

PRETTY STOWAWAY ON KAISER MET AT PIER BY HUSBAND

Mrs. de Golger, Young, Plump and Fashionably Attired, Had No Ticket.

HER STORIES CONFLICT.

If There Had Been Room She Would Have Been Put in Steerage.

"Stowaway" was written opposite the name of one of the women passengers of Kaiser's list of those who came to port to-day on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, she was Mrs. Jeanne Berchard de Golger and she was in the second cabin. The only reason she was not in the steerage was because 874 passengers were already there and there was no room for her.

Mrs. de Golger did not look like the usual stowaway. She was stylishly dressed and wore a big picture hat. Furthermore she was rather plump, whereas stowaways are supposed generally to be thin and shabby. She had two flashing eyes and, according to the shipping news reporter, was "a very attractive looking young woman."

She boarded the vessel the day it sailed from Cherbourg and as soon as she was there went to the Purser's office and asked for a letter, explaining that she expected it to contain her ticket to New York. But there was no letter there for her. When she said she had missed her husband in Europe and was greatly distressed.

The purser was a polite man, but there was only one thing for him to do, so he classed her as a stowaway and tried to accommodate her in the steerage.

HUSBAND MEETS HER AT THE PIER.

On the way up from Quarantine to-day she was taken before the immigration authorities. Then began her conflicting stories. She said she was twenty-three years old, that she was born and bred in New York, and that she was bound for the home of Mrs. J. C. Van Kemp, at No. 131 East Seventy-sixth street. Her husband, she added, was born in Atlanta.

At the pier, when the Kaiser docked, Mrs. de Golger's husband, Richard, met her. They were evidently largely glad to see each other. She explained her predicament and he hustled off to get the money for her passage.

Mrs. de Golger told an Evening World reporter that her husband was a composer and that she had come to Europe to meet him, asking him to join her in Paris. But he evidently did not get her cable message, because when she reached there she found he had already sailed for New York from Naples.

Then, in desperation, she went aboard the Kaiser. "I paid my fare," she added, but this was not in accordance with the statement of the purser, who said she told him she had received a telegram from her husband that her ticket would be found in a letter aboard ship. The purser said she did not show him this telegram.

The purser informed her he would have to hold her trunks, and now, if she cannot prove her American citizenship, she is bound for Ellis Island.

PRETTY, BUT "WORST" GIRL TOO BAD FOR REFORMERS.

Magistrate Sends Sixteen-Year-Old Incurable to Workhouse for Six Months.

Magistrate McGuire, in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, to-day committed sixteen-year-old Catherine Juergens of No. 3 Schaefer street, Brooklyn, to the workhouse for six months at the request of her parents.

The father declared that the girl was wayward and incurable. She was subject to fits of violent temper, when she beat her mother. She would not work and she would not go to school. She had been in the Brooklyn Training School for Girls, but proved so obstinate that she was sent home last October.

Mrs. M. G. Carter, superintendent of the training school, told Magistrate McGuire Catherine Juergens was the worst girl the institution had ever sheltered. She attacked her teachers, broke windows and smashed furniture. She also proved a bad influence upon the other girls.

Magistrate McGuire asked the girl if she had anything to say for herself, but she hung her head in sullen silence. She was attractively dressed and very pretty.

NEW YORKERS SEEKING CAPITAL FOR INVESTMENT PREFER THE WORLD AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM BECAUSE PERSONS WITH MONEY TO INVEST PREFER THE WORLD AS A GUIDE.

4,031 "REAL ESTATE," "BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES," AND "FINANCIAL" ADVERTISEMENTS WERE PRINTED LAST WEEK IN THE WORLD

317 More than in the Herald Could there be any better evidence of the World's circulation among the intellectual and moneyed classes than the above figures?

New Pilgrim's Progress—Everygirl Enters Enchanted Ground and Celestial City

Copyright, 1913, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York World).

PRISCILLA JOINS THE FRATERNITY OF PARK LOVERS

Findeth Much Joy In Love

HUSBAND MEETS HER AT THE PIER.

On the way up from Quarantine to-day she was taken before the immigration authorities. Then began her conflicting stories. She said she was twenty-three years old, that she was born and bred in New York, and that she was bound for the home of Mrs. J. C. Van Kemp, at No. 131 East Seventy-sixth street. Her husband, she added, was born in Atlanta.

At the pier, when the Kaiser docked, Mrs. de Golger's husband, Richard, met her. They were evidently largely glad to see each other. She explained her predicament and he hustled off to get the money for her passage.

Mrs. de Golger told an Evening World reporter that her husband was a composer and that she had come to Europe to meet him, asking him to join her in Paris. But he evidently did not get her cable message, because when she reached there she found he had already sailed for New York from Naples.

Then, in desperation, she went aboard the Kaiser. "I paid my fare," she added, but this was not in accordance with the statement of the purser, who said she told him she had received a telegram from her husband that her ticket would be found in a letter aboard ship. The purser said she did not show him this telegram.

The purser informed her he would have to hold her trunks, and now, if she cannot prove her American citizenship, she is bound for Ellis Island.

PRETTY, BUT "WORST" GIRL TOO BAD FOR REFORMERS.

Magistrate Sends Sixteen-Year-Old Incurable to Workhouse for Six Months.

Magistrate McGuire, in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, to-day committed sixteen-year-old Catherine Juergens of No. 3 Schaefer street, Brooklyn, to the workhouse for six months at the request of her parents.

The father declared that the girl was wayward and incurable. She was subject to fits of violent temper, when she beat her mother. She would not work and she would not go to school. She had been in the Brooklyn Training School for Girls, but proved so obstinate that she was sent home last October.

Mrs. M. G. Carter, superintendent of the training school, told Magistrate McGuire Catherine Juergens was the worst girl the institution had ever sheltered. She attacked her teachers, broke windows and smashed furniture. She also proved a bad influence upon the other girls.

Magistrate McGuire asked the girl if she had anything to say for herself, but she hung her head in sullen silence. She was attractively dressed and very pretty.

NEW YORKERS SEEKING CAPITAL FOR INVESTMENT PREFER THE WORLD AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM BECAUSE PERSONS WITH MONEY TO INVEST PREFER THE WORLD AS A GUIDE.

4,031 "REAL ESTATE," "BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES," AND "FINANCIAL" ADVERTISEMENTS WERE PRINTED LAST WEEK IN THE WORLD

317 More than in the Herald Could there be any better evidence of the World's circulation among the intellectual and moneyed classes than the above figures?

Priscilla Earneth Wisdom in Her Journeying To and Fro and Findeth Much to Rejoice Over When She Is Brought to a Realization of What True Love Is, a Good Description of Which Is Vouchsafed by Her Guide, Miss Worldly Wise Woman.

She Maketh Merry in Chat Napoleon Suffered Defeat at Waterloo, for the Reason That Little Faith's Great Grandfather Thereof Had to Come to America, and Thus It Was the Lovers Were Enabled to Meet and Become Enamored of Each Other.

NINTH ARTICLE OF A SERIES BY NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

By this time they were got to the Enchanted Ground, where was an Enchanted Arbor.

Now, as they walked in this land, they had more rejoicing, and drawing nearer to the city they had yet a more perfect view thereof.—Pilgrim's Progress.

Whether Worldly Wise Woman talked or whether Faint Heart spread the rumor throughout the publishing house where Priscilla and the others were employed, the news of the rescue of the Pilgrim from Doubting Castle by Little Faith, and the slaying of Giant Despair by Love, became generally known, and typewriters ceased to click and pens to scratch while the strange tidings were carried from one to another. And great was the marvel that it should have been Little Faith and not Faint Heart who demolished Doubting Castle and led the Pilgrim on to the Enchanted Ground and toward the Celestial City.

But why should a young girl like Priscilla prefer a disillusioned man of the world like Little Faith to a fine youth of the Enchanted Ground like Faint Heart? they asked each other and Worldly Wise Woman, and one day Worldly Wise Woman answered them, saying:

"It takes a kitten nine days to get its eyes open, but a man is thirty-five years at the same task. And she who weds a man of the world like Little Faith has taken unto herself a being as blind and helpless and playful and as universally affectionate as a new-born kitten."

"Priscilla is young, but she has learned many things upon her Progress, and of these it is to prefer a man who will take the trouble to make her acquaintance before making love to her. Faint Heart does not know Pilgrim."

NOT THE KIND OF LOVE A WOMAN WANTS.

"Even though he should love me as a human being, but only as a woman, and he would love her for her points of contact with other women, not for her points of difference, the things for which women care most to be loved. He knows that she has beautiful hair and star eyes and a primrose cheek and that would suffice him till he met star eyes of a greater magnitude. But Little Faith loves the Pilgrim for what she is, very much, perhaps, because he is a man, but still enough to make her feel that her brain is not a concealed weapon."

And even while the Friends of Little Faith and the Pilgrim were marvelling, these two who had found the Enchanted Arbor on the Enchanted Ground of Romance marvelled also and knew that suns had whirled and stars had danced, wars had been fought, nations crumbled, dynasties overthrown, all to the great purpose that they should meet.

Up to the point of her entry upon the Enchanted Ground the Pilgrim had always mourned the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo. Yet when Little Faith told her that his great grandfather was a Bonapartist who had emigrated to America as the result of the battle, what had seemed the greatest catastrophe of history justified itself. For if Napoleon had won the battle, Little Faith's great grandfather would never have migrated to America and Priscilla and Little Faith might never have met.

And so all other happenings, great and small—Priscilla's orphan state, her poverty, her coming to New York, the trials of her Pilgrimage, all the little joys and little sorrows and humiliations

THE REASON FOR NAPOLEON'S DEFEAT AT LAST EXPLAINED

Lillian Lorraine has dropped "Over the River" and is now humming the refrain of a new ditty entitled "Over the Ocean to Carlsbad." The departure of the fair one from her position as the supplementary feature of the Eddie Foy company at the Globe Theatre followed closely the announcement last Tuesday of her hasty marriage in Jersey City with Frederick Greshelmer, a wealthy real estate man of Chicago.

LILLIAN LORRAINE PHONES THEATRE SHE'S QUIT STAGE

Took 'Em All Unawares by Announcement She Was Sailing Soon on Honeymoon.

Lillian Lorraine has dropped "Over the River" and is now humming the refrain of a new ditty entitled "Over the Ocean to Carlsbad." The departure of the fair one from her position as the supplementary feature of the Eddie Foy company at the Globe Theatre followed closely the announcement last Tuesday of her hasty marriage in Jersey City with Frederick Greshelmer, a wealthy real estate man of Chicago.

In fact, the management of the company was taken unawares when Miss Lorraine's sweet tones wafted over the telephone yesterday.

"Good-by," she said; "I'm not going to act any more. I'm packing up to go to Europe on my honeymoon."

So Miss Mae Busch—the beautiful Lillian's understudy—was hastily rehearsed and played both matinee and night performances, and at this writing is scheduled to continue the part. Meanwhile Miss Lorraine's charming apartment at the Nevada is the scene of bustling activity. Her Louis Quinco chairs and bird's-eye-view maple piano were being groomed for storage when an Evening World reporter dropped in to-day to find out if it were really, really true that Miss Lorraine was going to leave dramatic art flat.

"Yes," she said, happily, "I'm through with the stage—for a while, anyway. Mr. Greshelmer and I are sailing very soon. I'm going to Carlsbad flat."

"Why Carlsbad?" ventured the reporter, for indeed Miss Lorraine appeared to be far from the need of medical treatment of any sort whatever.

"Oh, I have contracted rheumatism in my right arm from shaking hands with all the people who wanted to congratulate me," was the smiling answer.

NEW RIVER TUBE PART OF SUBWAY ROUTE APPROVED

Service Commission Sends Brooklyn End of System to Estimate Board.

The Whitehall street-East River-Montague street subway route as planned, and which includes a tunnel connection between Manhattan and Brooklyn for the dual system of subways, was approved by the Public Service Commission to-day and forwarded to the Board of Estimate for its approval.

Starting at Morris street, Manhattan, near the intersection of Trinity place and Greenwich street, the route runs under private property and Broadway to and under Whitehall street, thence under the East River to Montague street, Brooklyn, and under Montague street to or near Court street. At the Brooklyn end connection can be had with the rapid transit routes embraced in the proposed new system affecting both boroughs. The new route will hook up at the Manhattan end with the Broadway-Lexington avenue or Seventh avenue subway.

The new route will be a two-track subway for the entire length except that in Whitehall street there may be two additional tracks for terminals for part of the service. The tunnels in Broadway, Whitehall and Montague streets will be deep enough to pass under the present subway and to meet the requirements of the United States Government as to the crossings under the East River.

$25 FOR LIFE BLOOD FINDS EIGHT EAGER TO MAKE BARGAIN

Boy Among Those Who Plead for Price Set by Hospital.

ALL NEED THE MONEY.

Mysterious Applicant Makes His Terms as in Business Transaction.

MAN, strong, healthy, in the blood for twenty years, offered to sell his blood for $25. A. N. Spector, superintendent, 138 St. St.

Usually the man who offers the radial artery of his wrist to be severed that his strong blood may save life is called a hero, and the sacrifice is idealized because the motive is love. But the eight solemn-faced men who mounted the steps of Mar Moriah Hospital to-day in answer to this "ad" entertained no such motives. Beside each as they entered the hospital walked necessity and the will to live, which justified risking life to support life.

The eight men were examined by Dr. A. N. Spector. Standing before him, they gave their names and addresses and signified their willingness to undergo the operation.

BOY PLEADS FOR SACRIFICE, HIS NEED GREAT.

There was fear in their faces and a tightening of the lips after answering, but they needed the $25 more than they feared the operation and all prepared for the blood test.

Six of the applicants were in the thirties, one was fifty-eight and one little more than a boy. The youth made a pathetic appeal to be selected. Drawing the superintendent aside he whispered:

"Get this for me please, doctor. I need the money. I'll do it for less than the others. I haven't eaten for nearly two days, but I'll be all right by to-morrow if I get some food. Then you can go ahead with the operation."

The plea was refused because of the youth's weakened condition and with tears in his eyes he walked silently to the street. The most promising subject, a man about thirty-five years old, had evidently seen better days. His clothes were shabby, but

Physicians Agree On Internal Baths

The most enlightened physicians, including many of the greatest specialists, are recommending and prescribing the use of the J. B. L. Cascade, Nature's own Cure for Constipation.

It keeps the lower intestine sweet and clean and eliminates all poisons in the waste which it contains.

Otherwise these poisons are distributed throughout the body; this weakens the whole system, makes us dull and bilious, and even brings on serious complaints.

The J. B. L. Cascade clears the colon of all waste, and is shown by all Biker-Brogan Drug Stores in New York and Brooklyn.

Ask for booklet, "Why Man of To-day Is Only 80% Efficient."

Advertisement for Steinberg's Millinery. Includes text: "6th Ave., Cor. 18th St. Steinberg's For Friday & Saturday Sensational Sale of Millinery At Prices Half Asked Elsewhere. Ask for any shape, any straw, any color you have in mind—the newest Tans, Prince of Wales and Berbes—and out of this overwhelming big stock you can pick the very hat you want." Lists various hat styles and prices.

Advertisement for New York Rug Co. Includes text: "Send for Booklet NEW YORK RUG CO. 65 East 59th St. New York City. Telephone 2-1111. Free Catalogue." Also includes a small illustration of a rug.

Advertisement for American Lady Corsets. Includes text: "Have You Seen Them? We want you to see the latest models in American Lady Corsets. They represent the last word in corsetry, conforming to the final dictates of Spring Parisian fashions in every detail. These models of American Lady Corsets are built on the long, straight lines, giving the smart low bust, the modish long hip and back of the present vogue. Every American Lady model is a form builder. They make figures for thousands. They will for you. Ask to see the new styles." Lists model numbers and prices.

Advertisement for Women's Neckwear. Includes text: "Women's Neckwear At 'The Linen Store' At $3.00 to 8.00—Hand-embroidered Madras Collars and Sets. At $3.50 to 18.00—Hand-embroidered Batiste and Sheer Linen large Collars and Fichus. At 50c to $5.00—Hand-embroidered Dutch Collars. $1.00 to 15.00—Hand-embroidered Dutch Sets. At 50c to $2.50—Yokes and Chemisette of Net and Shadow Laces. 50c to $8.00—Hand-embroidered and Lace-trimmed Jabots. At $3.00 to $12.50—Real Irish Crochet Yokes. At $5.00 to $25.00—Real Irish Collars and Sets." Lists various styles and prices.

Advertisement for Tetley's Tea. Includes text: "Every Package tells a story of Purity and Pleasure. TETLEY'S TEA INDIA AND CEYLON." Includes an illustration of a tea box.