

"LEFTY LOUIE" FREE AFTER JUDGE HAD ORDERED ARREST

Victim of Holdup by Gunman and Five Others Tells of Mysterious Pull.

PAL HAD CONFESSED.

East Side Gangster Never "Found," but Kept on Terrorizing and Plundering.

The terror with which east side merchants and small fry gamblers regarded "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg and the "stick up" gang with which he trains was reluctantly told to-day by Harry Volinsky, who with his brother Samuel was held up by a taxicab crew of six, headed by "Lefty," and robbed of a gold chain and locket in March, 1911. The Volinsky boys had $200 in their pockets, but their cries of "murder" brought the police before the ruffians could reach their "roll."

Within a week after the robbery and after threats from "Lefty's" henchmen the Volinskys sold their poolroom at No. 235 East Broadway and devoted themselves to a tailoring business on Division street.

"Lefty" is probably the shrewdest and most feared gangster on the east side," said Harry Volinsky. "He never worked, but always had a roll of money. Small gambling houses, pool table rooms and prosperous merchants' establishments have been his prey. How he has kept out of Sing Sing is a mystery. He has robbed people innumerable times.

HELD UP BY SIX BANDITS ON WAY HOME.

"With my partner, Max Frank, I ran a legitimate pool table room on East Broadway up to the time of the hold-up. Our business brought us profits of $20 a week. We had eight pool tables and two combination tables. The best people in the neighborhood—students, physicians and merchants—were our patrons. When the roughnecks came in we discouraged them—we didn't want their trade.

"About 11 o'clock one night I was going to my partner's house, when we were held up by six men at the points of pistols. 'Lefty' and a man named Hickman, who was afterward arrested and sent to jail, held revolvers to my stomach. My brother yelled. One of the gang grabbed a chain and locket my brother had attached to his coat. Then they fled. Hickman was caught. 'The next day I saw word to shut up—but what's the use going into it again? I don't want to get into more trouble.'

Volinsky remained silent. His brother said they are doing a nice retail business and don't want any trouble with "Lefty's" friends. Several merchants had suffered from complaining, he said. After much urging, Volinsky admitted that the threats of the gangsters had forced him and Frank to sell the poolroom to a man named Goldstein.

"It was a hard job," he said, "but I didn't want to be killed and don't want to be in a business where you have to put up with this kind of fellows."

"LEFTY" FREE AFTER JUDGE ORDERED ARREST.

Volinsky had seen "Lefty" and his gangsters about his place for several days before the robbery, he said, and knew that the bigwigs were bent on getting his money. It was only after Judge Swann compelled him to tell, that he admitted that "Lefty" was one of the men he recognized with a pistol at the holdup. Later, he said, Hickman confessed to Judge Swann and gave the names of "Lefty's" several henchmen. He knew that Judge Swann had asked the police to arrest "Lefty," but the gangster named east side streets at will, plundering and robbing whom he chose. He did not tell the police where "Lefty" was, nor did any of the merchants or gamblers who knew the gangster.

"It was not our business," Volinsky said. "That was up to the police. It looked as if the police could easily get him if they wanted him very badly."

Volinsky said that "Lefty" had been known up on the east side and was well known there.

Helen Gould, Answering Minister, Says She's Single Because She Has Not Found a Suitable Helpmate

Had She Married, She Is Quoted as Writing, She Might Have Spent Her Money in a Different Way Which "Might Not Have Done as Much Good as It Has."

Preacher's Criticism of Spinsters Arouses Indignation, One California Woman Writing That but for Them "Some Preachers Would Be Hunting Other Jobs."

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., July 26.—The following letter, purporting to have come from Miss Helen Gould, has been given out by the Rev. Elmer E. Huffner as having been received by him in response to a recent sermon advocating the exile of "old maids" as "waste humanity":

Glancing over a newspaper I notice an item concerning your sermon on "Love, Courtship and Marriage." One part of this I especially notice, saying that old bachelors and bachelor maids should be isolated on an island so they could not hinder the progress of civilization.

I do not know why you make this statement, but I feel that it is a great injustice to the bachelor maids of our country. There are, I admit, many man haters in the world, but a great many bachelor maids are not living alone because they so choose, but because they have been unable to find a suitable companion.

I must admit that I am speaking from the standpoint of the bachelor maid. I feel that such persons as myself are not hindering the progress of civilization, but advancing it. If I had found a suitable helpmate I might have spent my money in a different way, and a way which might not have done as much good as it has.

Please think this question over, and before preaching on this subject again make up your mind that there is some good in living a single life.

Bachelor maids the country over are arising in their wrath and saying things about the Rev. Huffner, who, when resigning the pastorate of the First Christian Church, preached a sermon on "Old Maids and Bachelors," declaring that all such were worthless to humanity and that he would like to ship them, bag and baggage, far beyond the northern sea to a lonely life.

"If it were not for the dear old maids," writes Miss E. L. King of Monterey, Cal., "some preachers would be hunting for other jobs."

In addition to Miss Gould, who has given upward of $1,500,000 to good works, Mr. Huffner's attention is being called to such bachelor women as Miss Anne Morgan, prominent for her work in the interest of the Women's Trade Union League, the Big Sister's movement and settlement work; Miss Jane Addams, founder of Hull House, Chicago; Miss Jeanette L. Glider, a contributor to temporary uplift through her literary work; Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, English suffragette; Dr. Mary E. Walker, Miss Eleanor Sears, Countess Annie Leary, Miss Grace Strachan and such well-known single women of by-gone days as Florence Nightingale, Clara Barton, Frances E. Willard, Sophie B. Wright, Rosa Bonheur, Louise de la Hamee (Oulds) and Susan B. Anthony.

It was said at Miss Gould's town house in New York that she was at her summer home at Roxbury, N. Y., and that nothing was known of any letter written by her to Mr. Huffner. The preacher was quoted as saying: "Miss Gould is a noble woman, but her nobleness would be greatly enhanced were she married. I don't attempt to dictate what Miss Gould should or should not do. I can simply state what I think is right. Miss Gould has done more for humanity than any other bachelor girl in this age and she can still do unlimited good. I have no doubt but that she will, but to me it seems that she could be of greater usefulness if she were married."

WOMAN'S DUTY TO BEAR CHILDREN.

"No woman has done her duty by the world until she has borne children. Miss Gould is in a peculiar position because of her riches. She cannot be sure that she is being wooed for love alone. The only way to solve this problem is for Miss Gould to accept a position in the 'backwoods' incognito. Here she might find the right one, a righteous, industrious man who would love her for her true self, for her charming personality and not for wealth.

"Miss Gould is to be admired for the good she has done. Her riches have handicapped her in the real enjoyment of life, and I dare say that she is not as happy with her private car and maids as my servant girl. If Miss Gould would two weeks of real enjoyment, two weeks of happiness, let her disguise herself as a waitress and seek work in a cheap restaurant, let her clerk in a store or work as a chambermaid—anything so long as she earns her own living and lives on less than $10 a week."

Among Miss Gould's more notable gifts have been $200,000 to the Navy Y. M. C. A. for the finest sailors' clubhouse in the world, $100,000 to the United States Government at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, $100,000 to the University of the City of New York, $200,000 for the Hall of Fame, $25,000 for the Women's National Relief Association, $50,000 to the crusade against Mormonism and the practice of polygamy, $5,000 to the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital for a free bed in perpetuity for the poor, besides many other gifts, and her efforts in behalf of soldiers, for which she was thanked by the Legislature of New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois and given a gold medal by Congress.

BOSTON WOMEN REFUTE PASTOR.

BOSTON, July 26.—Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly, a daughter of the poet, John Boyle O'Reilly, and herself a former member of the Massachusetts Prison Commission, said of the Rev. Mr. Huffner to-day:

"Does he realize that the care of the helpless and the weak, the poor and the sick has almost always been done by the unmarried women who have given up their lives to the service of the Church?"

Dr. Laura A. C. Hughes, one of the most prominent physicians of Boston, said:

"Like Miss Gould, there are many noble and philanthropic unmarried women in this world, and if they had all been wives and mothers humanity would have suffered a great loss."

Dean Mary Case of Radcliffe College said:

"Further public discussion of such ridiculous statements can be of no value, since intelligent persons cannot fail to realize the absurdity of what this minister says."

"OLD MAIDS" ARE NEEDED.

PITTSBURGH, July 26.—Miss Mary Flinn, daughter of ex-Senator William Flinn and herself a prominent suffragist, said to-day of the Rev. Mr. Huffner's sermon:

"Miss Gould is a personal friend of mine, and I endorse her opinion that were it not for unmarried women—old maids, you call them—there would be many preachers without employment, wives and homes.

Miss Helen Grimes, a prominent suffragist, said: "If it were not for the

ELOPING GIRL FLEES IN NIGHTIE TO BANKER'S SON

But Two Frocks Were Hidden Under White Robe Which Was Trick on Aunt.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 26.—Society that happened to be up and around was startled early yesterday to see Miss Martha Richmond, nineteen, of No. 740 Adams avenue, arrive at the railroad station in her night gown.

Miss Richmond was eloping with Nelson Peck, son of W. H. Peck, president of the Third National Bank. The young people had been forbidden to see each other, but Miss Richmond, excusing herself for a moment to her aunt, who slept in the room with her, climbed from a window and jumped into Peck's waiting automobile.

Under her nightie Miss Richmond wore two dresses, which represented the extent of the personal belongings she was able to carry with her. The couple took the New York train.

The bride's people are not especially well to do, but Peck, who is just of age, is the son of one of the richest men in the section.

A vegetable huckster, it was learned, carried to Miss Richmond the note that made the arrangements.

WIRELESS WILSON'S PICNIC ENDED; BACK TO PRISON

On special instructions from United States Attorney-General Wickersham, Marshal Henkel to-day took charge of Col. Christopher Columbus Wilson, who was brought here from the Atlanta Penitentiary to be a witness in a bankruptcy case.

Immediately after relieving Deputy Warden C. J. Shea of the care of the convicted United Wireless swindler, Marshal Henkel had Col. Wilson handcuffed and shipped off to Georgia under guard of two of his deputies.

MASHERS BEWARE!

FINE FOR KISS $100, WINK OR PINCH $50

"Good Afternoon" Also $50, and Covert Glance $10, Chicago Judge's New Rate.

CHICAGO, July 26.—For a kiss, $100. For pinching girl's arm, $50. For a wink, $50. For each additional wink, $25. For covert glance, $10. For ditto glance accompanied by a "good afternoon," $20.

With a schedule of almost prohibitive prices, Judge Scully has started a real war on masherers in South Chicago. There doubtless are methods of flirting not in the schedule now, the Judge explained, but they will be added as they come to his notice.

The schedule was prepared by Judge Scully after he had heard the evidence in the case of Michael Belinski, who, it was shown, gently closed his thumb and forefinger—just so—upon the left arm of Miss Theresa Chemmak.

WOMAN LEADS FIFTY DOWN FIRE ESCAPE OF BLAZING BUILDING

Bright Boy With New Camera Rushes Story to The Evening World.

When the John T. Huner match factory at Cypress and Myrtle avenues, Evergreen, L. I., caught fire this afternoon, fourteen-year-old Walter Muehlenbeck of No. 204 Forest avenue, the proud possessor of a camera and fired with the ambition to become a reporter, saw his opportunity. He took a good picture of the fire and then hurried to The Evening World office with "the story."

Robert Wood, seventeen years old, who was standing right over the huge tray of matches that accidentally ignited and started the fire, was seriously burned. In spite of his injuries the boy ran a mile to the German Hospital.

The fifty women on the second and third floors of the building were led down the fire escapes in perfect order by Miss May Reiss of No. 210 South Ninth street, Brooklyn. The building was totally destroyed with a loss of $15,000 to $20,000.

CLUNG TO STEPMOTHER.

Father Wanted Children, but Court Thought They Seemed Happy.

"The children seem to be very happy with the lady who now has them, and I shall certainly leave them in her care for the present," said Supreme Court Justice Hogebeck to-day as he adjourned until next Tuesday the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus sworn out by Thomas King to obtain possession of his two children.

The children, Alonzo, eleven years old and Alice King, six years, clung to their stepmother. King and his second wife and the children lived at No. 135 East Two Hundred and Thirty-third street, until last Friday, when the couple separated, and Mrs. King refused to give up the children. The father wanted to have the custody of the children and obtained the writ to which Mrs. King responded by bringing them to the Special Term of the Supreme Court to-day.

$40,000 NOT TOO MUCH FOR LIFE OF DOCTOR.

Appellate Division Sustains Lower Court in Case of Widow of Dr. Terwilliger.

A verdict for $10,000 for the life of a physician, thirty-five years old and earning $5,000 a year, is not excessive, according to a decision handed down to-day by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn in the case of the widow of Dr. William G. Terwilliger against the Long Island Railroad.

Dr. Terwilliger was riding in an automobile owned and driven by Robert Welsh on Oct. 15, 1909. The machine was struck by a train at Wreck Leeds Crossing, near Far Rockaway, and Dr. Ter-williger and Welsh were both killed. The physician's widow obtained a verdict for $40,000 and the railroad appealed. The Appellate Division sustained the judgment of the lower court unanimously.
