

SLAYER, FIGHTING GUARDS, IS CARRIED TO DEATH CHAIR

Twiman, Who Murdered Sheriff and Wounded Others, Strapped Down by 7 Men.

BAD RECORD IN PRISON.

Negro Who Held Off Posses in Sensational Arrest Was a Terror to His Jailers.

WILMINGTON, N. Y., March 31.—William Twiman, the Monroe County murderer, was electrocuted early today in Auburn prison. He ignored the chaplain in the final service and, fighting, was practically carried to the chair. Owing to a recent attack made on Guard John Martin every precaution had been made to prevent a scene. Seven guards accompanied him from the cell and assisted in strapping him to the chair.

Twiman killed Simon J. Birmingham, a Monroe County deputy sheriff, on Jan. 12, 1911. When Birmingham and other officers went to Twiman's home at Scottsville to investigate a report that the negro had killed his father they were refused admittance. Twiman held them at bay for some time, he firing at them with a shotgun, killing Birmingham and wounding others. Twiman's father was found dead in the house.

WALL STREET.

Taking into consideration that the death of J. P. Morgan was known before the opening of the market this morning, stocks acted wonderfully well, large buying orders appearing and the bear element not causing a wild advance in the first hour of business, carried most issues to higher prices than Saturday's closing.

In the early afternoon there was a slight reaction, caused mainly by the banks calling loans, and call money leaning at 7 per cent.

Lead by Amalgamated Copper and followed closely by Union Pacific and Reading, the market took a further advance near the close, which was active and strong, with prices but a fraction lower than Saturday's closing.

FOG MAKES FUNERAL OF VISCOUNT WOLSELEY A GHOSTLIKE CEREMONY

Troops Escorting Body of Field Marshal Are Like Spectres to London Throgs.

LONDON, March 31.—A full state funeral was accorded to the late Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley today when his body was interred in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral alongside those of Nelson and Wellington. A dense pall of yellow fog enveloped the city throughout the morning, even the powerful electric lights on the streets with difficulty penetrating the darkness sufficiently to enable the funeral procession safely to traverse the long route from the War Office to the great cathedral.

The effect was most weird. The strains of the "Dead March" played by the military bands and the roll of the muffled drums could be heard approaching by tens of thousands of those who lined the streets to pay their last tribute to the popular war veteran. They could, however, see but little of the ghostlike forms of the great procession of soldiers with a gun-carriage in their midst bearing the coffin covered with the Union Jack as it passed immediately before them.

The Duke of Connaught represented King George, and a dozen of the most distinguished Field Marshals, Admirals and Generals acted as pallbearers.
