only newspaper men." Whereat the Governor smiled.

GOVERNOR HAD TO WAIT TO CAST HIS BALLOT.

The Governor had to wait a few moments before he could cast his ballot, as all three of the booths were occupied by voters at the time of his entrance into the polling place.

Newman Armour, Princeton 1877, was the one at the booth.

"Governor," said Mr. Armour, when he came out, "When I was in New York, I saw a banner headed, 'Wilson National Progressive Republican Ticket.' That's the ticket I voted."

"I feel very much complimented," answered the Governor. "You know, I have always wondered at those banners that said 'regular progressive nominations.' I had always thought the progressive nominations were irregular."

The crowd laughed and the Governor entered the voting booth. He thought the ballot was inside.

"You'll have to have one of these first," called one of the tellers, all of whom were old time friends of the Governor, and the nominee was handed his ballot.

"Woodrow Wilson, No. 3 Cleveland Lane, Bristol 112," announced one of the tellers as he recorded the Governor's vote. The Governor was in the booth just four minutes.

GOVERNOR GETS A RABBIT'S FOOT FOR LUCK.

Just before Governor Wilson arrived his brother-in-law, Prof. Stockton Axson, of Princeton University, received ballot No. 111, the one immediately preceding that handed to the Governor.

Prof. Axson announced after he had covered from one of the booths that the direction which his ballot had taken was not hard to guess.

Gov. Wilson remained about the polling place for several minutes joking with the newspapermen but declined to make any statement for publication.

As Gov. Wilson approached the fire engine station he was approached by a beautiful young woman, Mrs. Wade Mountfort, of New York City, who said:

"Governor, I want you to accept this for good luck for today."

She handed the candidate a rabbit's foot. He accepted it with a smile, removed his hat with Southern grace and shook Mrs. Mountfort's hand.

"Thank you," he said, "thank you very much."

"I came down here from New York especially to give it to you," she told him.

She-Chairman McCaskey and Joseph Daniels of the Democratic National Committee came to Princeton today for a visit with Gov. Wilson. They expect to return to New York this afternoon.

Wilson's Running Mate Votes Straight Ticket.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 5.—I suppose you voted the straight ticket, Governor.

"I sure did," replied Gov. Thomas H. Marshall, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, who had cast his ballot at 9:30 this morning.

With characteristic democracy, the watchers let a man, who was evidently in a hurry to go to work, get in front of the big figure of the Congressman, with the latter's approval. Yet in this case, too, the last turned out to be frat.

For although the man who preceded Mr. Sulzer voted ballot 149, the number of Mr. Sulzer's ballot was 1.

At 10:06 Mr. Sulzer entered the booth to strike the blow for democracy and the Bull Moose.

UP STATE VOTERS CROWD THE POLLS IN ALL COUNTIES

One Ballot a Minute Cast in Syracuse Bull Moose Stronghold.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Election Day in Albany County brought clear skies and a moderate temperature. A heavy vote was polled early in the city of Albany.

There was considerable congestion at some of the polling places early in the day, causing some of the voters to leave the lines to return later.

William Barnes Jr., chairman of the Republican State Committee, voted early and left for New York City.

After voting in Washington County Gov. Dix returned to Albany. He will receive the returns to-night over a special wire at the Executive Mansion.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Weather is clear and warm for election. The vote was heavy.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 5.—A heavy early vote was recorded here. In the Nineteenth Ward the Bull Moose held its own, they voted at the rate of one a minute.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Clear weather brought out a remarkable early morning vote in this city, indicating that approximately the entire city registration of 48,995 would be polled.

Some delay was experienced in several wards owing to the breaking of voting machines.

WATERLOO, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Election Day in Waterloo and northern New York opened cloudy, with indications of rain. The country roads are in reasonably good condition and a big early vote in this city and county was reported. There was much splitting.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 5.—With most favorable weather conditions, voting was brisk here early today. The Democratic organization was most active at the polls. There were no signs of corruption.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Cloudy skies and mild temperature marked election day. Party leaders feared the voting machine would cost the Presidential candidate many votes because of the necessity to pull the Presidential pointer in addition to the usual operation.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Cloudless skies brought out a heavy vote in this city. The voters were in the street long before the polls were opened for the day.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Ideal weather conditions prevailing in Buffalo and Western New York today, brought out an unusually large early vote in this city.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Reports from all parts of Oswego County show a heavy vote.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Clear, warm weather brought out a large vote in this city and throughout Ulster County.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 5.—The largest vote in the history of the city was polled here. In some districts more than one vote a minute was recorded.

GOVERNOR HILL, N. Y., Nov. 5.—A large vote was cast in Fulton County today. From the length of time taken by many voters to register their choice at the polling place, it was evident that some splitting was done.

"I'M NOT FUNNY," SAYS JOB HEDGES, AND HE TELLS WHY

esting; but the newspaper boys have always treated me so well and have been so good to me that I have never remonstrated at the humor they thrust upon me.

"Here is the only possible explanation for the reputation I seem to have accumulated as a humorist.

"My dear old mother was very, very deaf in her latter years, and I used to talk a good deal to her on my fingers. I also enunciated very distinctly, trying as much as possible for her to grasp my meaning by watching my mouth."

"These two methods of pantomime unconsciously grew upon me until in later years, when I became more or less of a public speaker, I indulged unconsciously in a lot of grimaces and pantomime that may strike some weak-minded people as funny."

The reporter suggested with due deference that he didn't see any funny story yet. Maybe if Mr. Hedges would just let his mind wander—

"Who said I was going to tell a funny story?" came back the explosive query. Then a broad and waggish smile.

"I'll tell you something, I hope I am going to be elected. I believe there's a chance that I may be. But if I'm not, I'll have a lot of satisfaction in knowing that I have done a few things I wanted to do in this campaign."

WANTED TO TAKE A CRACK AT HYPOCRITES.

"For one thing, I wanted to squelch that old hypocritical idea that it is undignified for a man to seek high office. Hereofore the usual idea prevailing is that the receptive candidate is discovered by a committee, in frock coats and patent leather shoes, sitting in his library or his cutaway coat and says, 'Gentlemen, this is a surprise and an unmerited honor you offer me.'

"But the very next day he has all his bills paid and the scandals in his life leaked away behind burglar proof doors and is bustling once at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-sixth street. When he was recognized, those closest to the enrollment books courteously stood aside and insisted that Mr. Hedges sign his name as No. 132 and get his ballot. He wasn't in the booth more than a minute and a half, and when he handed the three ballots to the clerk a smile was playing about his mouth."

DAREDEVIL SWOOPS OF ARMEN THRILL STATEN ISLANDERS

One of the Feats an Aerial Shooting Match Between Passengers on 'Planes.

An immense crowd turned out at the aviation field at Oakwood Heights, Staten Island, this afternoon for the big flying programme that had been provided by the Aeronautical Society.

When the gates were opened there was a small crowd waiting and the prospect of small gate receipts discouraged one of the stars of the programme, Miss Ruth Bancroft Law, who departed for her home in New York.

She had hardly left the aerodrome, however, when hundreds began to pour through the gates and before 2 o'clock there were 5,000 persons on hand and more coming in droves.

The first birdman up was George W. Beatty, piloting a new biplane. He was wittily followed by Henry Bincham Brown, who took up as a passenger, Lieut. Schariets of the First Signal Corps, U. S. A.

Beatty and Brown raced around in wide circles, making rapid turns and twists, slanting to 1,000-foot levels and then swooping down until their machines cast their shadows on the ground.

After Beatty had tested out his machine he came down and took aboard as a passenger Mrs. J. W. Musgrave of Stapleton, S. I. Later he flew with Charles Lee Calder of Great Kills.

The principal feature of the last flight of the programme was an aerial shooting match between Dillon Hoffman and Calder. Beatty had Calder in his plane and Hoffman rode in Brown's machine.

Another thrilling stunt was provided by Capt. Thomas Baldwin when he took up seven-year-old Cecil Peell in his "Red Devil Biplane" and did all sorts of aerial pranks. Later Capt. Baldwin had Miss Isabelle Paterson of Van Couver, B. C., as a passenger.

RIOT AT POLLS BARELY AVERTED; 3 BALLOTS CAUSE

New System Confuses Foreign Born Voters and Creates Overcrowding.

Congestion about the booths in east side polling places, which began soon after the polls opened, increased during the day until, at some places where the voting was almost exclusively by foreign-born citizens, disturbances approaching the proportions of riots were entailed.

This was due entirely to the three-ballot system, introduced this year.

A single ballot is sometimes a confusing thing to unfold and fold, especially when another voter is waiting to take place behind the shabby curtain; but this year three sheets of paper to be manipulated and marked proved to be a heavy strain on the ingenuity of some voters. Where the voter wanted to cut his ticket he was further embarrassed.

The result was a piling up of prospective voters outside the polling places and the formation of lines which were constantly being tangled up and jostled by voters leaving the polls.

Down at the corner of Grand and Suffolk streets, the confusion was once troubled by a fight between rival political orators. Louis Cohen, who lives at No. 27 Attorney street, was holding forth for the Bull Moose ticket on one corner, with a Socialist meeting going full blast not thirty feet away. Somebody tried to break up Cohen's meeting and he jumped from the cart tail, which was his rostrum, and hit somebody.

Max Feizer of No. 223 Madison street alleged in Essex Market Court that it was he who was thus smitten; but Magistrate Harris discharged Cohen, who had been arrested, because Feizer was not positive the orator's fist was the one responsible for his bruised eye.

LEWIS WINS GEORGE RECTOR AUTO TROPHY

Spirited Racing at the Brighton Beach Motordrome Before a Crowd.

(Special to The Evening World.) BRIGHTON BEACH MOTORDROME, CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., Nov. 5.—With the weather conditions ideal for the matinee automobile races crowds began to fill the stands at an early hour.

Many well known drivers, including Ralph Mulford, Spencer Whishart, Neil Whalen, Dave Lewis, Bill Chandler, Leland Mitchell, P. Costello, Thebaud Lecain and Ferguson participated. There was a good card of races, the feature of which was the 100 mile Election Day Derby. The track had been carefully prepared and was in excellent shape.

Eight cars faced the starter in the first race Class C, non-stock, distance ten miles, for the George Rector trophy. National (Whalen), Rector (Lewis), Stutz (Lecain), Mason (Mulford), Mercedes (Whishart), Kline (Minker), Mason (Mitchell) and Kline (Ormsby). Ferguson could not start his Mercer and withdrew.

Spencer Whishart, the young millionaire driver, led the field in the first lap. Lewis was second and Mulford third. The same relative positions were maintained during the second mile. On the third lap Dave Lewis passed Mulford and raced after the leaders in the fourth lap he passed Lecain and was after Whishart. Whalen had crept up to fourth place. Lewis passed Whishart on the last lap and raced home first under the wire. Time for the distance was 9 minutes 17.50 seconds.

Event No. 2 was a five-mile non-stock handicap, with the following entrants: Mercer (Pullen), Rector (Lewis), Kline (Ormsby), Mercer (Limberg), Mason (Mulford) and Mason (Mitchell).

The latter and Ormsby were sent away first with 30 seconds handicap; Limberg, 10 seconds; Pullen and Ferguson 5 seconds; and Mulford, scratch. On the third mile Ormsby had a good lead over Mulford, and he finished first, with Mulford second and Limberg third. Time, 5m. 1.20s.

An added event was a mile exhibition in a Fiat by John De Palma, brother of Ralph, the famous driver, who was hurt at Milwaukee. No time was announced.

The third event was a free-for-all handicap, distance ten miles, with the following cars entered: National (Whalen), Mercer (Ferguson), Kline (Minker), Mason (Mulford), Mercedes (Whishart), Stutz (Lewis), Kline (Ormsby), Mason (Mitchell), and G. J. G. (Thebaud). It was a fine race up to the start. Dave Lewis crept up to third place in the fifth lap and passed Minker on the sixth. Mulford's machine, roaring like a Gattling gun, was creeping up on the leaders. Whishart gained third place in the seventh lap, overtaking Ormsby. On the eighth lap Whishart passed Ormsby and began a stern chase after Lewis, but he maintained his lead and sent the Stutz under the wire in second place after Lewis. Whishart was third. Time, 17m. 47.50s.
