How McCoy Beat Choynski, Steve O'Donnell and Several Others, and Then Got Even With Jack McCormack for Putting Him Out in One Round With a Chance Blow.

NO. 57 - KID MCCOY.

Shortly after his defeat by Tom Sharkey Kid McCoy went out to San Francisco. While there he received a challenge from Joe Choynski, and the men were matched to fight twenty rounds to a decision at the Woodward Pavilion on March 24, 1899. The match was made by Jim Kennedy, the manager of the Twentieth Century Athletic Club.

MCCORMACK KNOCKED MCCOY DOWN AND OUT.

The arena was packed with a crowd anxious to see the much talked of Hooper boy in action. Betting was much in McCoy's favor, he being a 19 to 4-1-2 favorite. The men were pretty evenly matched, Choynski opposing his superior weight and heavy hitting powers to McCoy's longer reach and superior cleverness.

Put Out by Chance Blow.

The Kid hung around Frisco for awhile playing the races and then came to Davenport, Ia., where he met two men on the night of Aug. 10. One was Jimmy Dugan, the other was Jack Graham of Australia, in four rounds. On Aug. 14 at Joplin, Mo., the Kid knocked out Jim Carter in five rounds. Four nights later he met Jim McCormack of Philadelphia at the Star Theatre in Chicago in what was to be a six round bout.

Spectacles Would Aid Batters

New York Physician, an Ex-Yale Player, Writes Interestingly on Possibilities of His Suggestion.

In view of the statements of McGraw, Duffy, Murray and others that the main cause of bad batting is bad eyes and that all recruits should have their eyes examined in the spring, a prominent New York doctor and former Yale player, who asks that his name be withheld, has written the following rather interesting article on the subject for The Evening World: "Nothing to me is more pathetic than to see how uniformly a baseball player goes into the discard around the age of forty, particularly as regards his batting. A patient of mine last week told me that he wears spectacles when he is batting. One Saturday he did not wear them and struck out every time he went to the bat. The following Saturday he wore them when batting only until he got to first base. Out of six times at the bat he got one pop fly to the infield, a base on balls, two singles, a double and a triple. "I have never batted since I have put on spectacles, but I captured my Prep school team before I went to Yale. I had found out by experience that I could bat in a drop every time, so whenever our team ran up against a pitcher who used this curve extensively, my batting average was quite splendid, otherwise not. My astigmatism, as it turned out, distorts objects, so that a pitched ball would look lower to me than it really was; hence the above result. "Would it not be possible as an experiment to take some broken down outfielder whose batting has already fallen off, or some pitcher who bats poorly, and try how well he bats by simply wearing spectacles until he gets to first base? My friend Yawkey of the Detroit club says that a pitcher would throw the ball right at a man's eyes if he wore spectacles, but by building heavy rim ones, nothing would happen even if they were hit, and it would be no more difficult to keep from getting hit in the spectacles than to keep from getting hit in the eyes. I think that some man who feels that he is a "has been" might be willing to try it.

Flour Good to Put Out Fires on Motor Boats

Flour—just plain baking flour—will make an effective and cheap fire extinguisher for motor boats, according to Leslie Huxtable, principal of the motor boat school of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, No. 818 West Fifty-seventh street. "Flour," says Mr. Huxtable, "is even superior to some of the patent fire extinguishers. Many extinguishers depend on the principle that they make a vapor that is heavier than air which settles upon and smothers the flames. They are very effective in a boat's cabin and other enclosed places, but do not work so well with a gasoline fire on deck, in an open boat or open cockpit, where a slight breeze will blow the heavier-than-air cloud away. On the other hand flour scattered on such a blaze will 'stay put' and do the work. It is well, Mr. Huxtable says, to keep flour in several parts of the boat where it will be readily accessible, for it frequently happens that flames gain headway because the blaze is between the motor boat operator and the extinguisher. The flour should be kept dry and stored in several parts of the boat, done up in small paper bags. These can be thrown on the blaze from a distance, the bags breaking and spreading the flour as they strike. "Baseball Query. To the Sporting Editor: Would you kindly answer the following question? There is a man on first base, and the batter hits an infield fly. Is the batter out whether the ball is caught or not, or must there also be a man on second as well as on first to make an infield fly an out? JESSEBELL MORGANSTEIN. AVIATOR FREY, IN DELIRIUM, AGAIN FIGHTS AIR BATTLE.

Badly Injured, But Will Survive Fall Due to Elements in Paris-Turin Race. RONIGLIONE, Italy, June 11.—Herr Frey, the only competitor in the Paris-Rome-Turin aviation race to attempt the final leg of the course, lies in the hospital here with his right arm and left leg broken and his lower jaw fractured. In periods of delirium he fights again the battle with the fog that was his undoing yesterday. Strangely enough he does not appear to have been injured internally, and the physicians believe that he will recover, although some six weeks will be required for the mending. The airman's wife came from their home in Florence during the night and is with him to-day. The time limit for the race will expire to-morrow and yesterday the German aviator decided to take one more chance with the elements, hoping to reach Florence and thence accomplish the perilous flight over the Apennines to Bologna, from where it should be comparatively easy going to the goal at Turin. Starting from Rome he soon ran into a heavy fog and lost his bearings. Approaching Lake Vico his machine was rendered helpless in a fierce rain and hail storm and hurtled to the ground in the mountain forests near here. Hours later the injured man was found in the wreckage of his aeroplane by Red Cross searchers. He had covered about thirty-five miles when he fell. Aero Club Housewarming. To-night will be "aviators' night" at the new club house of the Aero Club of America, No. 27 Madison avenue. It is the official opening of the organization's new home, and 600 invitations have been issued. In the absence of Allan Ryan, President of the club, who has gone abroad, Dave H. Morris will be the host. J. F. Campbell Wood, Secretary of the club, has been in charge of the preparations for the housewarming.
