his public audiences, generally attended by about one hundred and fifty persons. He is introduced to all and always has some suitable remark for each individual visitor.

THERE'LL NEVER BE BUT ONE POPE, SAYS CARDINAL.

"There is no need for an auxiliary Pope or an assistant Pope. There will never be but one Pope. As for His Holiness his mind is as bright as his eye and his eye is as bright as his morning. His motto is 'God will be done,' and he does not allow his great responsibilities to wear him down. He does not worry and his example should be profitable to the people of our country who worry too much.

"I bear a message from His Holiness to the people of the United States. It was delivered to me and my associates in the presence of an assemblage of some 1500 people.

"Since reaching Quarantine," concluded the Cardinal, "I have been asked many times if I am glad to get home. I wish you would say for me that I am glad to get home in capital letters."

As the Berlin made her way up the Bay the Cardinal went on deck and posed for the photographers. He said farewell in the meantime to one of his chums on the voyage, three-year-old Roger Wood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wood of Los Angeles. To commemorate the parting young Mr. Wood presented the Cardinal with two pieces of reasonable stinky candy which His Eminence accepted with due solemnity.

The side swept the Berlin poorly in docking at Hoboken and Cardinal Farley stood on the bridge for half an hour watching with interest the execution of the commands given by the captain and his officers. As soon as the Berlin was fast to the dock the reception committee from New York went aboard.

CARDINAL HAD LUNCHEON WITH WELCOMING COMMITTEE.

With the reception committee there went aboard the Berlin Cardinal Farley's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Farley of Brooklyn and her four children. Luncheon was served on the Berlin to the committee, the Cardinal and his suite. At noon Cardinal Farley left the liner to board the steamer Rosedale, which was waiting at the end of the pier with a large assembly of clergy and laymen aboard.

The Cardinal gained the pier by way of a special gangplank decorated with the papal colors and American flags. From the foot of the gangplank to the end of the pier, a distance of 160 yards, a broad strip of soft crimson carpet was stretched and this marked the path of the party to the Rosedale.

The Rosedale was scheduled to arrive at Pier A from Hoboken with the Cardinal and the reception committee on board at 12:30 o'clock. Battery Park's open spaces were jammed with spectators. About 100,000 people were estimated to have gathered in the open spaces waving American and papal flags.

From Pier A into Battery Park, a space about 300 yards long and 50 yards wide was roped off for the passage of the Cardinal and his party to the waiting automobiles and carriage. Lined up along Greenwich street were 120 automobiles that had been provided for the committee. Cardinal Farley's carriage was at the end of the roped off space leading from the pier.

It had been feared that cold weather would interfere with the plan to have Cardinal Farley ride uptown in an open carriage. But, at the time he landed, the sun was shining brightly, and the air was almost mild. He was bundled up in a great, heavy scarlet coat and the fur coat presented to him by the reception committee on the Be in was at hand to add to his comfort.

Receiving the Cardinal's carriage was a mounted detail from the Catholic Club. The members of this detail were scarlet sashes and furnished the only detail of color in the long line of vehicles outside of the brilliant scarlet robes of the Cardinal.

GREETINGS EVERYWHERE ON TRIP DOWN THE HUDSON.

On the trip down the river from Hoboken aboard the Rosedale Cardinal Farley got his first idea of the magnitude of the reception that awaited him. Floating from the Bagatella of all the downtown skyscrapers he saw American flags. Passing river craft loudly saluted the Rosedale. From the windows of buildings alongshore flags and handkerchiefs fluttered. The sun, which had been obscured by clouds for some time previous to noon, came out brightly and warmed up the air.

Among those waiting to greet the Cardinal at the Battery was Father Henry of the Irish Immigrant Girls' Home. He called to mind an occurrence of fifty years ago, which, in contrast with today's reception, marks a gross step forward in the growth of religious freedom.

"Fifty years ago," said Father Henry, "the Know Nothing of those times were threatening to burn down St. Patrick's Cathedral in Court street, and the clergy organized a guard of citizens to protect the edifice. It was then seen that the nation was in a bad way. A great cheer greeted the Cardinal as he appeared in Battery Park. Moving picture operators who had been taking photographs of the crowd trained their cameras on the Cardinal and his escort. The pictures showing his homecoming will be displayed in theatres all over the country and in scores of cities abroad.

Cardinal Farley's carriage, carrying beside the Cardinal, Bishop Cusack, Mr. Mooney and Justice Dowling, with its long, trailing escort of automobiles, left the Battery at 1:05 o'clock. The crowd in Battery Park was immense, but the police arrangements were perfect and there was no disorder. It was then seen that the reception to Cardinal Farley would rank in size of the welcoming crowds the homecoming of Col. Theodore Roosevelt from his hunter trip in Africa.

However, the demeanor of the crowd was different to-day. Col. Roosevelt was wildly cheered. There were cheers for Cardinal Farley, but generally the men in the scarlet lining of the sidewalks contented themselves with respectfully doffing their hats and the women bowed their heads to receive the blessing from the Cardinal.

Proceeding the open victoria in which the Cardinal rode were fifty automobiles carrying the members of the different parishes of the Episcopate. Following the carriage were 50 automobiles bearing the clergy of the diocese and visiting clergy.

In lower Broadway, while the crowds were dense, there was little cheering after the Cardinal left Battery Park. His Eminence was greatly interested in the local scene of the Equitable Building and expressed deep sympathy with the family of Battalion Chief Walsh.

At City Hall Park a band was stationed. The strains of "America" greeted the arrival of the Cardinal's carriage and a rousing cheer echoed back from the Broadway skyscrapers. The boys of La Salle School were lined up at Third street and Broadway. Their shrill, enthusiastic cheering brought a broad smile to the face of the Cardinal. But the real ringing cheering did not begin until Madison Square was reached.

From Madison Square north in Fifth avenue the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Irish County Societies had possession of the sidewalks and crossings. Their welcome was characteristically enthusiastic.

Cardinal Farley was touched when at Thirty-seventh street and Fifth avenue he encountered hundreds of members of St. Gabriel's parish, Thirty-seventh street and Second avenue, to which he was assigned when a young priest. He removed his red hat when passing that corner and kept it off until he had passed the last of his old flock.

The progress of the parade was slow. An hour and forty minutes was consumed in the trip from the Battery to Fifth street. Thousands of those who saw the start at the Battery or the passage of the parade through lower Broadway hurried uptown on the Sixth and Third avenue "L" lines and descended upon the already overcrowded district surrounding the Cathedral.

It is estimated that there were some 100,000 people in the vicinity of the cathedral. Inspector McLooney and 50 policemen had all they could do to handle the throng, especially after the doors of the church were closed when the seating capacity had been exhausted. Thousands stormed the front of the church and the police were compelled to charge to make way for the arriving procession.

While the Cardinal's carriage was yet half a mile away from the Cathedral the Catholic Order of Knights, under the direction of Mrs. Selma Kennedy, began a song message of greeting. These were in English, in the society, and the volume of their voices reached the Cardinal as he neared the Cathedral.

POLICE HAD DIFFICULTY HOLDING CROWD NEAR CHURCH.

The vicinity of the Cathedral was packed with Catholics eager to obtain a glimpse of the Cardinal. Here the police had considerable difficulty in handling the crowd, which was about 75 per cent feminine. Despite the watchfulness of mounted officers, women would break through the line and others would try to follow the Cardinal.

"Grouped at the front of the Cathedral were 1500 school children and 500 priests. As the Cardinal's carriage arrived the children began a song 'Welcome to Our Cardinal.' His Eminence was met at the door of the edifice and escorted within by the New York members of the Order of St. Gregory, the Knights of the Order of St. Gregory the Great.

At the door of the Cathedral the Cardinal was vested in the Capta stanga, one of the sacred signs of his office. The ceremony presided over by the church for centuries for the reception of Cardinals was followed.

Mrs. McGowan of a Fifth in Barclay street, the senior citizen of the diocese, delivered the address of welcome. The Cardinal bowed replied. Then the Blessed Sacrament was exposed while the Cardinal knelt on the steps of the high altar and De Beum was chanted by the clergy and the seminary. Mrs. Lavelle, rector of the Cathedral pronounced the benediction and the final ceremonies of welcome were concluded.

HOW THE SOCIETIES LINE UP FOR WELCOME.

The police arrangements were made without consideration for the weather. Commissioner Waldo, anticipating a great crowd in Broadway and Fifth avenue from the Battery to Fifteenth street, carried on his plans for a police force along the line of march of 1400 policemen, sixty-five sergeants, forty-three lieutenants, twenty-two captains and eight inspectors. The police details were in charge of the Commissioner, First Deputy Commissioner McKay and Chief Inspector Behmelterger.

That order would be assured in the arranged plan of reception, the various societies lining part in the reception were assigned to specific locations along the route of the Cardinal's procession. These assignments were as follows:

Catholic Benevolent League, St. Vincent de Paul Societies and Catholic Engineers' Club, from the Battery to Exchange place. Capt. W. Hallahan, marshal.

The Italian Societies, from Exchange place to Worth street. Capt. P. J. Maguire, marshal.

The Italian Societies, from Exchange place to Worth street. Capt. P. J. Maguire, marshal.

Holy Name Societies, from churches north of Houston street, and from out of town churches, Union Square to Madison Square, on both sides of Broadway. Col. Hugh O'Donoghue, marshal.

German Societies, Houston street to Union Square. Major E. J. Winterstroth, marshal.

Holy Name Societies, from churches north of Houston street, and from out of town churches, Union Square to Madison Square, on both sides of Broadway. Col. Hugh O'Donoghue, marshal.

Ancient Order of Hibernians on the east side of Fifth avenue from Madison Square to Forty-sixth street. Major John J. Byrne, marshal.

Catholic Club Public Library, Mr. M. J. Mulqueen, marshal.

The following societies with Capt. Martin O'Rourke as marshal, will form on Fifth avenue north of Forty-sixth street:

County Longford Society and County Down Society, Forty-sixth street to Forty-seventh street, east side.

Brownson Catholic Club, Forty-seventh street to Forty-eighth street, east side.

Fordham University, Forty-eighth street to Forty-ninth street, east side.

At Pier No. 2 of the North German Lloyd everything was in readiness. A strip of red carpet was laid from the roped-off portion of the pier to the gangway of the Rosedale.

All along the rail were the prominent figures in Catholic life in New York, as well as representatives from all over the United States. As the Cardinal appeared, frail and white, in his magnificent red robes trimmed with gold and walked slowly up the incline, a shout, heartfelt and mighty, rose on all sides.

CATHOLIC ORPHANS PLAY "HOME, SWEET HOME."

The band of 75 boys from the Catholic Orphan Asylum played "Home Sweet Home" as the Cardinal passed through the throng on the wharf to where a throne chair had been placed for him. With the Cardinal passed his suite, which had accompanied him to Rome.

Almost the first to greet the returning Prince of the Church were his four nephews, Philip Farley, Deputy Fire Commissioner of Brooklyn, Joseph Farley, Edward Farley and Peter Farley.

The Cardinal's other nephew, Father John Farley, S. J. of Fordham College, had accompanied the Cardinal to Rome. Fordham College students on the upper deck of the Rosedale greeted his appearance with the regulation college yell, which they also delivered to his Eminence as he passed.

Established on his temporary throne, the Cardinal received the homage of the five hundred on the Rosedale. Forning in line, they kissed his bare papal ring, kissing his bare papal ring, the gift of Pope Pius.

Cardinal Farley's return was marked by the grandest demonstration. He looked and held light, friendly conversation with all who stood around him. Particularly free was his demeanor to Capt. Harranowitz of the Berlin, to whom he gave a receipt signed by the Catholics of New York, as evidence that the captain had delivered one perfectly good Cardinal safe and sound.

The Cardinals robes were the same of splendor. They were trimmed with gold braid. His shoes were black, with buckles of gold and from his neck hung a large golden cross studded with immense emeralds.

The Cardinal was particularly cordial to Signor Merry del Val, brother of the Papal Secretary, who was on hand to greet him.

At the request of the newspaper photographers, the Cardinal consented to go up on the upper deck and stand in the biting wind while the cameras clicked. It was only when members of the committee warned him of the danger of catching cold that the white-haired ruler of the million and a half Catholics of New York went down where it was warmer.

As the Rosedale neared the Battery the Cardinal went again on the upper deck to gaze at the throngs who examined the park waiting to welcome him. As soon as his red robes and papal ring and gold gaiters had been seen from the shore, a cheer stung all over the city.

same evening at the Catholic Club, No. 139 Central Park South. Invitations to this have been issued to all the prelates of the diocese as well as to national, State and civil officials. This reception will be noteworthy from the fact that the Cardinal will appear in scarlet and the Archbishops, Bishops and Monsignori will wear their robes.

Thomas F. Ryan was prevented by a severe cold from taking part in the welcome to Cardinal Farley. Mr. Ryan is a member of the committee of welcome and had hoped to go to the dock at Hoboken, but his doctor insisted that he remain indoors.

ALBANY, Jan. 17.—The Legislature today congratulated Cardinal Farley on being elevated to the Cardinalate. Assemblyman Cuvillier introduced the resolution and an engrossed copy will be sent to the Cardinal.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL SAILS FOR BOSTON

NAPLES, Jan. 17.—Cardinal O'Connell sailed this afternoon for Boston aboard the steamer Canopic. He was escorted to the pier by a large number of church dignitaries and laymen. The Cardinal thanked his friends for the courtesy they had shown him during his visit in Naples and assured them that his stay here would always be one of his fondest memories.

WANTS ROBIN'S TESTIMONY.

Justice Irvin W. Lehman in the Supreme Court today issued a writ of habeas corpus directing the warden of the Tombs to produce Joseph G. Robin, the convicted banker, in Part II of the Supreme Court on Jan. 22.

The writ was issued on the application of Anthony Stumpf, who desires the former banker's testimony in a suit brought by Stumpf against Robin, James M. Clifford, Frederick K. Merritt and the City Development Company growing out of the sale of the old Morris Park race course by Robin to the Development Company.

Stumpf says he advanced $10,000 to Robin to swing the deal and that his share of the profits amounted to something like $6,000. Stumpf says that he received neither the $10,000 nor his original loan of $10,000.

COMMISSIONER WALDO GIVES THE CITY'S GREETING.

The city was represented by Police Commissioner John E. Walsh in the absence of Mayor Gaynor. Major-General Barry, Commissioner at West Point, also greeted the newly created Cardinal.

One of the first to welcome His Eminence after the docking was Mr. Alderman of Philadelphia, a classmate of the Cardinal forty years ago in Rome. Mr. Kierman brought the best wishes of the clergy and laity of Philadelphia.

When the reception committee had taken place in the waiting automobiles, word was sent to the Cardinal, who was chatting with his escort, Capt. George C. Hebers of the police boat patrol, which had conveyed the Rosedale, clearing the waterway, and Detective Lieutenant Michael W. Collins, John J. Hennessy and James J. Cronin, who had been assigned by Inspector Hughes as a special escort.

Quickly the Cardinal left the steamer and entered his open carriage, which was waiting on the closed dock. With his head bare, except for the red skull cap or zucchetto, Cardinal Farley passed out of the dock into the open park where the thousands who had stood for hours waiting, greeted him with wild cheering and waving flags. The police escort was ready and the procession from the Battery began.
