

DOKE COST 12 LIVES AND TRAIN SMASH; 200 OTHERS HURT

Boys Pull Whistle Cord and Start Cars, Causing Collision in the Dark.

DEATH LIST WILL GROW.

Number of the Victims in Los Angeles Wreck Cannot Survive Their Injuries.

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—To middle-aged youths who played with the train whistle, is attributed the loss of twelve lives and the injury of some 200 persons near here late last night, when two Pacific electric trains crashed together, telescoping two cars and wrecking another at Vineyard station, near the city limits. Many of the injured will die.

Three trains loaded with excursionists to the beach at Venice, sixteen miles from Los Angeles, had stopped at a curve where a switch is turned. The last train began moving forward while the two foremost trains remained at a standstill. Carroll Bartholomae, conductor of the last car of the center train, jumped to the track with his light to flag the approaching train.

Some youths, passengers say, pulled the whistle in jest. This, it was said by railroad men was interpreted by the motorman of the on-coming train as the signal to go ahead. With a crash of breaking glass, splintering timbers and the cries of passengers, the motor car of the last train drove into the rear of the center. The motorman of the moving train had given full speed and a curve had prevented him seeing the standing cars. The rear of the stationary train was filled to capacity, and the aisles were crowded. Those who stood were crushed against one another into the far end of the car. The lights went out, adding to the general panic.

Arthur Hill, a sailor from the torpedo boat Paul Jones, carried out eight bodies including a woman clasping an infant's body in her arms.

Practically all of those killed and injured were residents of Los Angeles and suburbs. Of the dead four men remained unidentified early today, two Japanese and two whites. The known dead are: Miss Edna Alter, Pasadena; Olive W. Agay, San Francisco; Miss Veronica Miller and Marie Evans, Los Angeles; William Taylor, Jacob Harman and Edward Murray, addresses unknown.

P. R. Forrester, motorman of the wrecked train, missing. While no formal statements have been issued by railroad officials they are inclined to place the blame for the accident on Forrester, the motorman, and the conductor of the stationary train. Lacking Forrester's story, no clear account of what happened has been obtainable as yet.

During the search for victims the arm of a woman on which jewels worth $1000 was found in the wreckage. The gems were subsequently found to be the property of a woman in the hospital, whose arm had been cut from her body as though with a cleaver. The jewelry was restored to her.

THIEF TOOK ANOTHER'S NAME

Father of Thomas McGuire Now Seeks a Vindication.

District Attorney Whitman was asked today to substitute the name of John Tully for that of Thomas McGuire, a young man recently sent to Blackwell's Island for ten months for burglary. The unusual request was made by Patrick McGuire of No. 324 East Thirty-eighth street, who claims that young Tully deliberately assumed his son Thomas's name when arrested for stealing lead from a building.

Mr. McGuire explained that his son and young Tully have lived in the same house for a number of years. The boys went to school together. Young McGuire is employed in a downtown printing house. He has been greatly embarrassed by the publication of the sentence which "Thomas McGuire of No. 324 East Thirty-eighth street" received. In reality, Patrick McGuire swears in his affidavit, the convicted boy is John Tully.

Mr. McGuire also applied to Edward R. Carroll, Clerk of the Court of General Sessions, for aid. "either Clerk Carroll or Mr. Whitman have so far discovered a way of correcting the injustice to young McGuire.

LEAPS OUT WINDOW, LANDS ON NEIGHBOR, AFTER WAR OF WORDS

McInerney Plays Quite a Trick, but Wait Till Kelly Gets Out of Hospital!

"Was a fair, cruel trick Garry McInerney played on his dearest enemy, Hugh Kelly, over in Stapleton, which is on Staten Island, if you don't happen to know already.

The McInerneys and the Kellys live in a house in Varian street—the McInerneys on the second floor and the Kellys on the first. There had been bad blood between them.

He measured the good twelve foot drop between himself and Kelly. Then he put on his working shoes, with the heavy soles to them, climbed out of the window and dropped—on Kelly. With never a word McInerney picked himself up from the wreck of the chair and Kelly and walked away. He has not come back yet.

As for Kelly, his hip was broken and he had to go to the Smith infirmary. He says when he recovers he will hunt up McInerney and talk to him about it, so he will!
