

RULES FOR WIVES
SEEKING THE WAY
TO HAPPINESS

Mme. Maeterlinck Evolves
"Ten Commandments" as Priestess of Harmony.

While the arrival of Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian author and philosopher, on these shores is still a matter of speculation—he having promised to baffle the American newspapers by slipping into the country uninvited and unphotographed—the arrival of his talented wife, Mme. Georgette Labiano Maeterlinck, is very well established.

The wife of the great playwright, poet, dramatist and sage, herself a famous singer, will prove one of the most interesting personalities that has visited our shores. She is a high priestess of the cult that preaches the perfect wifehood, and she has evolved a philosophy of her own for reaching that happy destiny in matrimony.

From this philosophy of hers Mme. Maeterlinck has torn ten burning precepts, which she calls a Wife's Ten Commandments. They are:

1. Remember always that the true wife is the inseparable half of the only complete human unit in which two small and imperfect individualities have become merged into a large and perfect one.
2. Each half of the wedded whole retains special functions; yours are to discern, to anticipate, to yield, to cheer, to soothe—and thus to strengthen.
3. Never trust to hirelings the essentials of your husband's physical well being; understand and frequently practice the art of selecting and preparing his food.
4. Be sure each day that his garments are whole and clean and suited to the season.
5. Constitute yourself an infallible barometer whereby to forecast and render harmless those electrical disturbances peculiar to the married state.
6. Be to your husband's dark moods the subtle, unsuspected antidote; to his joyous mood the companion spirit of joy.
7. Save your caresses until you perceive that his dinner has been without a flaw; kisses to a hungry man are like froth to a parched tongue.
8. Your tongue for assent; for argument use only your eyes.
9. When your husband has an attack of gout, depreciate the art of dancing.
10. If you would convince your husband that you are a better actress than Bernhardt, a better dancer than Pavlova, prove to him that you are a better cook than M. Escottier.

Blowing our own horn is permissible once in a while! The year just closing has been one of phenomenal growth with us. We have served more people in the year just closing than in any two years of our history.

We attribute it to the fact that our unusual eyeglass service is appreciated by the public and that it has not been slow to recognize our straightforward methods and our courteous, intelligent attention to the smallest details of our business.

Harris Glasses, whether they cost $2.00 or more, are Guaranteed to give you complete and lasting satisfaction.

Hobby Club Holds First Dinner and Men Who Can Afford Fads Talk of Them.
The Hobby Club held its first meeting and dinner in the Metropolitan Club last night with its President, Justice Victor J. Dowling, presiding. William M. Schultzer, originator of the idea and organizer of the club, told reporters that Hobbite William P. Trent, professor of English and literature at Columbia University, made the long address of the evening. He rode his favorite, which happens to be the works of De Poe.
Other hobbies made short informal addresses and plans for holding a clubhouse were discussed. The conversation during the dinner was entirely on the hobbies of those present. Every man talked about what interested him most and as there was no rate to prevent all talking at once, speakers were toady and auditors few.
Hobbites present were Darwin P. Kingsley, Felix Ingram, Albert Gallatin, Adrian H. Jones, who besides collecting automobiles has a hobby for writing cable letters to the Public Service Commission; H. R. Huntington, Theodore S. Van, Joan C. Tomlinson, John C. Tomlinson Jr., John G. Milburn, George A. Hampton, Edwin A. Seligman and John Quinn.
