$100,000 ADVANCE SALE ALREADY FOR TICKETS TO GAMES OF WORLD'S SERIES

New York Baseball Club Offices Littered With Mail Applications To-day.

Despite Demands, Secretary Gray Says Everybody Will Be Taken Care Of.

All New York is baseball crazy just now over the World's series. Everybody wants to see the games, it seems. The subject is discussed every place. Everybody is asking everybody else how to get tickets. Up at the New York Club offices mail filled with certified checks is piling up and an extra force of clerks is working overtime sorting it out. The question of whether the Giants will win or lose is forgotten in the excitement over getting tickets.

Twenty-four hours after the deluge of applications for World's series tickets began, checks, money orders and cash amounting to $100,000 was in the office to-day. The rooms were swamped with letters, which buried chairs, desks, tables and the floor.

As far as the augmented staff of clerks could open them they were forwarded indiscriminately into an enormous dry goods box, from which they will be sorted into the "wins" and the "loses." The former, those of the fans who had complied with the regulations governing the distribution of tickets, will win the coveted passbooks. The "loses," those of the checks which are not certified, or which have a "speculative stamp" will be promptly returned with thanks.

FANS AFRAID THEY WILL BE BARRED FROM GAMES.

A frenzied mob of fans, frightened out of a year's growth by rumors that several hundred thousand would be spectators to be barred from the World's series because there would be no room to sit, descended upon the office to-day. They came singly and in groups and before the day had passed far the crowd was so great that the work of the clerks was greatly hampered. Then the doors were locked and sealed and a special policeman was stationed at the portal to check the mob.

Every sixty seconds the special found a new mob in front of him, and he often delivered himself of a set speech announcing again the edictly advertised fact that nothing but mail orders will receive attention until next Thursday. Then this crowd would melt away, but within a minute another would take its place.

Meantime, within the fortified headquarters the rail of mail applications continued unabated, and by noon the room was even greater than that of yesterday. Had it not been for the fact that Secretary Gray had thought his force of clerks the flood would have swept all before it, but as it was the staff had things well in hand, and Gray declared his belief that every one will be taken care of.

ALL WILL BE CARED FOR, SAYS SECRETARY GRAY.

Gray said there was no foundation for the reports that thousands upon thousands of fans are to be left out in the cold, for the accommodations of the Polo Grounds have been stretched to the utmost. He said also that there was no truth in the rumor that there will be no advance sale because the availability of mail orders has been so heavy. There will still be thousands of tickets left over, he thinks, after all these have been cared for.

That it is the habit of real fans who are tumbling over each other to see the games is indicated by the fact that a majority of applications are for tickets for all three games. These, of course, will receive first attention, thus keeping speculation at a minimum, because the officials agree that the tickets will not take a chance on there being no third game here.

Secretary Gray is arranging to work day and night staffs from now to sort the mail and forward the tickets. The tickets are now being printed in Philadelphia and will probably be ready for distribution in the middle of next week, although no time has been set for this part of the work.

M'GRAW'S HAND LAME; HE'S TAKING A REST.

The "Hully, Bill" Fans Have Wrung His Right Mitt Till It Hurts.

Manager John McGraw was taking it easy in his hotel last night. He had a highly contented look, but whenever anybody approached he ducked his right hand into his pocket. "They can't shake me," he kept on remarking.

It was no wonder he looked the hand-slacker. Every mother's son in the city who came anywhere near him all day had put out the flat to give him a shake and congratulate him on winning the baseball pennant. Some of the hat fans were very vicious and as a result his hand became limp.

BOOKBINDERS END STRIKE.

Fourteen Hundred Return When Demands are Granted.

Bookbinders' union striking bookbinders in New York went back to work to-day. An agreement was reached between representatives of the union and the publishers, after a five-hour's session. The strikers were granted their demands.

The new agreement allows bookbinders to receive the maximum wage, which will be $2.25, the maximum wage. The union will receive the maximum wage, which will be $2.25, the maximum wage. The union will receive the maximum wage, which will be $2.25, the maximum wage.

THOSE KID ELOPERS ARE MR. AND MRS. AT LAST—HURRAH!

It Took a Week to Get Knot Tied, but It's Done and Everybody's Happy.

PARENTS BOSS WEDDING

School Friends Salute Couple as They Leave Church at South Orange.

With a crowd of their schoolmates gathered outside to whom things up fifteen-year-old Arthur Edward James and fourteen-year-old Ruth Jane Day were married in the rectory of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion at South Orange, N. J., this afternoon by the Rev. Dr. George A. Hanna.

The union of this pair of child sweethearts was the culmination of a week of adventures and misadventures. Last Saturday they made their first attempt to elope from their native home and to be married in Jersey City or Long Island City. Unable to secure a marriage license without their parents' consent, the children were driven from pillar to post in their quest matrimonial.

Even after the two families related and signed the papers, enabling the children to get a marriage license in Long Island City, they found their way blocked by the activities of a self-appointed guardian who led them some a chase Thursday afternoon and night that they were finally forced to go home in the wee small hours, still in their unhappy single state.

But today the parents took charge of the affair and made quick work of it. Deputy Register Mike A. Fitzsimmons of South Orange supplied a new license, this forenoon and Dr. Hanna, the pastor for both families, gladly consented to tie the knot.

Arthur came back from the parsonage to be met by his father in the morning and made a lightning change from his working clothes and overalls to his best Sunday suit and blue necktie. The little bride was assisted into her prettiest white dress and ribbon by her mother and then driven to the rectory in her father's buggy.

Artie, blushing and grinning from ear to ear, was waiting at the rectory door, accompanied by his parents and the wedding party was completed by the arrival of a band of classmates of the young couple from the seventh grade of the Columbia Grammar School.

"You fellows stay outside until we get married or till you see some of you in the news," was Artie's goodly admonition to his gleeful school friends.

The football game between two boy teams at 15 cents a ticket to raise a wedding present for the kid couple will be played next Saturday on Taylor Memorial Field.

LULU GLASER ASKS DIVORCE ON GROUND OF CRUELTY.

Suing in Chicago Court, She Declares Ralph Herz Choked Her Black and Blue.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Lulu Glaser to-day began suit for divorce against Ralph C. Herz, also known in musical comedy. Mrs. Herz charged that her husband beat and choked her until she was "black and blue," and on another occasion threatened to kill her.

"NOR'EASTER" ON WAY HERE.

Weather Bureau Hints Heavy Storm Signal.

Shortly before noon to-day the Washington Weather Bureau issued the warning for a "nor'easter" storm. The prediction which went with the order was "High northeast to north winds, subsiding by Sunday morning."

The unsettled weather of last night, with its terrific rain, prepared weather observers for the warning of the coming "nor'easter," which is to be expected in town to-night.

TWO SCHOONERS ASHORE IN STORM ON LONG ISLAND

Coral Leaf and Another Vessel in Mishap Close Together Off Mattinecock Point.

The three-masted schooner Coral Leaf, bound for Spencer's Island, Nova Scotia, from this port and another three-masted schooner were blown ashore today off Mattinecock Point, on the north shore of Long Island and the Revenue Cutter Molokah has been sent out to their assistance.

The point where the two vessels grounded is nine miles from the nearest life saving station at Sands Point. A gale was blowing, while at the same time the shore was obscured by a thick mist.

The two schooners were discovered lying within 100 yards of each other. A crew of local fishermen put out to the aid of the two schooners as soon as they could launch a boat in the high sea that was running.

When the fishermen got out to the vessel the crew of the Coral Leaf refused to go ashore as they said the worst of the storm had passed and there seemed to be no immediate danger. They said they expected to get off the beach as soon as a Merritt Chapman tug arrived and the tide rose again.

The other vessel ashore is believed to be the Frederick Roessemer from New Haven, Conn. She was reported at Vineyard Haven on Sunday last. She got off the beach about half a mile east of the Coral Leaf, when off Peacock Point, and she is now lying in a good position, as the wind and seas have gone down. She lies near the beach directly between the summer home of H. P. Davison, a New York banker, and that of Lawyer W. B. Guthrie.

BURNS TELLS OF TRAIL THAT LED TO M'NAMARAS

On Eve of Trial of Alleged Dynamiters Cuban Cigarmaker Makes Startling Disclosure About Bomb Used at Los Angeles Blowup.

An informal motion for a change of trial Judge, presented in chambers to-day at Los Angeles by the attorneys for the McNamara brothers, was denied by Judge Bordwell. Clarence S. Darrow and his associates then announced that they would file affidavits in court at noon, alleging that Judge Bordwell is biased.

When the McNamaras and Mangal face the judge and jury in the Los Angeles tribunal on Wednesday the machinery will be put in motion for the most elaborate prosecution known to modern law, while at the same time the vast army of organized labor will rally to the defense of the accused with a million dollar fund and the best legal talent in the land. Throughout every step of the trial in scores of lanes and capitals will be engaged in a bitter struggle.

The three engineers, John J. McNamara, Secretary-Treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers; his brother, James W. McNamara, and Leslie J. McNamara, a structural ironworker, all defended by Clarence S. Darrow, the eminent attorney who secured the acquittal of Pettibone, Moyer and Hayward when they were tried for the murder of Gov. Steinberg of Idaho, and a staff of assistants.

Great and universal was the interest in the trial of Pettibone, Hayward and Moyer, the coming ordeal of the McNamaras and McNamara elopes it both in the eyes of the labor world and in the estimation of the general public. There was no such alignment of capital on the one side and labor on the other in the earlier case. The difference the charges against the McNamaras has aroused in labor circles is best expressed in the language of Eugene V. Debs, who recently proclaimed: "If the McNamaras die, twenty million workmen will show the reason why."

A great defense fund has been in process of collection since the arrest of the accused trio by Detective William J. Burns last April. Appeals in behalf of this fund were made throughout the civilized world and out with a liberal response.

PLENTY OF MONEY TO BACK BOTH SIDES.

The prosecution, on the other hand, will have unlimited capital at its back. The city of Los Angeles, Harrison Gray Otis, publisher and owner of the Los Angeles Times, and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, which employed Detective Burns, will furnish the fund.

The prosecution's testimony is expected to furnish chapter after chapter of surprises, and the defense promises to make equally sensational disclosures in furnishing proof that the McNamaras

EDISON HOME AGAIN, "AMERICA FOR ME," HE SAYS AFTER LONG TRIP

"The Statue of Liberty looks better to me than anything I've seen since I left."

BREEZY TALK

BROUGHT FROM EUROPE

BY THE WIZARD

"People on the other side are too thick. But at that they have all got our machinery."

"One great trouble is they are thinking too much about war—forts and guns everywhere and every one looking for spies."

"The Kaiser's a great hunter. Gets somewhere with a cannon—he whistles and they line up the game—he pulls the trigger and there you are."

Thomas A. Edison returned to-day from his first vacation in twenty-eight years aboard the Hamburg-American liner Amerika. He was accompanied by Mrs. Edison and their children, Madeline and Theodore. The wizard of Llewellyn Park said that when the Amerika came off the statue of Liberty he was so glad to see her that he could hardly restrain himself from popping his head out of the porthole of his stateroom to kiss her.

"She looks better to me," said Mr. Edison, "than anything I have seen since I left, and at that I have worn out three sets of rubbers. I went away with a pretty solemn column to support my head, but I've come back with a neck like a crane."

"What is my impression of the people on the other side? Well, I'll tell you. For the most part they are too thick—too wide; but at that they've all got American machinery. I've seen miles and miles of it. I saw one of the boys out of my laboratory over in Germany and he has charge of 10,000 men. There was another of my lads over there in charge of 10,000 men, but he's dead."

THEY ARE ALL LOOKING FOR SPIES.

"There's one great trouble with our brothers over the Atlantic; they're all thinking too much about war. Forts and guns everywhere and every one on the lookout for spies. The people on one side of a stream hate the people on the other side, and there you are. Give me America every time."

Asked what he thought of Kaiser Wilhelm as a sportsman the wizard laughed, chuckled for a few minutes and said:

"He's a great hunter. He gets out somewhere where it looks wild with a cannon. Then he whistles and they line the game up in front. The Kaiser pulls the trigger and there you are—all the game dead and all the people cheer. Yes, the Kaiser is a great sport. But he's the Kaiser, don't you know, and that makes a lot of difference."

"Now, Hottel's Jones is no idea of a real sportsman. He goes out and lasso 'em, lasso 'em till you're sick. No cannons with the game hitched to the muzzle for him. But there is one thing that I want to correct, that story about me saying that the German integrity in business was lower than the English integrity. That was not what I said, but what I heard at a German banquet. At least I heard the German integrity in business questioned by comparison with English methods. I guess the man who sent out the interview with me got things twisted a bit and it raised a awful rumour."

LIKES THE HOTELS ON THE OTHER SIDE.

"I certainly like the hotels they've got on the other side and they are much cheaper than ours; that is cheaper to visit at. Why I travelled like a millionaire and I didn't spend much money at that. Then the roads were wonderful. We don't know what good roads are over here. I motored 2,000 miles in France and found only two and a half miles of bad roads. As for rats you'll never find them deeper than two or three inches."

"The French are wonderful farmers. They work every inch of the land and get two and three crops where we get one. They are pretty shy on machinery, though. Germany is way ahead of them in that direction."

Asked for an opinion on the future of the aeroplane the inventor of the phonograph replied:

"I haven't made a very profound study of the aeroplane, but if you ask me about its value as a commercial possibility as a passenger carrier I can only say that it is still very shy."

MIST REVERSE THE PERCENTAGES.

"As the aeroplane sizes up now it is about 85 per cent. man and 15 per cent. aeroplane. When you get those percentages reversed you will have something of important commercial value. Now, I guess you'll have to excuse me, boys, as I've got to get back to that laboratory of mine and do its work. Not that I haven't worked my brain about every minute on this vacation, but it was new and refreshing, especially the getting home part."

Among Mr. Edison's fellow passengers on the Amerika was Henry P. Davison of the Mercury group of papers, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Miss Vixen, the society soprano, Felix M. Warburg and C. Dannebaum and Miss Kaufmann.

HILLTOPS' FINAL GAME OFF BECAUSE OF RAIN.

They made last year when they won 102 games. The team probably could have exceeded the record if it had had any great desire in that direction.

The champions next week will do a little barnstorming. With an "All-Star" team made up of American League players the Hilltops will play in Washington on Monday and Tuesday, in Richmond, Va., Wednesday, and in Philadelphia Thursday. The team will rest on Friday and probably leave for New York that afternoon.
