

TWO BIG BATTLES ON FOR MILLIONS OF STALLO GIRLS

Metropolitan Trust Co. Storm Centre of Fight to Recover Fortune.

Lines were drawn last to-day for two big legal battles involving the millions of the two daughters of Edmund K. Stallo. One will be over the demand for the removal of the Metropolitan Trust Company as administrator of the estate of the late Alexander McDonald, grandfather of the girls, and Standard Oil multi-millionaire, and the other is due to a suit brought by the trust company, as administrator, to have a legal unscrambling of the mixed-up affairs of the estate.

About the head of the former president of the Metropolitan Trust Company, Gen. Clayton Ives, who resigned last October, will fall many of the charges and counter-charges. It has been charged that the trust company was the beneficiary of the McDonald estate and that Ives, as administrator, was given at the time of his retirement, $250,000.

Gen. Ives was reported out of town to-day at his residence, No. 23 East Fifty-ninth street, and neither Herbert Parsons nor Austin Fox, his attorneys, gave out a statement in his behalf. His friends indignantly denied, however, that there had been any reason other than the one given for his retirement. Gen. Ives was past seventy when he left the trust company and it is said he desired to place the reins in younger hands.

Laura McDonald Stallo, a granddaughter of the late Alexander McDonald, filed the application in the office of Surrogate Colman for the removal of the Metropolitan as administrator. Her father, Edmund K. Stallo, joined in the petition.

The Metropolitan Company, in its suit, named itself as administrator. Laura McDonald Stallo and the Guardian Trust Company, as guardian of Helen McDonald Stallo, who recently was married to Prince Michael Charles Almo Joachim Napoleon Murat. The latter will not be of age until August, it is said.

Something between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 is involved in the dispute between the trust company and the heirs. Much of the trouble centres around a note given by the late Mr. McDonald to the Metropolitan, through the Stallo, his attorney, for $2,000,000, which was back in 1908. The note was to run for a year and bear 8 per cent. interest. As collateral security Mr. McDonald transferred first mortgage bonds of the New Orleans, Mobile and Chicago railroad of a par value of $2,000,000, preferred stock of the railroad of a par value of $200,000, common stock of a par value of $2,000,000 and Standard Oil stock of a par value of $200,000.

PORTUNE SACRIFICED BY QUICK SALE, SAY HEIRS. Before the loan matured Mr. McDonald died. In November, 1910, when it was nearing maturity, it is alleged Gen. Ives consented to a two-year renewal of the note. This alleged renewal is the cause of much of the trouble. The bank denies he made any such agreement; the Stallos say he did. The bank's attorney says it is impossible such an extension would have been granted without putting it in writing.

Then, it is charged by the Stallos, the trust company disposed of the various collateral securities. It is further alleged that they were sacrificed, the $200 shares of Standard Oil stock, for instance, going at less than $225 (ought $1.10 a share) if they had been held until the end of the note's removal period.

The answer of the bank to this charge is illuminating. It is not forth that when the sale was made the company believed the sale a good one. The United States Supreme Court had just ordered the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company and it was believed the stock would go still lower.

There are numerous other charges against the trust company, most of them accusations of improper charges against the estate and bringing the total amount involved well above the $3,000,000. It was said the Stallos agreed to settle for this amount and save the trust company a default period to accept or turn down the proposition. This period expired last Tuesday, and a request for further time was refused.

TRUST COMPANY SAYS DEAL WITH IVES WAS PERSONAL. Affecting Gen. Ives particularly, are charges that he wrongfully obtained possession for the trust company of $240,000 worth of the stock and bonds of the railroad company.

The plea for the removal of the company as administrator is based on the ground that it is in the position of being both creditor as well as administrator and is not in a position to safeguard the rights of the petitioners.

The statement on behalf of the trust company was given out at the offices of the company's attorneys, Carter, Ledyard & Milburn. Charles H. Stoll, attorney for the company as administrator, joined in it in denouncing the charges as unwarranted. It is claimed the affairs of Mr. McDonald were greatly involved at his death, that the various securities were pledged to the company for his indebtedness. It is said that if the various securities had not been forced into the hands of a receiver and would have been compelled to default. The transactions with Gen. Ives, it is declared, were purely personal, and the company had no hand in them.

Burglars' Four Years' Paradise Spoiled When Policeman Sees a Light.

At No. 24 Pearl street, has been robbed twenty-two times in the past four years. In fact, he has been robbed so many times that the burglar insurance people will not give him a policy and it is said that whenever the James street gang needs beer money they go around and "touch up" Simpler.

The twenty-third robbery was in progress last night when Policeman Kelleher of the Oak street station, passing the loft building, saw a light on the fourth floor. He immediately called up the station and in a few minutes the building was surrounded. The policemen were mystified, for padlocks were on the front and rear doors, the roof scuttle was fast battened down and none of the fire shutters was open as far as they could see. Nevertheless they procured a ladder, bridged the distance to a fire escape and after many minutes' work managed to open one of the fire shutters and enter.

On the fourth floor the detectives found three young men hiding under piles of leather; they might have hidden undisturbed had not one of them sneezed while the detectives were making their search. The three burglars, who had gathered together about $50 worth of shoes, were Jerry Finnegan of No. 25 New Chambers street, Thomas Kane of No. 22 Pearl street and Frank Schreiber of No. 4 Willow street. The first two, both under twenty, had recently been released from Elmira Reformatory on parole, having been sent there for a former robbery of Simpler's factory. Schreiber was arrested a few months ago on the suspicion that he had something to do with a fire one of the many parties of burglars set in the shoe manufactory, but he was discharged for lack of evidence.
