors and nurses, which delegation included Dr. Rufus Jackson, Dr. Henry Friedland, Dr. Kaufman, Dr. Lohenstein, Dr. Welman, Dr. Mohr and Dr. L. M. Atocci-Placull, watched a great giant, as handsome as an Apollo, lying on the operating table while a little, thin, bald man, five feet, six inches tall, leaned earnestly over him. There was none of the grand stand, Svergal demonstration about the little doctor. He spoke to the hypnotized subject with the calm assurance that he might use in ordinary conversation. The giant subject, Melchior Luysterberg, seemed to be twice the size of the little doctor who saw his mental force with curious effect toward the helpless man before him.

Moves Feet at Command.

"Now, Mr. Luysterberg," began the quiet little man, "you are going to move your feet. Move your feet up and down. You have control of them."

The man who couldn't do any such thing for three years began to wiggle the hitherto helpless feet. The doctors looked on with undisguised interest.

"Now, you will notice that your legs are getting warm; you are going to perspire."

The suggestion almost instantly brought a glow. Then the doctors watched the perspiration start and then the same quiet tones came:

"You can stand up; you can walk. Of course, you will have to lean on these doctors, but you can walk."

The great form raised itself and got up from the table. Leaning on two doctors, like a child just learning to walk, the big man went slowly around the room.

Then he returned to the table and the hypnotic influence was removed. And it was here that the doctors got the greatest surprise. The man immediately sat up and said:

"My effort was better this time than on the previous occasion, and he went around the room with better effect. It was almost uncanny in its effect upon the watchers.

"A Giant but Helpless.

Melchior Luysterberg is thirty-nine years of age and lives at No. 80 Park avenue, Hoboken. He is married and has three children. More than six feet tall and built like a giant, he was employed up to four years ago as a stove-fitter at the docks of one of the big steamship companies over the river.

His trouble began three or four years ago when he was attacked by chills and fever. Delirium attended these attacks. When he recovered he was unable to move. From his waist down he was completely paralyzed. The doctors called his case anterior poliomyelitis. The formidable title hides what the public commonly knows as infantile paralysis—a dreadful ailment that is growing more and more prevalent throughout the United States, and chiefly dangerous to very young children.

The muscles forgot how to contract. Even galvanic and faradic currents would not make the recalcitrant muscles do their work. The man tried all sorts of treatment, and, leaving medicine for the time, he took up Christian Science. He did not get any relief from any sort of treatment. Finally, in July a year ago, he read in The World a story of the treatment by Dr. Fox of men with a similar affliction, in which hypnotic suggestion was used.

Moved His Limbs.

Luysterberg sent for the doctor and asked him to try his case. Dr. Fox found him completely paralyzed, and it

KILLED HIMSELF IN PARK BEFORE PLAYING CHILDREN

Col. Henry O. Seixas, Aged Bachelor, Alone and Ruined, Fires Fatal Shot.

LOST MANY FORTUNES.

Collapse of Hocking Pool the Final Great Misfortune of Famous Southerner.

Starting up suddenly from a bench and standing directly in view of a throng of children who were taking part in the big May party revels in Central Park to-day, Col. Henry O. Seixas, a Confederate veteran, who a few years ago was rated as a millionaire, shot and killed himself.

It was shortly after 1 o'clock, and about fifty boys and girls were rigging a Maypole on a stretch of sward between the Belvidere and the Swiss Cottage, just east of the West Drive and on a line with Seventy-ninth street. The children had scarcely noticed the distinguished looking old man with his white hair and long white sideburns as he sat on the bench, leaning on his cane and staring vacantly in front of him.

They had been playing all around him and he had become a part of the scene, so that some of the youngsters tripped over his feet without seeming to notice him. There was something about his manner and bearing that had restrained even the boldest from attempting to make sport of him, so they just ignored him and forgot about him until he suddenly stood up and drew a revolver from the tail pocket of his long gray frock coat.

Dead at the Feet of Little Girl.

Self-extinction seemed a momentary impulse to a few of the older boys who happened to be looking his way at the moment. With one motion he raised the revolver to his head and fired. He fell dead almost at the feet of a group of little girls.

The throng of revellers had screaming and their cries attracted two Park policemen. The body was removed to the West Sixty-seventh street station and an examination of the pockets revealed the old man's identity. There were several letters from his brokers, Whitehouse & Co., of No. 111 Broadway, addressed to Col. Henry Octavius Seixas at the Wilbraham Apartments, Fifth avenue and Thirtieth street.

The venerable Southerner was a bachelor and belonged to the old time aristocracy of the South. He made a fortune in coal and iron properties and was a director of many corporations, among them the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company, the Great West Steel and Iron Company, and the Langston Monotype Machine Company. He lost the major part of the fortune he made a little over a year ago in the collapse of the Hocking Pool. As a director of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company he has been in the pool from the first.

Financially Ruined and Alone.

Mr. Whitehouse of the firm of Whitehouse & Co., who have been Col. Seixas's brokers for many years, said after he had learned of the suicide that he had expected it for some time. The old Colonel was entirely alone in the world and had lived alone for many years. He came of a distinguished New Orleans family. After serving through the War of the Rebellion he came north and engaged in finance. He made and lost several fortunes, but his greatest failure came with the collapse of the Hocking Pool. He has lived alone at the Wilbraham Apartments for the past six years.

Mr. Whitehouse said this afternoon that Col. Seixas had suffered an attack of nervous prostration following his last disastrous speculation, and he had never quite recovered. Recently he has been on the wrong side of the market and his continued losses preyed on his mind.

CROPSEY GOES OUT NEXT TUESDAY, IF HE QUILTS OR NOT

New Head of Police to Be Named on "23" Day, Is Present Plan.

MAY HAVE RESIGNED.

Mayor and Commission Are Silent Upon Manner of the Change.

Action on Police Commissioner Cropsey's tenure of office has been postponed by the Mayor until next Tuesday. On that day, May 23—a significant date—the successor to Mr. Cropsey will be named, unless present plans are changed. Whether Mr. Cropsey has resigned or whether the Mayor will have to remove him only the Mayor and Mr. Cropsey know, and they refuse to tell.

Possibly the Mayor has selected Mr. Cropsey's successor. If so he has not made a confidant of anybody. Up to the time he left the City Hall this afternoon he had said nothing about the police situation.

The Mayor will spend to-morrow and Sunday at St. James. On Monday, with Water Supply Commissioner Henry S. Thompson and Chief Engineer J. Waldo Smith of the Board of Water Supply, he will make an automobile inspection of the water supply conditions in Suffolk, Nassau and Queens counties.

Civil Service Commissioner Creelman was at the Mayor's office to-day. On his departure Mr. Creelman refused to say whether or not he had talked with the Mayor about Commissioner Cropsey. Additional names were to-day added to the list of those mentioned as possible successors to Cropsey. Here is the list as it now stands: William J. Flynn, former Second Deputy; John McCullagh, a former Police Chief; William Meadoon, Chief Magistrate; Rhinelanders Waldo, Fire Commissioner; "Big Bill" Edwards, Street Cleaning Commissioner; Michael J. Drummond, Charities Commissioner; Rudolph Block, editor of a comic supplement; George S. Dougherty, Deputy Commissioner; James Creelman, head of the Municipal Civil Service; James Dillon, Police Inspector; Dr. Joseph H. O'Connell, Thomas F. McAvoy, and Moses F. Cortwright, former Chief Inspector.

None of the Police Surgeons has made any reply to the Creelman letter, but it is understood that Dr. Marvin H. Palmer, Chief Surgeon, has a statement in preparation.

WOMAN AND DOG SHE SAVED AT RISK OF LIFE

MRS. PATRICK AND "PAT"

ACCUSED OF THEFT OF $10,000 BILL THAT DISAPPEARED

Mystery of a Year Ago Re- called by Trial of Youth- ful Bank Runner.

The mysterious disappearance of a $10,000 bill, which caused a raffle of excitement in the financial district a year ago, held the attention of Justice McCall and a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court to-day.

Henson Lang, seventeen years old, was on trial charged with the theft of the bill. He was employed as a runner for the large brokerage house of Hornblower & Weeks of No. 42 Broadway in February, 1910. The cashier, Mr. Gallagher, gave him the bill with instructions to go to the National City Bank and deposit it to the credit of the firm.

Young Lang left the brokerage house in company with another messenger boy, Arthur Ashley. He was so elated at the idea of having such a wonderful piece of money in his possession that he straightaway showed it to everybody he knew in the Wall street district. He flashed it before the eyes of the stevedore man at No. 42 Broadway, then went out into the street, met Joseph Moschovites, a boot black, and dazzled him with the sight of the bill.

"I thought it was a joke," said Moschovites to-day. "A boy with a $10,000 bill was something new to me. I was sure the bill was counterfeit."

Passing on, Lang showed the bill into his coat pocket very carefully, according to witnesses, and made for the National City Bank. When he got there he put his hand in his pocket, only to find the bill was not there.

Young Lang is a nice looking boy, with light hair, and lives with his parents on Lenox avenue. His father, David Lang, is a real estate dealer. The father, mother and ten-year-old sister of the accused had were in court with him to-day. Arthur J. Levy, a young Lang's lawyer, Assistant District Attorney Nott is prosecuting.

Garden Party Guests.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—For the first time since her father became President, Miss Helen Taft this afternoon acted as the White House hostess. Mrs. Taft, although greatly improved, felt unequal to the strain of the garden party for which a large number of guests had been invited, and Miss Taft took her place as hostess. The President's daughter, Helen, who is now in the twenty-fifth year of her age, is a member of the Royal Society. Fifty students of the Royal Society of Copenhagen have been making a tour of the United States, and at the party.

SHOOTS HIMSELF IN MINE OFFICE ON FIFTH AVENUE

Woman Finds Confidential Secretary of F. M. Stanton Dead on Floor.

William B. Hall, fifty years old, confidential secretary for Frank MacMillan Stanton, a mining engineer and promoter, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver this afternoon in Mr. Stanton's office on the fifth floor of No. 28 Fifth avenue.

Hall was in the office alone when he killed himself. Dr. J. W. Moore, a brother-in-law of Mr. Stanton, and Mrs. Moore, who is Mr. Stanton's sister, called at the office on their way to take a train for Michigan. They found Hall dead on the floor.

Frank MacMillan Stanton, his brother, M. B. Stanton, a copper merchant at No. 15 William street, and Dr. Moore are extensively interested in Michigan copper mines. Much of their business was attended to by Hall.

Hall's business associates profess to be unable to give any reason for his suicide. His wife and three children live in the Douglas Apartments, at One Hundred and Forty-seventh street and Broadway.

Mr. Stanton arrived at his office about an hour after the discovery of the tragedy. He could not bring himself to look upon the body. From his return from a hotel tour in Europe, a week ago, Mr. Stanton found his brother had died while he was on the ocean. She lived at No. 49 West Twenty-third street.

COLLAPSE BURIES TWO.

Three-Story Brick Building in Newark Falls With Workmen.

NEWARK, N. J., May 19.—A portion of the three-story brick building at No. 23 Clinton street, which was being torn down to make way for a new building, collapsed to-day, carrying with it two workmen who were on the third floor at the time. The men were buried in the debris in the cellar, but neither was killed, although at City Hospital their condition is considered serious. Three other men who were at work on the third floor felt the floor weaken and jumped to a shed in the rear of the building. Only one was injured.

As evidence that the Government never doubted the outcome of the Standard Oil proceeding, it may be stated that the Lumber Trust prosecution has been in course of preparation for more than a year along the lines followed in hunting down the Rockefeller monopoly.

The first suit was filed to-day. It is directed against the lumber concern in an agreement which shuts consumers in New England and a part of the Middle States from direct dealings with lumber producers. Other prosecutions will be inaugurated as rapidly as the evidence can be whipped into shape.

This is the Government's first anti-trust suit conforming to the Supreme Court's Standard Oil decision, in that it alleges "undue" and "unreasonable" restraint of trade of the consumer and the manufacturer. It is the evident purpose of the plea to confine the change largely to that feature, small stress being placed upon the restraint of trade among the conspirators themselves.

Sensational Allegations.

The Government's suit is replete with sensational allegations, and it is asserted that builders and consumers of lumber the country over are at the mercy of the retailers' organization in different sections of the United States.

The suit filed to-day is against the Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Association which is the central body of nine local organizations covering five States, the District of Columbia and the cities of Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Attorney-General Wickham and his special assistants, Clark McKeever, have devoted more than a year to gathering the evidence on which the suit is based. This evidence includes copies of the alleged agreements, black lists and reports of the various organizations, branding wholesalers and retailers who have dared to violate the rules of the associations as "poncheas," "smarvelocks," "scalpers" and "illegitimate dealers" to whom "short shrift" must be applied.

Many Concerns in Suit.

The defendants named in the suit and who are alleged to have conspired among themselves and with the assistance of the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers' Association have prevented wholesalers from selling directly or indirectly to consumers, are:

The Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, a New York corporation, with offices at No. 18 Broadway.

The New York Lumber Trade Association of New York City.

The Building Material Men's Association of Westchester County, N. Y.

The Lumber Dealers' Association of Connecticut.

The Massachusetts Retail Lumber Dealers' Association.

The Lumber Dealers' Association of Rhode Island.

The Retail Lumbermen's Association of Baltimore.

The Officers and directors, trustees and members of the above are named as individual defendants as well as the officers and directors and members of
