FUGITIVE ASSASSIN, LOCATED IN COLORADO, MAY BE ON WAY HERE

District-Attorney Aides and Detective Burns Mysterious About "Lefty Louie's" Reported Arrest, but He May Arrive Tuesday.

MAN-HUNTER'S SON KNOWN TO BE NOW AT SALIDA.

All Police Inspectors Give Whitman Monthly Vice Reports Covering Gaynor's Administration.

Information from the District-Attorney's office today that "Lefty Louie," the indicted gunman in the Rosenthal case, was either under arrest or under surveillance at a point remote from New York is interesting in view of a statement made this afternoon in Chicago by William J. Burns.

The elusive Burns, reported sick in a Denver hotel yesterday, showed up in Chicago today and started for New York this afternoon. In some way he managed to let the reporters know he was in town, and in some way the subject of the arrest of "Lefty Louie" came up. Burns refused to deny that "Lefty Louie" was under arrest. Also he refused to confirm the report, but he wouldn't come out with a direct "yes" or "no" answer to questions.

"My son, Raymond J. Burns, is in the vicinity of Salida, Colorado, working on the Rosenthal case," said Burns.

According to the report that leaked out from the District-Attorney's office today, "Lefty Louie" is within the reach of officers of the law "close to a large city west of the Rocky Mountains."

Salida, Col., is in the Rocky Mountains, about 220 miles southwest of Denver. The District-Attorney's source of information said that "Lefty Louie" ought to reach New York in custody about Tuesday morning.

By leaving Salida tonight one might reach New York Tuesday morning. The fact that the District-Attorney's information last mentioned the Rocky Mountains gives significance to Burns' statement that his son is in the vicinity of Salida, Colorado.

WALDO'S JOB NOT OFFERED TO DRUMMOND.

In the absence of Mr. Waldman it could not be learned this afternoon whether Burns or any of his men had been sent west for "Lefty Louie" or "Gyp the Hood" and a week ago the information reached Mr. Burns that he would have to show something in the way of results to the District-Attorney or sever his official connection with the case.

Another criminal court building report current today was that Commissioner Waldo had been removed by the Mayor and that Michael J. Drummond, Commissioner of Charities had been appointed to the Police Commissioner's job. This was only a rumor, born of the fact that Commissioner Drummond visited Judge Mahoney this afternoon.

Mr. Drummond, when told of the rumor, said he had not been offered the Police Commissioner's job and would refuse it, should it be offered him. Commissioner Waldo said he had not resigned and had received no notice of removal.

INSPECTORS GIVE WHITMAN REPORTS COVERING 3 YEARS.

In compliance with a request made two days ago upon Commissioner Waldo by Assistant District-Attorney Le Ford, the seven inspectors in charge of the police districts of Manhattan and the Bronx appeared at the Criminal Courts Building today with material to be used in the John Doe inquiry to be conducted by Justice Hoff and a special grand jury. The visit of the inspectors confirmed the announcement in The Evening World yesterday that the John Doe inquiry will extend back into the administration of Commissioners Baker and Crosey, the predecessors in Mayor Gaynor's administration of Commissioner Waldo.

Inspectors Cornelius Catalano, John Lee, William J. Lohry, John E. Dwyer, George F. Titus, Dennis Sweeney and John J. Farrell were Mr. Do Ford's cases. They carried copies of all the monthly reports of their respective districts for the past three years relating

BOY THIEF FOOLS COPS BY TOUCHING HARD LUCK STORY

Policemen Wept as They Heard Lad's Recital, Then Found 'Twas Fairy Tale.

"DEAD" PARENTS ALIVE.

They're Also Kicking Because Mendacious Rudolph Has Gotten "In Bad" Again.

A score of brass-buttoned, blue-coated men—members of that same organization which has been branded of late as a senseless and heartless police force—gathered around little Rudolph Vinde, in the Delancey street station house today, blew their noses violently and questioned him in husky voices.

It was not a merry story Rudolph had to tell, and it was not a merry audience which listened to him. Policeman Waberg, who had found Rudolph—a wide-eyed, narrow-chested, ragged, stunted youth of seventeen—in the grocery store of Meyer Braunstein at No. 40 Delancey street looked as if he were sorry for having made the arrest.

Rudolph did not deny he had climbed over the Braunstein transom with designs on the Braunstein till, which, by the way, has been tapped six times in the last five months by trans-transom tappers.

"I did it," said Rudolph, "and I know it was wrong. But I have had nothing to eat for three days."

That was how he began his story and he was not allowed to continue for half an hour. Two policemen fought to see which should buy food for the luckless waif. They came back bearing between them the scuffle having been a draw—a bag of egg sandwiches, a wedge of huckleberry pie and a can filled with steaming coffee. Rudolph attacked the food as if he had been one of three weeks' duration rather than three days. They would not let him go on until the last drop and crumb had disappeared.

HANDKERCHIEF BUSY AS LAD TELLS MOVING TALE.

"And you got in there to steal something to eat, sonny?" asked a kindly-voiced, grizzled policeman whose stripes ran almost up to his elbow.

"No," said Rudolph, "I will not lie to you. I went in there to steal money. I had forgotten my hunker."

Two tears trickled down his cheeks and the gray-haired policeman, remarking that it was exceedingly warm, wiped away drops of perspiration that had started oozing from the corners of his eyes.

"I needed money so badly," Rudolph went on. "I suppose you'll send me to jail for twenty years, but I'd let you send me away for the rest of my life if they would keep her in the Morgue for five days and then bury her in Potter's Field if no one came to pay for a funeral. For those first four days I walked all the time, trying to get a job. No one would lend me any money. Today I was in the Morgue, got up early and started out. I had made up my mind to steal."

"When I passed that grocery store I noticed there was a hole over the

MRS. MACKAY HURT IN AUTO SMASHUP ON MOUNTAIN-SIDE

Car Wealthy Suffrage Leader Is Driving Skids and Overturns in Berkshires.

INJURIES NOT SERIOUS

New York Society Leader and Her Chauffeur Found Unconscious.

(Special to The Evening World.) PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, society leader and prominent in suffrage circles in New York, was thrown from her automobile on Monument Mountain, in the Berkshires, this afternoon. She was unconscious when picked up, but when revived insisted she be taken at once to her summer home, Glenburnie, near Stockbridge, where it was discovered she was suffering only from severe bruises about the hands, arms and body, and was not seriously injured. The accident will prevent her sailing from New York on Sept. 24 to join Mr. Mackay in Paris.

Mr. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, is now in Scotland, shooting, but Mrs. Mackay, with their daughter Edith, has been summering in the Berkshires.

Mrs. Mackay brought with her from New York a high-power racing runabout, in which she has been accustomed to take long rides. Early this morning she left Glenburnie for a drive, announcing she would return in time for luncheon.

MRS. MACKAY DRIVING WHEN CAR SKIDS AND OVERTURNS.

Shortly after 1 o'clock, while descending Monument Mountain, one of the prettiest spots in the Berkshires, made famous in Bryant's poems, the car skidded. The rear wheels struck a large stone and the car was overturned. Fortunately, both Mrs. Mackay, who was at the steering wheel, driving, and her chauffeur were thrown clear of the car.

Mrs. Mackay landed on a pile of rocks at the roadside, but her face was protected by the wheels, which suffered most. She was rendered unconscious by the force of the fall, as was the chauffeur.

A party of tourists, descending the mountain on foot, heard the crash and found both Mrs. Mackay and her chauffeur, still unconscious, lying at the side of the overturned and wrecked automobile. The chauffeur hastily reentered consciousness. On a hastily improvised stretcher he directed that Mrs. Mackay be carried at once to the nearest farm house, half mile away. Here restoratives were used and Mrs. Mackay was revived. She was suffering greatly from bruises and sprains, but declared no bones had been broken.

As soon as the crew sufficiently composed Mrs. Mackay insisted another automobile be summoned from Glenburnie so she might return there. She declined to permit physicians to be called, and as soon as the car arrived walked to it and left for her summer home.

SERVICES OF PHYSICIAN NOT REQUIRED, DESPITE INJURIES.

A telephone message there this afternoon brought out the statement that Mrs. Mackay was resting easily and had not thought it necessary to summon a physician.

The spot where the accident occurred is between Great Barrington and Stockbridge and about five miles from Mrs. Mackay's home. The road at that point on the mountain is regarded as safe, but the rains of today had rendered it so slippery the wheels of the automobile were not able to secure proper traction.

As Miss Kathryn Duer Mrs. Mackay was one of the most noted hostesses in America, and her marriage to Mr. Mackay in 1908 was one of the social events of the year, though a number of the proposed guests and best men were prevented from participating because they were at the front in the Spanish-American war.

The "Mackay" country home, Harbor Hill, Roslyn, L. I., is one of the show places in America. Late Mrs. Mackay has been greatly interested in women's suffrage, as president of the Equal Franchise League, and has been to Albany several times with committees of women. She appeared before Legislative committees to urge the passage of an equal franchise bill.

"MURDER AUTO," BEFORE CITY HALL, DRAWS BIG CROWD

Famous Gray Car Is Centre of Interest When Louis Libby Calls to See Mayor.

The famous gray "murder auto," by the assassins of Herman Rosenthal, was drawn up in front of the City Hall today and was instantly recognized by passersby. In a very few minutes a huge crowd had gathered, eagerly examining the machine in every detail, including the license plate, which bore the number "1111" and was the same which furnished the clue due to the identity of the murderers.

It was Louis Libby, who, with William Shapiro, owns the car, that drove it into Park Row and stopped it before the City Hall. Shapiro is still a prisoner, under indictment. Libby was released the other day.

Two friends were with Libby in the machine. They waited while Libby went into the building and called at the office of Mayor Gaynor. Libby's errand was to secure a renewal of his license to operate the car for hire. The Mayor was not in the City Hall and Libby was told to return tomorrow.

The car was unchanged and appeared today exactly as it did on the night of the murder that so stirred New York. It is of drab color, a low built touring car, very speedy.

John D. Archbold Says Trust Contributed to Campaign Fund on Distinct Promise That the President Be Told.

ALL DONE THROUGH BLISS WHO MADE COVERT THREAT

Colonel Declares Senator Penrose Is a "Deliberate and Soulless Falsifier and User of Foul Weapons."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Immediately after the adjournment of the Senate Committee investigating campaign contributions today, Senator Clapp, the Chairman, got into communication with somebody in New York City on the long distance telephone. He was understood to be making arrangements for the appearance of former President Roosevelt before the Committee, in order that Mr. Roosevelt might be questioned regarding the alleged Standard Oil contributions to the Republican campaign fund of 1904.

Roosevelt Calls Penrose A "Deliberate Falsifier"

Theodore Roosevelt, angry and bitter, to-day charged Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania with being a "deliberate falsifier," a "user of weapons from a foul armory," and a man of "incurable baseness of soul." While the Colonel was delivering himself John D. Archbold, active head of the Standard Oil Corporation, was telling the Senate Committee in Washington that Roosevelt knew of its $100,000 contribution to his campaign fund in 1904, and when it declined to make a second contribution he instigated a "most outrageous persecution" against the Oil Trust.

The Colonel walked briskly out of the Outlook office a little before luncheon time today and confronted a crowd of reporters who had been waiting for an hour or more.

"Well, what do you want?" he asked, not unpleasantly.

"We want to know what you have to say about the statement that George W. Perkins underwrote your nomination for the nomination for three million dollars," said one.

In the same breath another asked what T. R. had to say about Senator Penrose's statement regarding the Standard Oil $100,000 contribution to the Republican campaign in 1904. Still another wanted to know about the Senator's statement that Secretary Knox said that Roosevelt's letters forbidding Standard Oil contributions were made for display purposes only.

"Anybody who says any of those things tells lies," began the Colonel. "Any one of those statements is absolutely and maliciously and deliberately false. The men who say such things have not the truth in them."

T. R. GOT EXCITED AND BEGAN TO TALK.

The Colonel strode up and down and spoke with thunderous emphasis as follows:

"Senator Penrose would do well not to attribute to others the baseness that a-states himself. The statement that Perkins underwrote the primary fund for $300,000, or any other amount remotely resembling it, is a deliberate falsehood, which he knows it to be when he makes it."

"The statement that the letter and telegrams to Mr. Cortelyou were written for the purpose of going into the record and were not genuine and were not accepted by Mr. Cortelyou as genuine, in a wilful and deliberate falsehood, which he knows it to be when he makes it. Until Mr. Penrose speaks the other day I never heard of Mr. Archbold's name in connection with any contribution."

"Mr. Penrose's attitude in this matter symbolizes his habitual attitude in his terms, was written on Oct. 29. My second letter, if possible, even more emphatic, was written on Oct. 27. Not hearing from these letters I wired on Oct. 29. I then received from Mr. Cortelyou the statement that my wishes would be complied with, and that no contribution from the Standard Oil people had been, or would be received.

LETTERS WERE GENUINE AND WENT INTO RECORDS.

"If any such contribution was received it was not only without my knowledge but against my emphatic direction. These letters speak for themselves. They went into the records, of course, but they went into the records because they were genuine and bore on their face the proof that they were genuine, because I received assurance that they were accepted in the spirit in which I wrote them and action taken accordingly."

"I wish to add that I am certain that when Mr. Cortelyou told me that they would be thus acted upon, he was saying what he undoubtedly understood to be in exact accord with the facts."

"No man can honestly misunderstand those letters and no man who is not a dishonest man can put any interpretation upon them other than that upon their face."

"Let me again ask any one who wishes to know the truth to read my speech last night, to read the statements I made at the time I gave out copies of my three letters the other day. The speech and the letters cover every point. The reason that Mr. Penrose and his political allies and his backers and his masters in the world of finance are adding me now, is because they and their kind could not use me while I was President, because while I treated every politician and every financier with justice I declined to do one act for any of them that was not both absolutely proper and absolutely just."

"If I had been willing to act otherwise, Mr. Penrose and his allies and backers in the world of politics and in the world of business would now be enthusiastically supporting me instead of opposing me with an anger, hatred and malevolence born of the fact that they were wholly unable to use me and that it is hopeless for them ever to think of using me."

NOTHING MORE WELCOME THAN PENROSE'S OPPOSITION.

"There is nothing I welcome more than Mr. Penrose's opposition. Senator Penrose pointed out the exact truth when he said that Mr. Penrose and Mr. Penrose's allies, Democrats and Republicans alike, were in a conspiracy to serve the cause of corruption in politics and in business alike by endeavoring with slander and mendacity to oppose the only means and the only party which seriously endangered the rule of corruption in politics and finance—that

TAFT SIGNS BUDGET BILL AFTER HIS TWO VETOES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—President Taft today signed the new Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill, 1896, which he had twice vetoed, and nullified the tenure of office of civil service employees to seven years. Both those provisions had been eliminated and the Commerce Court was projected for until March 4, 1915.
