

NEW YORK PHYSICIAN
DEAD IN BURNED HOME; MURDER IS SUSPECTED

New Jersey Officials Investigating the Death of Dr. John Morrison.

Dr. John Morrison, sixty-two years old, of No. 232 West Thirtieth street, this city, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed his summer residence at the foot of Bourland Mountain, twelve miles from Somerville, N. J. The residence was unoccupied, except when Dr. Morrison made an occasional visit. The doctor was last seen alive Tuesday night. He spent a social evening with friends in the village of Hopewell, and rode back to Stillman station on a train, accompanied by Thomas Brophy, who keeps a general store there, and by George Kirch, his nearest neighbor. Dr. Morrison and Mr. Kirch walked up the road from the station and parted yesterday morning. About 4 o'clock yesterday morning flames were seen and by the time Dr. Morrison's neighbors arrived at the burning building it was practically destroyed. Search of the ruins revealed the charred body. It is suspected that Dr. Morrison met with foul play. County Prosecutor Pope and County Detective Toliver have begun an investigation. Last summer two mountaineers were held for a time in the county jail on suspicion of robbing the doctor's home.

"BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW" Is Chamberlin Vindicated?

Why the Grand Trunk Suspended Construction in New England.

The following despatch from Boston was published by Dow, Jones & Co., and the Wall Street Journal, Wednesday, January 22d:

When President Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk suspended the construction of the Providence line he said:

"To be frank, the difficulty is to raise money. Mr. FitzHugh used all the money that we received from the sale of bonds and we could not seem to get any more during the state of apprehension that exists in the money market over the uncertainty of what the Balkan war may lead to."

The money markets have now improved. There is a lessening in the financial tension in London and the bankers ventured last week to offer at 94 the Grand Trunk Pacific 4% branch line loans of $479,300.

The public subscribed to $130,000, or less than $650,000, and the underwriting bankers were landed with about three-fourths, or exactly 73% of the loan.

This, of course, holds up the Grand Trunk credit until the London markets are more propitious.

President Chamberlin is now vindicated in his declaration that money, and nothing else, caused the cessation of the Grand Trunk construction in New England.

The Grand Trunk people say to-day, as they have said since the stoppage of the work, that construction was only temporarily suspended, and that when they can raise the money they will build into Providence.

Perhaps New England people will some time be able to answer the question whether the proper way to raise money for railroad construction in New England is to get a New York grand jury to indict London bankers, Canadian railroad officials and the New England railroad system because work has stopped as the money gave out. Spending money you did not have used to be considered the crime. But, according to justice as now dispensed from Washington, through New York, for New England, the Egyptians must continue to make bricks after the straw has been used up.

A new grand jury has been impanelled at New York. But can Washington and New York combined force bricks without straw, however willing may be the hands of the Canadians or the Egyptians?

Major Henry L. Higginson, Boston's leading banker, says:

"There need be no occasion for surprise in the practical failure of London bankers to sell Grand Trunk securities. I think Chamberlin told the truth when he stopped construction hereabouts. He stopped because he had to.

"We are getting a lot of outside assistance to help New England commit suicide by indicting the railroads, the bankers, the constructing men, and the very capital that we need here. It is amazing to note the insanity of the public that refused to consider, in the houses of legislation, or elsewhere, the question of the financial backing or the credits of the Grand Trunk when it entered New England. The public and some Rhode Island and New York papers are running a race to have the best friends of New England indicted—the only men who can raise the capital for New England railroad construction and development.

"What we need is to make the best out of the present situation and build up rather than tear down. Not only the Grand Trunk but the Boston & Maine needs credit to be of service to the public. How are we helping credit by these attacks? Mr. Hays did not know where the $200,000,000 was coming from when he allowed his associates to promise new railroad construction to Providence and Boston, and Mr. Chamberlin had to stop when the money gave out. The problem now is to get more money into New England, not to drive capital and enterprise and construction away."

Three Famous Pictures Free

Printed in Colors on Fine Quality Paper. Size 9x12 Inches. Ready for Framing. Free for Coupon in Next Sunday's World!

Owing to the great demand for these three pictures—those of the "Second Set" given away with copies of the Sunday World a few weeks ago—more pictures of the same set will be given for the coupon in the Sunday World next Sunday, Jan. 26th. The subjects are:

"Southern Twilight" (From Painting by P. R. Kohler) A study in yellow, black and brown, showing some low-roofed cabins down by the swamp in a Southern clime, where twilight is swiftly falling.

"Brother and Sister" (From Painting by Bonaventura) A sympathetic theme, beautifully worked out in rich coloring. Bouguereau, formerly president of the old, conservative Paris Salon, is one of the most widely popular artists of modern French Academic circles.

"Moonlight on the Bay" (From Painting by P. R. Kohler) This is one of Kohler's peaceful and comforting marines, showing the fishing sloops beating it homeward up the bay after the day's work is done.

A Questions-Answered Book. (Syllabus N. Y. Post-Standard.) A slip for the use of busy editors accompanying a complimentary copy of The World Almanac, notes that answers can be found therein for the following questions:

What is the Hay-Panncoteff treaty? What were the benefactions in 1912? What have been the Polar discoveries? What is the population of Detroit, Mich.? What are the penalties for crime in the various States? Who are the chaplains in the United States army and navy? What is the income tax? What are the trusts in the United States? The list doesn't do sufficient credit to the almanac or its advance agent. The Post-Standard looks in the almanac and finds answers to such other questions as: What State has the bitter root for a State flower? How long may a man expect to live who has reached the age of forty? Who is the president of the society to encourage swimming among women? What day will Easter fall on in the year 2000? How old is George Cohan? What two college fraternities does Andrew D. White belong to? Where is the James Milliken University located?
