

are going to combat at every opening in order to spoil, if possible, the Murphy harmony programme.

Murphy attended the banquet with the usual retinue, entered the hall before half the delegates had found their seats.

The crowd gave Murphy a good send-off as he walked into the hall. The boss was in high good humor and laughed at those who clustered around him while the preliminaries were in progress.

A proposition that has been puzzling the leaders was the subject of a conference at Murphy's room during the morning.

It is likely that Mr. Spratt will be passed over and two Democrats will be named.

It is urged that Justice Hiseock is on the bench by designation and never having been elected by the Republicans is not entitled to the endorsement of the Democracy.

There were plenty of vacant places in the hall when the convention began business. The populace of Syracuse appears to be little interested in the proceedings of the Democratic convention as it was in the proceedings of the Bull Moose, but there may be a warning up.

On the surface the situation as to the nomination for Governor is still in a chaotic state. Although able to enforce his decree through the unit rule, Murphy let it be known he had about decided to keep hands off and permit the delegates to have their own way in the nomination for Governor.

There was a story this afternoon that Murphy had decided to eliminate Congressman Sulzer.

"I have enough delegates to secure this nomination," said Sulzer in headquarters. If Murphy interferes by overhauled methods they will need the entire police force of Syracuse to protect him and his allies. I can and will be nominated.

Mr. Murphy has been listening to all the men from up-State who have ideas on the question of nominating a candidate who can help along their ticket for the Legislature and for county offices.

From a majority of his callers who have had the nerve to speak frankly Mr. Murphy has been supplied with the information that the menacing figure against Democratic success is Oscar Spruss. Therefore the proposition has received itself down to the best way of offsetting the growing strength of the Bull Moose candidate for Governor.

There are so many candidates who would be to confuse the voters. The leading candidates are Justices Downing and Gerard of the Supreme Court of New York County; Martin Glynn, the Albany editor, whose ability as a vote getter has been demonstrated in New York State; and William Sulzer, Representative in Congress.

Sulzer most strongly fortified of all.

At this time neither Justice Downing nor Mr. Glynn has a preponderance of favor. Justice Gerard is well fortified by the contributor of a large sum of money to the National campaign fund and as the Judge who issued a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Foulke Brandt, the Schiff valet. Foulke Brandt being at the present time in Auburn prison, with little prospect of getting out before he serves his term, is not a shining advertisement for Justice Gerard.

Never since William Sulzer began to run for the nomination for Governor, and that was a long time ago, has he come to a State convention so well fortified as he is now. He is conducting his own campaign. As is usual with human nature, his chance of success in the outcome makes for the multiplicity of friends.

When the Onondaga Hotel and the Yonkers House were turned over to the Yonkers Hotel, the porters early today William Sulzer was the only live candidate in sight. His boom had grown to proportions commanding the attention of delegates from Greater New York. Tammany leaders and delegates, taking heart from the continual reiteration of the name Sulzer, were beginning to talk Sulzer, and this without orders from Room No. 214, where Mr. Murphy does his confabulating.

As for the renomination of Gov. Dix, that is impossible, as The Evening World announced two days ago. True, Charles F. Murphy is still for Dix, but in the face of his announced championship of the Governor he is listening to the claims of other candidates, and unless the Governor takes a graceful dive into a declination stage of mind by tonight it is quite likely that some intimation to start such a dive may reach him.

WITH DIX OUT, FIELD IS ALL SULZER'S.

With Dix absolutely out of the race, Downing and Glynn standing little and Justice Gerard just looking in, the field is all Sulzer's.

The situation here is much as it was at Saratoga. The Republican public convention didn't care much for Hedges. They scoured the state for a man with strength enough to go before the convention and show more than the right to be elected as a delegate. They couldn't find anybody, and Hedges was nominated.

In this convention there is the difference from the Saratoga convention that it was a case of soliciting men to run and here it is a case of fighting off selling aspirants. But as yet none of the men who came forth with a candidate who was a candidate in the getting strength of either Sulzer, Downing, Glynn or Gerard.

Sulzer was out making a personal campaign all of yesterday and until late last night. He makes no secret of his ambition to become the nominee. When told he is accused of approaching Murphy a few weeks ago, and of not paying strict attention to an alleged agreement at that time, he pulls out letters showing that he has been importuned for months back by influential Democrats to run for Governor.

COLLIER'S CHARGES HEARST MAGAZINE PRINTED FORGERIES

"Facsimiles" of Standard Oil Documents Declared to Be Spurious.

EDITOR MAKES DENIAL.

Reproduced Letters Not From Original, He Says, Simply to Aid His Engravers.

The current number of Collier's Weekly has an article under the heading "Mr. Hearst's Forgeries," wherein it is charged that "Certain of the facsimile Standard Oil letters which are reproduced in Hearst's Magazine are forgeries."

The article proceeds to declare that not only are the signatures of John D. Archibald attached to some of the facsimile letters appearing in the current and other past numbers of Hearst's Magazine forgeries, but that the entire letters whose authenticity is attacked in Collier's Weekly are spurious in their body as well as in the signatures attached.

The brand of counterfeit is put upon the following letters, which appeared in facsimile in Hearst's Magazine: Letter alleged to have been written by John D. Archibald to M. S. Quay, Feb. 12, 1909; letter alleged to have been written by Gen. Grosvenor to Mr. Archibald, Sept. 27, 1904; letter alleged to have been written by Mr. Archibald to Senator Quay, July 15, 1888; letter alleged to have been written by Mr. Archibald to Senator Hanna on Jan. 19, 1900; letter alleged to have been written by Mr. Archibald to Senator Penrose, Oct. 13, 1904.

It was through comparison of the script in facsimile letters appearing in Hearst's Magazine with the brands of type known to have been in use on typewriters of the period covered by the dates of the letters that Collier's Weekly obtained the clue to what is now claimed to be the uncovering of wholesale forgery.

"All five forgeries were written on one individual machine. There were skillful alterations of ribbon in order to make the surface impression."

The periodical also makes this allegation: "These five letters (dated one of them 1888, two of them 1904, two of them 1904) are written on the Smith & Bros. Company, manufacturers of typewriters. Mr. Smith, after consultation with the skilled engraver who designs the type for the L. C. Smith & Bros. elite machine in Syracuse, on Sept. 19, prepared a report wherein it was stated that the five letters cited in the Collier's article are forgeries."

The periodical makes the further charge that, in the case of the letter reproduced in Hearst's Magazine as purporting to be one from Gen. C. H. Grosvenor of the House Committee on Merchant Marine to Mr. Archibold, the spurious letter was typewritten on one sheet of paper and that the letterhead of Gen. Grosvenor's Congressional committee was pasted at the top of the sheet containing the letter.

Collier's charges that a variation in the ribbon used in the letter reproduced in Hearst's Magazine was made to appear in the facsimile letters published in Hearst's Magazine by manipulation of reproduced letters as were in that condition we copied the body of the letter on that machine there—pointing to the fact that the signature on the stand beside his desk—then superimposed the signature by clipping it from the photograph.

"From the time we took new photographs and sent them to the engravers," Mr. Hazard declined to go into details about each specific letter reproduced by Collier's, and as to the charge that "J. E." was Mr. Hearst himself, the editor said he knew nothing about it.

"I want to make it clear," the editor added, "that we had nothing here but the copy for the article, and the photographs of the letters. I never saw the original letters, and the only steps taken here were such as would bring out the engravings to the best advantage."

Cost Smith $1,873.70 to Loos.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—Ex-United States Senator James Smith Jr. of Newark spent $1,873.70 to obtain the endorsement of the Democratic voters as United States Senator. He filed a statement, as required by law, yesterday, which shows that he was the sole contributor to his campaign fund.

strong in our State," he added; "no Senator has been elected from Pennsylvania in years in which the voice of the Standard Oil Company was not potent."

"When I received specific information from Mr. Frick that he had settled on Mr. Knox, I was through," said Flinn.

Senator Pomerene wanted to know when Mr. Flinn became a follower of Roosevelt. "When did you see the light?" asked the Senator.

Mr. Flinn declared he had been active in Col. Roosevelt's fight because he wanted to change conditions in Pennsylvania. While he sent an associate for a copy of the Progressive State platform, Mr. Flinn recited his chief planks as the results he wanted to get.

Senator Pomerene produced a copy of what was said to be an agreement between the late Senator Quay, Mr. Flinn and J. O. Brown, under which political affairs in Pennsylvania were to have been apportioned between them.

"I intend that you shall answer in my way: did you write that agreement?"

"Yes, I did; or rather I wrote an agreement something like that," said Flinn. "I can't tell whether that's it."

"I intend that you shall answer in my way: did you write that agreement?"

pled the witness. "He said it was very expensive."

Mr. Flinn said he had contributed $1,000 to the Roosevelt campaign in Massachusetts. He also admitted a contribution of $1,000 to Senator La Follette's campaign.

"That was before I was a Roosevelt man," he added, and a general laugh went around.

"Did you have anything to do with trying to get Southern delegates for Col. Roosevelt?" asked Senator Fayter.

"I looked 'em over," answered Flinn. "In any way?"

"No. I wanted to see how our politics were manipulated. I just looked over a sad lot," said Flinn.

Senator Pomerene wanted to know more about the telegram sent to the Standard Oil Company asking assistance in Flinn's canvass to succeed the late Senator Quay. Mr. Flinn repeated it had been sent by J. G. Spalin without his authority.

"Why was this telegram written in cipher?" asked Senator Pomerene.

"I don't know. That may have been a way of shortening labor," answered Flinn. "Finally Flinn was excused and J. G. Spalin of Pittsburgh, following him on the stand, said that after Senator Quay's death he conceived the idea that he might be of some service to Mr. Flinn."

He said he went to New York June 7, 1904, and asked Mr. Archibald to use what influence the Standard Oil could in behalf of Mr. Flinn.

"Mr. Archibald gave me to understand that he did not think he was in a position to do anything for Mr. Flinn."

Mr. Spalin was "pretty sure" he signed the telegram sent to Mr. Archibald, and which bore the signature of William Flinn. He also thought he received the cipher telegram from Archibald, which William Flinn, expressing disappointment that the "telephone had worked so badly."

"Have you any distinct recollection either that you signed these telegrams or authorized them to be signed?" demanded Mr. Pomerene.

"I would say yes," said Spalin.

He said he remembered distinctly going to New York, seeing Mr. Archibald and talking with him.

"I suppose I talked with Mr. Flinn," he said. "He knew I was going to do everything I could to help him."

J. Berner Clark of Washington, Pa., was the next witness. He said he was the man Mr. Flinn had asked to go to Pittsburgh to "talk with Mr. Penrose regarding conditions in West Pennsylvania." He said he took a Mr. "Completion" to the district attorney, which he saw Penrose and talked about Senator Oiler, he said. The next day, he said, Senator Penrose told him "they had had a conference and conference and concluded to ask the Governor to appoint Mr. Knox."

"I asked him something about Mr. Flinn, and he said Mr. Cassatt of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the late Senator Quay, Mr. Flinn and J. O. Brown, under which political affairs in Pennsylvania were to have been apportioned between them.

"I intend that you shall answer in my way: did you write that agreement?"

SKIN TROUBLE ITCHED VERY MUCH

In Form of Pimple Full of Pus, Scratched Until Bled, Head Covered with Hard Scab, Could Not Sleep, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Completely.

16 Oliver St., Newark, N. J.—"About five years ago my little girl had a red spot on the back of the head which itched her very much. The sore came in the form of a pimple full of pus and would itch. She would scratch until she would bleed, and wherever it touched there would be another sore until her whole head was covered with a hard scab. She could not sleep at night for the pain, and I had to keep her from school. I had her washed and used a wash, and when I put it on her head it burned her so I thought she won't go with the pain. I used Cuticura Soap and ointment until I got so tired I thought she would never get cured.

"Then I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. The first night I used the Cuticura Ointment it loosened the scab. Today she is completely cured. I used three boxes of Cuticura Soap and six cakes of Cuticura Soap and I have nothing to thank but Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Mattie Gibbons, Jan. 15, 1912.
