LAUTERBACH ACCUSED ON THE STAND OF PLOTTING TO SHAKE DOWN MORGAN

Lawyer Forced by Lobby Hunting to Admit He Lied to Ledyard.

PUTS IT UP TO LAMAR.

Crouches and Cringes on Witness Stand Under Cross-Examination of Senators.

By Samuel M. Williams, Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Lamar, the Wolf; Lauterbach, the lawyer, and Martin, anti-trust champion, crouched and cringed to-day under fire of the Senate lobby investigation. No longer brazen and defiant, they presented pitiable figures as the committee lawyers dug the probe of cross-examination mercilessly into the operations of the trio.

Lauterbach was the witness. He, the lawyer who has tried so many cases, cross-examined so many witnesses with garban and cutting inquiry, was almost in tears as the tables were turned upon him. His voice trembled like that of a crying child. He hesitated, stammered, turned, twisted, dodged, evaded, explained, feigned indignation, and practiced every art of a trapped animal in his efforts to avoid admitting attempts to shake down J. P. Morgan and the Steel Trust, as well as the Union Pacific crowd.

LAMAR'S DARING GIVES WAY TO HAUNTED FEAR.

Lamar sat beside him all the way with arms folded, head down and peering out from under heavy eyelids. His daring gave way to haunted fear and at times paraptation stood out on his forehead as Lauterbach confessed to some of the devious operations in Wall street.

Martin, who poses as Secretary of the Anti-Trust League, was brought into closer connections with the manipulations. The Wolf took him to Lauterbach's house for a conference when the bomb burst under them last week. Far back in the audience Martin sat, trying to avoid the limelight of exposure.

All the testimony was about the efforts of Lauterbach to reinstate himself and Lamar in the good graces of J. P. Morgan & Co. Lauterbach told how Lamar in 1908 drafted a resolution to have Congress investigate the Steel Trust. Lauterbach went to Morgan to tell him what the wicked Lamar purposed doing, and to declare that if only the great king of finance would say a kind word to "the wolf" it all could be stopped. But Morgan declined, and Stevie, his partner, said they would welcome an inquiry, which sure enough came along some time later.

Just once Lauterbach turned on the great house of Morgan, and in a burst of defiance revealed another chapter in the story of how the Steel Trust gobbed up the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co. during the panic of 1907.

LAUTERBACH'S STORY OF THE COAL AND IRON POOL.

Here is the story as told by Lauterbach:

"I represented Mr. George Kessler, who was the third largest holder in the Tennessee Coal and Iron pool. One day Kessler sent for me and wanted to know whether Morgan would acquire Little Marabelle Kelly Run Down While Playing in Street.

While playing in front of her home, at No. 11 West Sixty-sixth street, this afternoon, Marabelle Kelly, aged five, was struck in front of a big touring car, and operated by Norman H. Fall of No. 12 West One Hundred and Third street.

The med-guard of the car struck the child, throwing her to the street. Mr. Hall picked up the girl and started for Roosevelt Hospital.

In the hospital the child was found to be suffering from a fractured jaw and skull. She was carried to the operating table, but died before an operation could be performed.

CLERKS FOUND BOUND AND GAGGED IN JEWEL OFFICE

Police Mystified by Peculiar Robbery in Centre of Gem District.

BROTHER GAVE ALARM.

Youth Taken to Police Headquarters to Explain to Deputy Dougherty.

The New York office of Louis Stern & Co. of Philadelphia is located at No. 15 Maiden Lane, in the Silvermaster Building. This firm manufactures jewelry and silverware for the trade and usually carries a large supply of very valuable goods in its safes on the nineteenth floor of the building.

Late this afternoon a trunk containing valuable samples which Milton E. Rosenheim, salesman for the firm, had been displaying in New England, was brought to the building and turned over to Louis Friedman, an eighteen-year-old employee, to be placed in a safe. There was no one else in the office of the firm at the time.

FOUND CLERK BOUND AND GAGGED ON FLOOR.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon, J. S. Jenkins, who has offices adjoining those of the Stern firm, heard loud rappings from the adjoining office, as though some one was hammering on a table. He ran into the hall and there found a seventeen-year-old boy, who later turned out to be Joseph Friedman, a brother of the clerk, standing in the hall, peering through a narrow aperture in the door through which letters may be passed.

"My brother is in there, bound and gagged, and he can't get out. Can't you get the door open?" the boy demanded. Mr. Jenkins peered through the key-hole, but declared it was a physical impossibility to see into the room. However, he called for help, and, with Charles S. Wood, a diamond broker, procured a pass key and entered the office of the Stern firm.

There, propped against a table, they found Louis Friedman, bound hand and foot. A piece of wood had been forced between his lips and tied into the wall. They hurriedly released young Friedman, who seemed unable to talk because of the bandage which had been in his mouth. The room was in disorder. The contents of the safe had been thrown on the floor, which was littered with boxes which had contained valuable silverware.

VICTIM SAID HE HAD BEEN STRUCK WITH "BILLY."

Lieut. Edward J. Armstrong, in charge of the detectives in the jewelry district, was hastily summoned with Detectives Summers, Crystal and Millwork. Dr. Conkey, from the Hudson Street Hospital, arrived about the same time and examined Friedman. The youth claimed to have been struck down with a billy, but only a small, insignificant lump could be found on his head, and the physician declared there was nothing for him to do.

The "job" looked so suspicious to the detectives that Joseph Friedman was sent to Police Headquarters to be questioned by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, while Louis Friedman was kept in the firm's offices until the arrival of "finger print" experts from Headquarters.

Lady Sackville Wins Fight for $5,000,000 Left by Sir John Scott

Jury Finds She Exercised No Undue Influence Over English Notable Who Willed Her His Fortune and Cut Off Own Relatives.

LONDON, July 7.—The jury which for eight days has been hearing the suit to break the will made by the late Sir John Murray Scott by which he left nearly $5,000,000 to Lady Sackville, daughter of the former British Minister at Washington, to-day sustained the will. The jury found no undue influence or fraud on the part of Lady Sackville.

Lady Sackville was not present in court when the concluding stage of the case opened to-day. It was stated that she felt the need of rest after her experience on the witness stand last week.

Sir Edward Carson addressed the jury on behalf of Lord and Lady Sackville, upholding the validity of the testator's will.

Sir Edward Carson declared that Sir John Scott could have changed his will, made twelve years before his death in favor of the Sackvilles, at any time if he had wished to do so. The only hope of the plaintiffs, the members of the Scott family, was, he argued, in maintaining and exaggerating the trivial quarrels of a long friendship into the appearance of something important.

Big Crowds Surround Other Institutions Following Closing of the First-Second National of Pittsburgh and First of McKeesport.

RECEIVERS FOR CONCERN OWNED BY KUHN INTERESTS

With Branches It Has $73,000,000 Capital; $34,000,000 Deposits in Closed Banks.

(Special to The Evening World.)

PITTSBURGH, July 7.—The acute financial situation precipitated by the order of Acting Comptroller T. P. Kane closing the First-Second National Bank and, by indirect effect, closing the First National Bank of McKeesport also, is changing for the worse with every hour.

Attorney for the American Water Works and Guarantee Company, the largest water works, irrigation and electric company in the country, containing thirty plants, with an aggregate capital stock of $73,000,000, appeared before Judge C. P. Terrell in the Federal Court this afternoon and asked for receivers for the corporation as well as for the firm of J. S. and W. S. Kuhn, Incorporated, the backers of the banks and the water works company.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 7.—President Charles R. Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, like the King of France, marched right up to Coroner John J. Phelan's witness chair to-day, when the inquest into the fatal Stamford wreck of last month was resumed, and marched down again without having added a fact of importance to the information already gleaned by the Coroner at previous hearings.

Only when he sought to protect himself against the Coroner's questions did any animation light his face. Then he frowned as sharply as a lawyer might have done. The burden of Mr. Mellen's contention was that since he was jointly indicted for criminal negligence in connection with the Westport wreck with other officials of the New Haven Company, any answers he might give, though apparently not incriminating to him, might nevertheless be incriminating to those with whom he was jointly indicted, and so, indirectly, might strike home at him.

HEAVY WITHDRAWALS FROM SAVINGS BANKS.

At one big savings bank closely connected with the Kuhn interests the withdrawals have been particularly heavy since the doors were opened at 8 o'clock.

Though the Pittsburgh Clearing House is making a heroic effort to control the situation, there is great fear that the sudden collapse of the Kuhn interests, having control not only over the two banks already closed, but the others now threatened by runs, as well as irrigation, electric and water works plants all over the country will precipitate a panic.

There is a rumor to the effect that the First-Second National is short in its assets by $4,000,000, but this has no verification.

The Kuhn corporation is in no way allied with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the New York bankers.

The directors of the First-Second National deny the action of Acting Comptroller Kane in forcing the closing of the bank as unwarranted interference due to the failure of the Federal bank examiners to be able to judge values of property and securities in this community.

The capital and surplus of the First-Second National amounts to almost
