

THE NEW IRELAND. IRISH REVIVAL MOVES SLAVELIKE CONDITIONS IN THE FACTORY CENTRES

Industries Fostered at Fair Dun Emer Are Carried On in Neat Surroundings With Surprisingly Good Returns.

BY MARY SYNON. Special Commissioner to Ireland for the Gaelic League of America.

(Special Correspondence of the Evening World.) Third of the series of articles describing the renaissance in Ireland which is effecting extraordinary changes for the upbuilding of the industries, art and literature of that country.

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 6.—There is in Ireland to-day a little band of women who are setting their poetic dreams into the more practical form of philanthropic fostering of the spirit of self-dependence that they believe essential to the upbuilding of a nation.

healthy enjoyment of healthy outdoor sports. FINE PRODUCTS OF THIS NOBLE HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

The result of the Dun Emer work may be seen in the exhibition room of the drawing room, where cases of books most beautifully bound, not only in the tooling leather of the earlier days of the guild but in the Irish linen, brilliant with Celtic capitals, that would make a bibliophile out of any one, vie in interest with cases of lace and embroideries.

The Dun Emer gowns, designed after an old Irish fashion, but conforming entirely to the most modern styles, have had a wider vogue in London than in Dublin, on the principle of the prophet for his own country.

What Dun Emer means to the community of the Irish village a few years ago in spite of its charm of beauty, was shown in the closing exercises of the parish school. The parish priest, Dun Emer, said that at least 40 per cent of the children who graduated from the school, as neat and well dressed as the generation of children as you could find in any well-to-do American school district, were able to finish their school of the intermediate school because of the money that their mothers and sisters have earned from the Dun Emer industry.

Three of the most important conferences in Gov. Wilson's career as nominee of the Democratic party were on today's schedule at the Little White House here.

Finishing a hasty breakfast, the Governor went at once to his office this morning to consult with Robert S. Hudspeth, William T. McCombs, Josephus Daniels and Edward E. Grosscup over the final details of his message to the National Committee.

Professional and amateur forecasters took up the Governor's message to the National Committee for dissection today. William T. McCombs is the choice for National Chairman.

DANGER WHO FLED HERE FROM KING SCORES FLIRTING

"It Spoils a Girl's Modesty and Cheapens Her," Says Mile. Doradora.

HAS HAPPY HOME IDEAL.

Hopes to Meet Mr. Right Man and He Needn't Be Rich, if He's Honest.

Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

Mlle. L'Aerolia Doradora, the seventeen-year-old Spanish dancer who has been "commanded" at a dozen royal courts, is in New York solely to escape the unwelcome attentions of Albert, King of the Belgians.

L'Aerolia is a beautiful young woman, with the unique combination of gold-brown hair and black eyes. The eyes are long, narrow and heavily lashed. The full, smooth oval of her face and her perfect teeth remind one of Gaby Deslys, whom royalty also made famous, albeit in somewhat different fashion.

"My mother and I have been on the stage. But I have never before been separated from her, and indeed our whole family has kept together. I have been 'commanded' to appear before the Czar in St. Petersburg, and to dance before royalty at Madrid, Brussels and Vienna.

"I think flirting is abominable," the little dancer declared. "It is an insult to one's self and the right man who will come by-and-by. I insult myself if I play the coquette, because I give cheaply to the smiles that make her bold and vulgar and coarse."

"Then you think marriage the happiest career for a woman?" I asked. "Yes, indeed," she assented, vigorously. "That is, of course, if one is married to the man one loves."

"What is your ideal?" I asked. "He must be honest and sincere, first of all," she enumerated, "and he must know how to work hard. Lazy men are silly. He must be fond of children. I hope he will be nice to look at, and, anyway, he must be strong and self-controlled, and he must never care for any one but me."

"But he needn't be rich. If I loved him I should be so glad to work hard and share with him. Or, if he didn't want me to do that, I could help him save. My mother has taught me how to keep house. If I had a little home of my own I could do all the work. But I shall not marry very young."

"How do you like American men?" I inquired. "They are so nice!" she exclaimed, "strong and good looking and not dissipated like our men abroad." Then she added: "And your American women are superb!"

WANT SHANK OUSTED.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 13.—Decision to begin impeachment proceedings to remove Mayor Lewis Shank from office for not enforcing the laws prohibiting certain resorts was reached last night by the Indianapolis Citizens' Federation, and several hundred dollars was subscribed to aid the prosecution.

The proposed action against the Mayor follows an investigation by the Social Service Committee, which repeatedly has asked the city's Executive to enforce the laws. Mayor Shank has held that conditions would be worse if the plan of segregation is abandoned.

CRANE FOR WILSON, BURGLARS CLEAN OUT TEN FLOORS OF BIG BUILDING

La Follette's Chief Supporter Makes Announcement After Luncheon at Sea Girt.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 13.—Charles R. Crane, who gave $20,000 to La Follette's campaign fund, came out this afternoon with a declaration that he would support Gov. Wilson for the Presidency and would contribute to the Democratic campaign fund if the Governor would permit him to do so.

Mr. Crane said he had always been an admirer of Gov. Wilson, and wished now to do what he could to bring about his election. He thought the Governor's nomination insured the brightest possible prospects for a progressive administration at Washington.

The progressive Republicans, as far as I can learn," he said, "feel very kindly toward Gov. Wilson. I have not spoken with many of them, but will go back to Chicago and get in touch with the progressive leaders there and work for Wilson."

Meears, Crane and Van Hise were welcomed as they alighted from their carriages on the Governor's lawn by William T. McCombs, the Wilson campaign manager before the convention.

Finishing a hasty breakfast, the Governor went at once to his office this morning to consult with Robert S. Hudspeth, William T. McCombs, Josephus Daniels and Edward E. Grosscup over the final details of his message to the National Committee.

BURGLARS CLEAN OUT TEN FLOORS OF BIG BUILDING

Make Laborious Preparations and Cut Out Glass of Elevator Doors.

Pathtaking burglars laboriously removed ten panels of glass in elevator doors from the fifth to the tenth floors in two connecting buildings, Nos. 122 and 134 West Twenty-first street, today. The thieves ransacked the rooms of ten firms and got several rings and a watch, said to be worth $1,200, and possibly $50 in cash.

When the robberies were discovered and the police notified Detective Reid made an examination. He decided there were two men suspected in the work. They were evidently familiar with the buildings, which are used by firms in the cloak and suit trade.

The safe in the store of Sig Horwichter had been left opened and several pieces of jewelry were taken. At first it was said the stolen rings and watch were worth $500, but later the figure was raised to $1,200.

On every floor of merchandise lay untouched. One firm reported losing $50 from a drawer in a desk, but said they must wait for a bookkeeper's statement before they were sure of the amount. The police believe the burglars were looking for light valuable plunder.

No safe on any floor was forced or tampered with except trying the combination. The glass panels were removed to Police Headquarters where the finger prints on them were photographed.

STRIKERS' SECRETARY GOES TO JAIL RATHER THAN PAY.

Fined $2, "Unjustly" He Says, and Takes Tombs Sentence Instead.

Milo M. Woolman, secretary of the National Transport Workers' Association, is a prisoner in the Tombs because, believing he had been unjustly treated by Magistrate Corrigan, he refused to pay a fine of $2 imposed on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Woolman was arrested early today on the "farm" on West 107th street. There had been a disturbance there and Policeman No. 638 ordered Woolman and a group of strikers to "move on." According to the policeman, Woolman refused and "talked back."

In the Centre Street Police Court Joseph E. Darling defended Woolman. He denounced the arrest as a "piece of police tyranny."

"How many persons were there?" Magistrate Corrigan asked the policeman. "About 200," he replied. "That is not so," spoke up Woolman. "There were less than fifty."

"REMEMBER TITANIC" IS STRIKERS' WARNING TO SHIP'S PASSENGERS

Waterfront Littered With Handbills as Strikebreakers Take St. Louis to Sea.

In spite of the elaborate, though peaceful efforts of the strikers to prevent the departure of the steamer St. Louis, of the American line today, the vessel began her voyage to Southampton right on the minute. President Franklin, watch in hand, was greatly pleased.

One hundred and seventy-six members of the St. Louis crew struck when the liner reached New York last Monday and their places were taken by 109 negro firemen and coal handlers from Baltimore and seventeen white engineers and twenty-five seamen, with two or three others, all white, recruited from various sources.

Some of those with whom the Governor has been in frequent consultation believed that a single body would direct the campaign, and that there would be no division of authority between the National Committee and a campaign committee. To none of the forecasters, however, did Governor Wilson even give a moment's consideration.

Mr. McCombs planned to leave New York this afternoon over the New York Central for Chicago. He will be accompanied by National Committee members Joseph Daniels, Col. Robert Ewing, John T. McGraw and Thomas Pence of the Governor's campaign staff, Robert S. Hudspeth, who will represent the Governor at the National Committee meeting, and Edward E. Grosscup, Democratic State Chairman, expect to leave for Chicago tomorrow afternoon over the Pennsylvania Railroad.
