TWO JURORS DROPPED, TWO MORE CHOSEN FOR TRIAL OF BECKER

Justice Goff Announces After a Long Conference With Lawyers That There Is Illness in Families of Ware and Dillon.

GUNMEN IN COURT READY TO GO ON STAND

Whitman Announces That He Has Taken Every Precaution to Protect His Witnesses During the Trial.

The trial of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker before Justice Goff for the murder of Herman Rosenthal was interrupted this afternoon following an hour's conference between Justice Goff and counsel for the defense and prosecution. Two of the eleven jurors seated in the box were excused because of illness in their immediate families.

They are Leslie Ware, a baker, of No. 310 Lenox avenue, juror No. 8, and John E. Dillon, manager of Bonwit Teller & Co., the last juror accepted during last night's session.

When the two jurors were dropped the defense was down to two peremptory challenges, but in view of the added vacancies in the box the Court gave Becker five additional challenges.

The question of excusing the jurors was raised during a short conference between District-Attorney Whitman and the Court. Justice Goff left the room, nodding to the Prosecutor and to Lawyers McIntyre and Hart of the defense to follow. Soon afterward Juror John E. Dillon was sent for and joined the conference. Later Juror Ware was called into the conference.

Returning to his seat after nearly an hour, Justice Goff announced that he had excused the jurors because of the development of serious illness in their families.

"Circumstances have arisen," said the Court, "which would prove it unfair to both the prosecution and the defense to have these gentlemen with the evidence in the case while their minds are so burdened with anxiety. I wish it thoroughly understood that the action of the Court is no way a reflection upon the gentlemen excused. Counsel for the defense and prosecution agree that it is for their best interest that this action be taken."

The excused jurors did not return to the tribunal, having been dismissed by way of the Justice's chamber.

It was said that in the case of Juror Ware his wife is desperate ill. Just what member of Juror Dillon's family suffered was not revealed.

LAWYER MCINTYRE DELAYS SELECTION OF JURORS.

Lawyer McIntyre adopted tactics today that delayed the completion of the jury.

He made every possible effort to exclude from the jury the talesmen he did not fancy and seemed determined to exhaust all his peremptory challenges. In this he was said to be paving the way to a possible appeal after conviction. It was said he would take as ground that the twelfth juror was forced upon him in violation of his rights.

There was a rumor that District-Attorney Whitman would seek to have one of the jurors already chosen taken out of the box. This can only be done by agreement or upon proof that the juror is unfit to serve.

Preparatory to the State's opening its case, District-Attorney Whitman brought "Jack" Rose and all his gunmen witnesses down to the Criminal Courts Building from the West Side Police and placed them under a heavy guard in the anteroom adjoining the trial room.

"Jack" Rose will be among the first witnesses called after Mr. Whitman has finished his arraignment of Becker and outlined the People's case. "Gyp the Blood" and his fellow gangsters will follow Rose.

WHITMAN TAKES STEPS TO PROTECT WITNESSES.

On his way to the courtroom District Attorney Whitman briefly outlined the order in which he would call his wit-

PLEA FOR MORE WAGES.

High Cost of Living Makes Raises for Men Necessary, Housewives Declare.

The high cost of living was presented today before the Budget Committee as an argument in favor of increasing the salary of policemen. This committee is an offshoot of the Board of Estimate and was appointed by the board to "try the fat" out of municipal departmental appropriations.

Under the present condition of affairs policemen, newly appointed, receive but $100 a year. Out of this small sum they are required to pay for their uniforms, fees to the pension fund, insurance and care for their beds and "ahines" in the station houses. This all amounts to an average of about two hundred dollars a year. The same rule applies to policemen of other grades who have put in from five to twenty years on the force, but who receive automatic increases of wage until the $1,400 mark is reached.

The high cost of living argument was voted by several women—wives of policemen—who were present and bravely "stood up" before the discriminating members of the committee and declared policemen in general were underpaid. Mrs. Fluke Folks, wife of a policeman, resolutely arose and said:

"We wives of policemen have much to contend with. In the first place, we are confronted by police scandals. Our husbands are branded all in one breath. But we—our husbands I mean—are innocent of any wrongdoing—I mean the average policeman. We hear a whole lot about the man 'higher up.' Who is he? Are our husbands, who do faithful police duty, all to be accused? I do not believe the members of this honorable committee will vote against an increase of salary for our guardians of the peace."

A number of other women—wives of policemen—were present and all nodded in acquiescence of the utterance of Mrs. Folks. The committee, over whom President McAnany presided, held decision in reserve pending a later meeting of the body.

POLICE INQUIRY RENEWED.

Curran Committee Resumes Its Investigations.

The Curran Aldermanic Investigating Committee resumed its interrupted labors in the police investigation today with Police Lieutenant Francis J. Finn as its first witness.

The committee took up the case of Rocco Benedetto, a patrolman, who was appointed May 15, 1912, by Commissioner Waldo, after being rejected by former Commissioners Crosey and Hinsham. Charges were filed against Benedetto by a bartender named Boyd, who complained the patrolman had beaten him.

Capt. Donohue Henry, who commanded the Mercer street station at the time Benedetto was attached to that precinct, also was a witness in regard to the Benedetto affair. Benedetto is now off the force, having resigned.

WELCOME TO OUR CITY

These are great visiting and homecoming days in New York. Thousands are here to see Uncle Sam's war-guns chained to anchors in the glorious Hudson.

Fans from far and near have come to witness the struggle for universal supremacy on the baseball diamond.

Salesmen, travelers and others whose interests take them elsewhere are already arriving to cast their ballots on election day.

TAFT'S BROTHER GAVE $250,000 IN 1908 TO ELECT HIM

Knew He Was Fitted for Presidency and Wanted Him to be Independent of Trusts.

PHONE VOICE LIKE T. R.'S

Told of Calling Harriman for Cash and Didn't Doubt It Was Roosevelt's.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Charles P. Taft, the President's brother, today told the Clapp committee he contributed $250,000 to the national campaign in 1908 and that $150,000 was returned. He also contributed $40,000 to the Ohio campaign.

"I thought my brother was fitted for the Presidency," said Mr. Taft, "and if elected, I wanted him to walk into the White House without obligation to any great interests or corporations. On that basis I was prepared to go the limit."

Mr. Taft testified that his contributions to the President's campaign for renomination totaled $212,500, of which $125,000 was given to the National Taft Bureau of which Representative William B. McKinley was director. To the Ohio State campaign $40,000 was given and $45,000 went for miscellaneous items. Dan R. Hanna of Cleveland testified to the Clapp Committee today that he gave $17,500 to Col. Roosevelt's re-election campaign in 1908. To the Roosevelt National Committee he gave $20,000; to Walter F. Brown, for the Ohio campaign, $5,000, and for State organization in Ohio $7,000.

NO DOUBT IT WAS ROOSEVELT WHO TALKED.

Edward H. Harriman raised $250,000 in 1904 apparently at President Roosevelt's special request. This was the testimony today before the Clapp Committee, which tended to directly contradict Col. Roosevelt's recent sworn statements. One witness said he handled the money. Another said a person he had no doubt was Roosevelt told him on the telephone that he intended to ask Harriman to raise the money.

Ex-Senator Nathan B. Scott of West Virginia testified that he had talked over the telephone from New York to the White House with a person whom he had no doubt was Roosevelt, and whom he had always believed was Roosevelt, and that the person said he was going to send for Mr. Harriman and ask the latter to get more money for the New York State campaign.

Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the Harriman Lines' directors, said Harriman told him he raised the campaign fund at Roosevelt's request. Lovett stated positively that Harriman gave him the fund—$250,000 in cash and the rest in checks—and that he (Lovett) gave it personally to Treasurer Cornelius N. Bliss of the Republican National Committee.

Lovett stated that Mr. Harriman and W. K. Vanderbilt, gave $5000 each toward the $250,000 fund.

Roosevelt recently swore that Harriman went to him and asked him to give money given by the National Committee to the New York campaign. Former Senator Scott was the first witness today.

"When we got low in funds in October, 1904," said he, "I asked Mr. Bliss if he could not go to No. 21 Broadway, the Standard Oil Company's office, and get some money. He said 'No,' that he had already assured a contribution from those people. I asked him how much they had given and he said $50,000."

Senator Scott said he recalled about $67,000 from the National Committee in 1904 for the campaign in West Virginia.

"I WILL SEND FOR MR. HARRIMAN TO RAISE FUND."

The witness said a telephone call from the White House was made at the New York Republican headquarters in October, 1904, and he took the phone.

"What is this trouble I hear about Higgins?" the voice asked, said Scott. "I answered that Higgins was in danger of defeat," said Scott, stating that he said Bliss had no funds to help Higgins.

"I would rather lose the election in the country than to be defeated in the city," said Scott.

LITTLE GIRL SPYING ON HER FATHER WINS DIVORCE FOR MOTHER

The testimony of pretty schoolgirl Ida L. Brown, a schoolgirl with short dresses and long Janie Meredith curls, brought a divorce for her mother, Frances E. Brown, in the Supreme Court today. The slip of a witness testified willingly and in detail against her father, William H. Brown, proprietor of the Little York Inn in Courtlandt Court.

Miss Brown told Justice Gleason that she went up to Little York in July and remained there until September on a visit to her father. She was attending Public School No. 11 in this city. Her parents were separated. As if reporting a lesson which should bring a 100 per cent. mark in class, the schoolgirl stated that she had seen her father in some places to go to a moving picture show.

That little girl, the witness of all mother's troubles, came to the court today. "She was dressed well, she was not dressed in her street clothes. I told her what I wanted and she said to run away, that your mother give me some money in a short time."

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Oct. 9.—The Giants and Red Sox ran to a dead heat today. The score at the end of the eleventh inning stood New York, 6; Boston, 6. Umpire O'Laughlin then called it on account of darkness. It was really too dark for clean playing, and the judgment of the officials was backed up by the members of the National Commission.

According to the rules, governing a world's series, the Giants and Red Sox will have to stay over here and play off the tie to-morrow. The next game in New York will be on Friday, which means that the Saturday game scheduled at the Polo grounds will have to be played in Boston.

An unexpected turn of affairs in the big series has forced the big changes in plans all around. Ballrooms that have arranged for special trains and the telegraph companies will have to make a complete new arrangement of things. The game which ends in a marvellous contest, ever played for a world's championship.

It was an exhibition of games that had the partisan rooters of New York and Boston cheering their squads off for opposing batters. Through an error of Fletcher's that gave the Sox three runs in the tenth inning, the Giants were forced to make an uphill fight with a rare occurrence.

Through the heavy hitting of Murray and Herzog, the Sox finally forced to get front only to have Fletcher let another drive shoot through his legs and tie the score. The Giants again forced to the front in the tenth when Merkle's three-base and McCormick's pinch hit to left turned the trick. This was not the first time that the Sox have won a game right back with a home run smash sent back with a home run smash sent back that bounded out of Becker's reach.

FIRST INNING.

Collins got a strike over on Snodgrass as a starter, but on the next try the ballman waded into a fast one and pitched a wilder inner into the field and pitched for two bases. The ground rule hurt Snodgrass, for under ordinary conditions the drive would have been good for a home run. Doyle gave Collins a tough battle, but finally got himself in the two-three hole and struck out on a fast one that whizzed by his ears. Becker went after the first ball pitched and died on a wicked grounder to Yerkes who called him at first. Far girl is the longest hit of the series.

SECOND INNING.

Merkle stood still while Collins put over three strikes and he was called out. He was inclined to question the last one, but at a sign from McGraw walked away. Herzog took one strike and then smashed long drive to the fence in deep centre for three bases.

Becker stood still while Collins put over three strikes and he was called out. He was inclined to question the last one, but at a sign from McGraw walked away. Herzog took one strike and then smashed long drive to the fence in deep centre for three bases.
