The British Government has been trying to bring the miners and coal owners together, but has not yet succeeded, and it is thought probable that as a final measure a minimum wage bill for miners will have to be introduced in the House of Commons.

SOUTHAMPTON, March 11.—The American liner St. Paul, which was due to sail for New York on March 2, and the White Star liner Oceanic, due to sail for the same destination on March 7, have been withdrawn from service in consequence of the British coal strike.

most tactful, seeing the child had answered the same question probably a hundred times since the flight. But Kingstand is extremely polite.

"No, this," he replied, standing with feet wide apart and rocking back and forth like a miniature of his father. "I wouldn't be afraid anywhere with my 'dad-dad.' He always used to promise me a ride when he had the one with the wheels, but I like the one with the boats better. I was going once with Mr. Hestonny only there was too much alk."

"How does it feel to fly?" "It makes you light all over like when you go quick in the elevator, and it takes your breath. But it's great."

"Fear is entirely lacking in his make-up. So much is evident at once in his frank, direct gaze, with the slight narrowing of the eyes, the smile as his father, whom he imitates with solemn seriousness."

"How high do you want to go next time?" The young man pondered a moment, then, "As far-up as I can, unless we meet them barnabrooks."

"The what?" asked the puzzled reporter.

"That's what my Dad-dad calls them—barnabrooks."

"That he hung his head a moment and a look of regret entered."

"You're going to be an aviator, like your father, aren't you?" asked the reporter.

"The Littlest Aviator" shook his head.

"No, this," he replied, "I thought that but it ain't enough fun. I talked it over with my 'dad-dad' and he said to be a thailor-on a tugboat—so I can carry big ropes."

And there you see! A sad blow to aviation, because his mind after the next flight around Miss Liberty.

CARNEGIE ADMITS HE HELPED PAY FOR ROOSEVELT'S HUNT.

HOT SPRING, Ark., March 11.—Andrew Carnegie contributed money to help defray expenses involved in Col. Roosevelt's African expedition, but the contribution was made after Mr. Carnegie had talked to Col. Wolcott of the Smithsonian Institution. Col. Roosevelt never asked Mr. Carnegie to contribute for any purpose.

Such information is contained in a statement made here today by Mr. Carnegie. He does not say what sum he contributed.

BAG DRAGS HER TO DEATH.

A woman about sixty years old was killed late this afternoon by a Broadway car at Atlantic and Jamaica avenues, East New York. The woman, the railroad officials say, was passing behind one Broadway car as it was turning into Jamaica avenue when her handbag caught in the fender, pulling her to the ground. Before any one could get to her rescue another Broadway car came down the opposite direction ran over her.

She was carried to a nearby store, but Dr. Walenta of the Bushwick Hospital said she had been instantly killed. In her handbag were several papers which bore the name of Amelia Keder of No. 120 Railroad avenue, Jamaica.

AMUNDSEN'S DOGS COOKED FOR FOOD AT XMAS FEAST

South Pole Discoverer and Party Returned Fatter Than on Departure.

NO TRIALS ON TRIP.

Only Hardship Climb Over Icy Mountains and in Breathing Rarefied Air.

LONDON, March 11.—Added details, called by Roald Amundsen, from Hobart, Tasmania, serve to establish that the voyage of discovery to the South Pole was in the nature of a jaunt. Practically no hardships were experienced by the adventurous explorers except in the high altitudes, where they had difficulty in breathing. Amundsen says he shares the credit of being the first to reach the South Pole with his dogs. He brought back eleven of these hardy animals with him. The rest were sacrificed on the way for food for the other dogs and the men. The piece of resistance, so to speak, of the Christmas dinner of the exploring party, eaten at no great distance from the South Pole, was dog stew.

According to Amundsen, the flesh of the Esquimaux dog is palatable and nutritious. Only one of the dogs that started out for the South Pole from the headquarters became sick. This one showed signs of distemper and was immediately put to death and buried in a str of snow.

THREE DOGS RAN AWAY AND FORAGED IN DEPOT.

Later three dogs broke away from the party and scampered back to where the carcasses of their former teammate had been buried. They unearthed it and ate most of it, and also broke into one of the supply depots and consumed a box of pemmican and other food. Amundsen does not state whether these dogs were recovered.

Possibly, even with the aid of his equipment of strong, healthy dogs, which were able to pull the sledges at the rate of from fifteen to twenty miles a day, Amundsen would have failed to reach the pole but for the favorable weather. He happened to set out from his last camp for the final dash just as the spring season became settled. At no time after that was the cold severe, and the gales which perpetually sweep over the Antarctic regions were moderate at their force.

Because of the mild weather he encountered Amundsen is disposed to believe that Capt. Scott, the English explorer, also reached the pole. He found no signs of Capt. Scott's party, however, but says that does not indicate failure on the part of the English explorer.

Amundsen thinks that if Capt. Scott preceded him to the Pole he would have left some memorial of his achievement. The air was still during the four days Amundsen and his men spent at and around the Pole, and signs of a party having previously been there would probably have remained. Capt. Scott, in Amundsen's opinion, reached the Pole, if he was successful, after the Norwegian expedition had started north.

the sea, but in reaching it the explorers had to surmount ice peaks considerably higher. In these climbs they suffered from the effects of the light air, coupled with the terrific exertion of dragging their sledges of supplies up almost perpendicular cliffs.

The explorer says that his men and his dogs and himself were always hungry on the outward journey from the main depot, although they were on what is called in Arctic exploration full rations. But what might be full rations ordinarily are not sufficient in bitter cold, when exertion of an exhausting nature is the rule.

DOG MEAT IS FINE WHEN NO OTHER FOOD IS AROUND, SAYS PEARY.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—"Dog meat is delicious—sometimes." Such was the comment to-day, with a reminiscent grimace, of Admiral Robert E. Peary, North Pole discoverer, upon the eating of his dogs by Antarctic Explorer Amundsen.

"For flavor and bouquet it doesn't compare with a tenderloin steak," said Admiral Peary, "but dog meat is fine when you're cold and hungry and have nothing else to eat."

Working his large, square jaws realistically, Peary continued: "Really, dog meat isn't so bad, but a bite from the hind leg of a sledge dog rivals a chunk of gutta percha. There's nothing tougher on earth. No dog meat is not fried, as a rule; it's boiled and then boiled. But it can be compared in flavor to bear meat or that of any carnivorous animal. Of course, it is nothing like meat of grass-eating animals."

"I've eaten dog meat many times on most all of my trips. And every other explorer has probably done the same. Meat can be carried on the hoof that way. The dogs are useful to draw the sledges until they are needed for the men and for the dogs retained."

COURT DECISION ON PATENTS SPLITS SUPREME BENCH

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A far-reaching decision upholding the right of patentees to absolutely dictate how their patented articles may be sold by retailers and declaring legal the inventor's "monopoly" in his selling contracts was made by the Supreme Court of the United States to-day.

It was a divided court ruling, for against this majority view, announced by Justice Lurton, three members of the bench—Chief Justice White and Justices Hughes and Lamar—dissented. Attorney-General Wickersham, Solicitor-General Lehmann and a large assembly of lawyers were present in the court and apparently regarded the decision as epoch-making.

Chief Justice White declared that Congress should act to head off "untold evils" that would follow to-day's construction of the present laws. He said that under the majority's ruling the patent laws could be stretched so as to include in a patent every conceivable thing used in every American household.

The Chief Justice arraigned the majority opinion as breaking all precedents, the court in its past history never having failed to do its duty to the whole people and to stand as the protector of every household.

In the dissenting opinion, Chief Justice White said:

"The ruling now made in effect is that the patentee has the power by contract to extend his patent rights, so as to bring them within the claims of his patent, things which are not embraced therein, thus virtually legislating, by causing the patent laws to cover subjects to which, without the exercise of the right of contract, they could not reach, the result being to multiply monopolies at the will of an interested party and to destroy the jurisdiction of State courts over subjects which have been in the beginning within their authority."

"The effect of the ruling is to make the virtual legislative authority of the owner of a patented machine extend to every human being in society."

"Take a patented cooking utensil. The power is now recognized to bind by contract one who buys utensils to use it in connection with no other food supply but that sold by the patentee."

"The illustrations might be multiplied indefinitely. They are not imaginary. 'If it be that so extraordinary a power is granted to a patentee, it should, like every other power, be subject to the law of the land.'

"My mind cannot shake off the dread of the vast extension of practices which every human being in society, who I submit, can put a limit upon the monopoly and wrongful restriction which will arise if by such power a contract, otherwise void and against public policy, may be successfully maintained."

SENATOR WORKS HITS TAFT HARD IN SPEECH.

Talks of "Humiliating Spectacle of President Travelling about Urging His Own Re-Election."

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Senator Works of California, in a speech advocating a single Presidential term of six years, to-day declared that such a constitutional change would spare the American people the "humiliating spectacle of a President travelling up and down the country guarded by an army officer and private detectives, making political speeches and urging his own re-election."

"It was an unfortunate day for this country when one of its distinguished, honorable and well beloved citizens inaugurated the system, as a candidate for President, of receiving delegates at his home and discussing political questions, ostensibly for their information, but in fact to be sent broadcast throughout the country. That was the beginning of an evil and wholly inexcusable custom, by which the great office of President of the United States was brought down to the level of self-seeking politics and personal appeals for office."

Sheehan says he did not report for duty until after the Bay Ridge had docked following her delayed trip.

HERE WAS REAL HUNG JURY.

Courts Blocked While Jurymen Were Suspended in Elevator.

Half a dozen parts of the Supreme Court were seriously hampered this afternoon when one of the elevators in the County Court House stuck between two floors. A score of persons were in the elevator, mostly jurors, and several cases on trial were held up twenty minutes.

Something went wrong with the elevator between the first and second floors. All the courts on the third floor of the court house were convened promptly at 2 o'clock, and the Judges were fuming and fretting over the delay of jurors, when some one informed them of the accident. Meeting the engineers and others about the building got busy and finally managed to start the elevator. The jurors who were imprisoned in the big car cheered joyously when they were held.

Ex-Judge Roesch told Justice Seabury that he had been retained by Montali on Saturday and had no opportunity to talk with his client.

T. R.'S BOOMERS CAN'T GET HIM PLACE ATOP TICKET.

Justice Bijur Refuses to Place Roosevelt Delegates Contrary to Election Board's Plan.

The Roosevelt forces met another obstacle to-day, and unless they can find a new interpretation of the Election law, it is more than likely the emblem of the square, under which the names of the Colonel's Presidential delegates will appear, will be about three feet from the top of the ticket. It will, of course, follow the regular party emblems.

Congressman Bennet, Chairman of the Roosevelt Executive Committee, asked Justice Bijur, in the Supreme Court to-day, to direct the Board of Elections to place the names of Presidential delegates at the top of the ballot to be used at the primaries. He declared the intention of the Legislature was to arrange the names of committees and delegations in the order of their importance, although he admitted the Election law made no specific mention of Presidential delegates.

"In the section of the law to which you refer," said Justice Bijur, "I find no warrant for my interpolating names which the Legislature failed to mention. Unless you can show me some better interpretation, I shall not do so. It is reasonable to assume the Legislature did not forget there are Presidential delegates and intentionally gave the Board of Elections power to select their place on the ballot."

Justice Bijur expressed the opinion that the Board of Elections had exceeded its power by placing the Congressional delegates at the top of the ticket.

CAR GOES INTO GROCERY.

Leaves Tracks in Williamsburg and Several Persons Are Hurt.

A Bushwick avenue car bound toward Ridewood from Williamsburg Bridge and going at high speed ran off tracks to-day at Marcy avenue and South Fourth street, Williamsburg. The motorman, Joseph Clark, of No. 22 Stanhope street, was trying to make up lost time. A misplaced switch frog threw the forward truck off the track.

The car slanted across the northeast corner of the street, and with a tremendous crash tore into the front of the grocery store of Joseph Stephens. All the windows of the car were broken. The eighteen passengers were hurled to the front of the car.

Clark was badly cut and bruised about the face and hands; Samuel Schwartz of No. 359 Bushwick avenue, Isaac Henig of No. 225 Henry street, Manhattan; Joseph Farkas of No. 10 South Sixth street, Williamsburg, and Samuel Slat of No. 45 Grand street, Williamsburg, were attended by Dr. Hillenstein of the Eastern District Hospital and sent home.
