

BROOKLYN HOSPITAL PLANS ADDITIONS TO COST $1,000,000

Twelve New Buildings to Be Erected on Raymond Street Side of Institution.

Plans for a system of hospital construction that will cost $1,000,000 were announced today by the Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Hospital. The new work is to include twelve new buildings on the Raymond street side of the present extensive hospital grounds. The money for the first of these buildings—the dispensary—is now available and work will begin on it in July.

A building for nurses' quarters will follow as soon as the required money can be raised. The list of buildings planned include an administration building, private ward, public ward, future ward, nurses' quarters, pathological building, laundry plant and garage.

W. H. Harriman, now living at Rome, Italy, but formerly a resident of Brooklyn, has pledged $100,000 toward the work. At a meeting of the trustees a committee was named to begin with the dispensary construction.

Another meeting will be held in June to discuss plans for the continuation of the work and the erection of the other buildings. It is stated that a number of contributions to the fund have been promised.

HIS HEAD SEVERED BY ELEVATOR IN NEW SKSCRAPER

George Murray, a superintendent employed by the Fuller Construction Company, stood at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the sub-cellar of the eight-story new Underwood office building at Church and Vesey streets, waiting for an elevator to take him through the building on a tour of inspection.

"Well, in an hour and a half this building will be finished," he said, turning to some workmen, "and it will go on record as the first skyscraper in New York that didn't have a serious accident in it while it was being constructed. Good heavens what was that?"

The exclamations were caused by a headless body falling almost at his feet. The body was that of a glazier. The glazier was Robert Fairweather, twenty-nine years old, of No. 99 Irving street, Jersey City. He was putting a glass in the door of the elevator shaft on the twelfth floor. The door of the shaft was open as he was leaning out. The elevator had gone up to the eighteenth floor, and Fairweather was losing no time in finishing his work, for every effort was being made to complete the building operations by to-night. The car was in charge of Edward Oliver of No. 147 East Eighth street. Oliver says he had no idea that Fairweather was at work.

The car was in charge of Edward Oliver of No. 147 East Eighth street. Oliver says he had no idea that Fairweather was at work.

Patrolman Miller of the Greenwich street station placed Oliver under arrest and took him to the Centre Street Police Court, where he was held on a charge of manslaughter.

HADN'T HAD DRINK, HE SAID, BUT JURY SMELLED HE LOST

Miller Is Sorry Now He Took Court's Oath in $10,000 Damage Suit.

Probably William F. Miller is sorry now that he took a three-cent oath today in the Brooklyn Supreme Court of Justice Monday at the conclusion of the damage suit testimony in a damage suit which Miller had brought against John Hester, proprietor of a hotel at High Street, N. Y., where he spent a vacation two summers ago.

Miller, who is a doctor, wanted $10,000 for damages for injuries to his knee-cap sustained when he fell through a trap door in the piazza of the hotel the night of July 11, 1909. He had been running a piano in a rear room and had gone out to get a bit of air. The defense says that he had knowledge of the existence of the trap door and that there was really no occasion for his going out on that side of the house anyway.

Had Little to Drink. Before sending the case to the jury today Justice Scudder called Miller back to the stand.

"You say you had been feeling that day," said the justice. "Did you have any further along?"

"Only had a dozen bottles of beer and that wasn't much between three," replied Miller.

"Have anything to drink during the proceedings?"

"Just a few beers—not more than two or three."

"You could see all right?"

"Perfectly."

"Have anything to drink this morning?" questioned the judge, leaning over and getting close to Miller's face.

"Not a drop," replied the plaintiff stoutly.

"Your breath smells as if you had."

Justice Scudder, after taking another sniff. "Would you mind letting the Jurymen take a sniff of it?"

"Not in the least. I'll take that dare," replied Miller with alacrity, while his counsel, "Bob" Stewart, hoisted up and down emitting a series of frantic objections, all of which were overruled.

Whew! Said Jurors. Miller walked over to the jury box with a serene smile of self-satisfaction paying over for beverage. He pushed his face close to that of the jurors and that gentleman looked back with a smile. At all of the jurymen in the front row glanced at Miller as he appeared in the box. In the back row an opportunity for a sniff. They assured that it wasn't necessary.

The jurymen stood up and returned ten minutes later with a verdict for the defendant. Miller's serene smile vanished when the words were spoken.

MRS. EDDY'S INTENT NOT VOIDED BY LAW.

BOSTON, May 18.—That the intent of Mrs. Annie Besant, D.D., in founding the Society of Christian Science was to establish a new religion, was held by the Supreme Court today in a decision handed down by Justice Scudder at the conclusion of the case of the Eddy family against Mrs. Besant, which was brought by the Eddy family in 1907.

All Suits. "How does a man act when he is really in love?"

"Oh, they have different ways," answered the experienced juror. "Some of them are beautiful things, and others aren't after a while."
