MITCHELL FAVORS A LOWER TAX ON BUILDINGS

Collector Mitchell declared today that in the event of his election to the Mayorship he would approve a bill submitting to the referendum vote the question of gradually reducing the tax rate on buildings to one-half that on land...

"I will sign a bill for such a referendum if such a bill is passed by the Legislature and submitted to me," said Mr. Mitchell. "At the same time, I express my strong personal feeling that the most vigorous efforts of all municipal reformers should be concentrated now on obtaining from the Legislature, with constitutional confirmation at the hands of the most Constitutional Convention, genuine and through-going municipal Home Rule..."

COMMITTEE URGES SEABURY TO BE A CANDIDATE

A committee of Progressive called upon Justice Seabury this afternoon and requested that he permit the use of his name as a compromise Fusion candidate for the Mayorship.

After a protracted session in Justice Seabury's chambers the members of the committee declined to discuss the matter until they report to-night to his committee. Justice Seabury left the conference hurriedly and went to his summer home at East Hampton, L. I., where he is spending his vacation with his family.

From other sources it was learned that Justice Seabury had expressed an unwillingness to leave the bench at this time. It is his ambition to attain to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. It was said that the committee left with the belief that the Justice might be induced to accept the nomination if it were held by another candidate.

TRAIN ROBBER TRICKS SLEUTHS, ESCAPES TO SEA

Plans Had Been Made to Arrest "Dave" Kauffman in Brooklyn To-Day.

JUMPED $30,000 BAIL.

Held Up Sunset Limited and Has Been Dodging Detectives for Seven Months.

Just when all the scenery was set today for the sensational capture over in Brooklyn of "Dave" Kauffman, train robber, who has been on the wing for seven months with detectives tagging at his heels, the unobiding bandit gave the hunters as neat a slip as ever depicted in two reels, being now somewhere on the sea, possibly on the Clyde liner Comanche, en route for Charleston, S. C.

The dashing train robber whose offense against society consisted in holding up the Sunset Limited of the Southern Pacific Railroad at New Iberia, La., last December, and dynamiting the express car, had almost fallen into the trap laid for him in Brooklyn when some prescience warned him not to embark for South America as he intended. Instead, he hurried aboard the Comanche wearing the French beard he has lately allowed to grow.

A wireless flashed to the steamer caused a search for him in the belief that he is a stowaway. He was observed by sailors on board just before sailing, according to the wireless, and when the Comanche arrives in Charleston a swarm of man hunters will hunt for him in the hold.

ARREST DELAYED ON ACCOUNT OF STOLEN PIGEON

An avian thief caused the slip up which allowed him to escape. The train robber arrived in Brooklyn several days ago after a jaunt of 5,000 miles—the last point of contact being Whitby, Canada—on his recent being delayed pending the payment of money to the "informant" who was to give up the stowaway. The price of the bandit was set at $500 first, but the stool pigeon raised it to $1,000 and demanded the money be placed in a Brooklyn savings bank to his credit before proceeding with his job. The sum was set up and the trap laid.

Kauffman should have taken a steamer for South America this afternoon, but he didn't. And so the trail is on again.

With three negroes under his leadership, Kauffman, who is twenty-seven years old and the son of a wealthy merchant in Dallas, Texas, set out to rob trains. Several were held up after his going from Dallas, but no trace of the robber could be found. His hold up of the Sunset Limited was spectacular. The engineer saw five men stride across the rails and started down in time to see four masked robbers sliding down the train firing revolvers in motion picture style. Quickly surrounding the train and ordering the express car detached, the robbers dynamited the safe and took away.

He was captured with his band after two days, quickly brought to trial and convicted. He was sentenced to twenty-five years. On an appeal taken by his father he was released on $30,000 bail furnished by a business acquaintance of the family. A week later he disappeared, and the bail was forfeited. Then the chase began.

Kauffman was known as a wild youth in Dallas and was often in trouble before he became a train robber. He is heavily built, of dark complexion and has a broken nose.

NOT MODEST ALTSCHULER, BUT JACOB THAT SUE

Justice Goff's Decision Was Not Against Conductor of Russian Symphony.

Jacob Altschuler, not Modest Altschuler, is the musician who brought suit for injunction yesterday to restrain the Musical Mutual Protective Union from interfering with his work after he had been notified that he had been suspended from the organization. The application for an injunction was denied by Supreme Court Justice Goff. From the secretary of the union it was learned today that Jacob was the man who engaged musicians for the Russian Symphony Orchestra, of which Modest Altschuler is the conductor. When, as it is alleged, the orchestra failed to meet some of its salary claims, responsibility was placed upon Jacob, because he had done the hiring. Under the rules he was suspended. In denying the injunction, Justice Goff declared that Jacob was not suspended as he contended, but that he was expelled.

According to Jacob Altschuler, an offer was made to pay the musicians in increments but was suspended. He does not agree to make any exceptions to the rule that those who engage musicians must be responsible for their salaries.

Bandit Who Tricked Detectives and Escaped From Brooklyn

MOTHER OF TEN TAKES TWO LITTLE SONS ON HIKE TO MINNEAPOLIS

Plucky Mrs. Chester, Who Saved Whole Family From Fire, Walks to Buy Home.

The mother of ten living children, plucky Mrs. Marie B. Chester started from City Hall at noon today to walk to Minneapolis on a wager. She has agreed to do the trip in sixty days and the wager is a fund sufficient to rebuild her burned home in Middletown. She is accompanied by her two sons, Charles and Henry, thirteen and fourteen years old respectively.

The boys were so confident as their mother when they started that they would make the trip without a break. Their mother, besides being a good walker, they said cheerfully, is a fine cook and can roast a chicken outdoors in hot weather as well as any cook in a hot house as well as a veteran.

The Mayor gave Mrs. Chester a letter saying she had begun her trip at the City Hall and wishing her success. He also asked that every one treat her courteously on the long hike.

Mrs. Chester was dressed in a short skirt and wore a wide brimmed straw hat and stout, broad soled shoes. She carried a satchel and a stick. Each of the boys carried a satchel and wore a large, flaring straw hat.

A year ago Mrs. Chester's home was burned to the ground in the night. She saved her ten sleeping children and her aged father unscathed and received burns from which she suffered for weeks. Her health was impaired and she could perform no work for months. She regained her health by systematic walking. Her husband disappeared after the fire.

At Middletown the trio will harness the family dog, Sport, to a little wagon which will be loaded with the camping outfit. Then the real journey to Minneapolis will begin.

GOT READY TO MARRY, BUT FOUND HE HAD WIFE

So Miss Truesdale Sues Mr. Bellony for $25,000 Damages to Her Heart.

Miss Camille Truesdale, an actress, who says she has always earned a good salary on the stage, would have married Alexander M. Bellony, a wealthy resident of Buffalo, N. Y., after he had implored her incessantly to do so, but she found out that she couldn't, for she already was the wife of a man when he made the proposal. This state of affairs was revealed in a breach of promise suit filed against the Buffalo man by Miss Truesdale in which she seeks bailment for her injured heart in the sum of $25,000. The complaint was filed in the County Clerk's office.

Bellony's alleged proposal was made at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany. She demurred at first and romantically asked for "time to think the serious matter over." A month later, in March of this year, she accepted Bellony's proposal and began to design her trousseau and arrange the details for her honeymoon itinerary. On May 17 she learned that Bellony was married, she alleges. She claims she had given up a good theatrical position to marry Bellony, also the money she spent for a house and other necessities and the lost job and the salary that went with it.

SENATORS IN RAGE, MULHALL ANGRY AT CROSS-EXAMINER

Witness Declares He Will Not Answer N. A. M.'s Questions Unless Counsel Advises.

SCOLDED BY CHAIRMAN.

Lawyer for Manufacturers Insists on Reading His Own Questions.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Stormy scenes marked today's session of the Senate lobby investigation. Col. M. M. Mulhall, ex-lobbyist for the N. A. M., lost his temper, several committee members had spirited passages at arms and Attorney Robert McCarter for the N. A. M. interrupted proceedings with a "bitter protest as a result of the attempt to begin cross-examination of Mulhall.

Senator Overman started reading the questions submitted by McCarter. The lawyer objected strenuously, demanding that he be permitted to read his own interrogatories.

"By outbreak and inference," he said, "this man has dragged in the mire members of the N. A. M., and we believe we have the right of attacking these statements. We have moved our offices and offices here at your pleasure. We want fair treatment. We couldn't tell in preparing these questions what answers this witness would make.

"Unless followed up, some of our questions will be unintelligible." MULHALL SAYS HE WILL REFUSE TO ANSWER.

After a long wrangle McCarter finally carried his point. Then Mulhall flared up and asserted he would refuse to answer questions unless granted counsel. His anger was aroused at the first question, which related to his dismissal from the Cleveland (O.) police force in 1912.

"I want counsel," he said. "I won't talk. I'll go to jail for contempt first," he said. "I was only their agent when I worked for this organization. I won't let them attack me and get away with it."

Senators Reed and Nelson argued the question vigorously. "Let us conduct this examination without counsel," Senator Reed suggested. "You won't do that," interrupted Lawyer McCarter.

"We will," said Reed. "I won't hear you now." "You will hear another word, whether you like it or not," stormed McCarter. "I don't care what you think. I have some rights here."

Senator Overman finally restored order, but there was another babel when Mulhall insisted on being heard. The chairman lost his temper and shouted to the witness to "keep still!" Answering the cross-examination questions, Mulhall said his statement in "The World," that he made his letters public to clean out the "insidious lobby," and to "render a great public service," was an accurate one.

Pursuing the line of questioning, the N. A. M. questioner quizzed the witness on the events leading up to his resignation in the fall of 1911. Mulhall's answers were explosive and unsatisfactory. The lawyers put in a letter Mulhall wrote General Manager Bird, September 27, 1912, saying Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor gotten a promise from Woodrow Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, to support Representative Hughes for Senator.

John G. Sheve, Secretary to Congressman Gardner, was his source of information, he said.

SLUMP IN AVIATION IN THE UNITED STATES

So George Dyott From Abroad Will Try to Increase Interest in the Game.

George Dyott, who flies in his own aeroplane, which he manufactures abroad, had a talk with other aviators at the Nassau Boulevard aerodrome last night and was convinced by them that there wasn't enough being done in the United States these days to keep aviation before the people.

"For that reason," Mr. Dyott informed The Evening World by telephone from Brighton Beach today, "I packed my bag and at 6:30 this morning started from Garden City for Brighton Beach Race Track. I reached here at just half an hour. That means, of course, that I must have been traveling at nearly a hundred miles an hour, though it hardly seemed possible while I was in the air. However, there was a brisk wind behind me which increased it if it did not make navigation any too easy."

Mr. Dyott said that he would leave the race track at 6:30 this afternoon and "would be at Asbury Park at 7:30 o'clock." He intends to go on to Washington by easy stages, making the last part of the trip almost altogether overland.

SUFFRAGIST ARMY BESIEGES SENATE, ASKS FOR THE VOTE

Women From Every State Received With Honor and Plea Made for Them on Floor.

CROWD THE GALLERIES.

Senator Owen Their Spokesman While Other Members Make Speeches.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Women suffragists invaded the United States Senate today in spectacular array and helped along the cause of equal franchise in a manner far beyond their most sanguine expectations. Instead of finding the doors of the Capitol barred as do the militant English suffragists when they try to enter Parliament buildings the American women found a cordial welcome awaiting them, the great main doors of the Capitol wide open to let them in and the lobby of the Senate prepared as a reception room for them.

"I can't believe it is all true," exclaimed Miss Alice Paul, their leader, in an ecstasy of almost tearful delight. "Oh, look, look and see for yourself what a wonderful pilgrimage it has been, and crowned with such triumphant success. It is beyond all we hoped for, all we expected, all we wanted. We thought we would have a little body of a hundred women, just about two for each State in the Union. That would be ninety-six exactly. We planned to have a woman for each Senator, to see him and represent to him the petitions we have prepared.

WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS FROM EVERY STATE. "And now just look. See that line of automobiles coming up to the Capitol. There must be seventy-five of the machines, and at least three hundred women. They come from every State. Each one has her petitions. Oh, there are thousands upon thousands of names signed to them. Ladies, ladies, hurry, hurry, all of you get to the Senate chamber. The Senators are waiting to receive us."

The excited little leader danced in a fervor of joy and enthusiasm and she ran up and down the great stone steps of the Capitol and marshaled her army of women for the final triumph.

Each had her duty assigned, her petitions to hand and her particular Senator picked out. Arriving at the outer waiting room of the Senate, cards were sent by pages to the Senators one after another. Then each particular group of women was invited to enter the lobby and escorted to the marble reception room within the sacred precincts of the Senate itself. Only the floor of the actual meeting room was heard from their avowal.

The Senators received quickly to the calls and met their petitioners in the marble room. Within a few minutes the corridors and lobby were bustling with conversation. The armament of the women was composed of smiles. Their weapons were yards and yards of petitions done up in gorgeous bows of yellow ribbon. Their attack was conducted with soft and persuasive words of argument. Not an aggressive move, not a militant motion, no harsh notes marred the invasion and capture of the Senate. It was essentially feminine in every feature. The gowns were of white, the hats were of modish pattern, the smiles were alluring and the attack irresistible.

Even the crustiest of the old conservative Senators enjoyed being surrounded by bevy of attractive women who handed them bundles of petitions and solicited their support for the cause.

HEARD SPEECHES IN FAVOR OF VOTES FOR WOMEN. Senator Burton, of Ohio, an old bachelor, beamed on his detector. "Ladies," he said with mock gravity, "this is the most insidious lobby I have ever seen in the Senate. Its influence, I fear, will be most pernicious. I feel it my duty to call the attention of the Investigation Committee to your actions."

Then all laughed in glee and they loaded the Senator down with petitions, which he carried back to the Senate to formally present.

Senator Bacon of Georgia smiled on a delegation of Southern women. He was introduced to them as Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Relations. "I must make a correction," he said. "This is not a question of foreign relations but distinctly a domestic affair. Then he and the ladies laughed at this little joke and got along famously. A lady in costume garb with a broad sash marked "Illinois" accompanied by a stately brunette in Partisan gown waited for the gallant Senator James Hamilton Lewis who once dared oppose woman's suffrage. But how he repented when he met her. Never was the detestable Senator more courteously never were his words more complimentary than when he faced the fire of their arguments.

When all the petitions had been delivered to the Senators the women were escorted to the galleries of the Senate chamber and there listened to a number of short speeches in favor of woman's suffrage.

They were in ecstasy of delight. Even

WILSON FORMING MEXICAN POLICY OF FRIENDLY AIM

President Finds Conditions Improving, and Will Soon Act To Drop Envoy Wilson.

(Special from a Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.) WASHINGTON, July 31.—President Wilson has formulated a new plan to bring about an amicable settlement of the strained relations between the United States and Mexico, which will be announced within a short time. The President gave out late this afternoon only an inkling of it. The first part of the programme is the quick retirement of Henry Lane Wilson, Ambassador to Mexico, who has been talking too much. The President firmly stated that the report submitted by the Ambassador had not altered his analysis of the situation nor his judgment concerning it. This is taken to mean that dismissal of the Ambassador will quickly follow.

Concerning Mexican affairs, the President stated that a definite policy was rapidly forming in his mind. He is waiting a little time to see what results emanate from conferences and efforts among the Mexicans themselves, to bring about an adjustment of their troubles.

According to President Wilson, the situation in that country is not hopeless. On the contrary, he considers there is a good chance now for clearing up the difficulties. Instead of growing worse, the situation is getting better. There will be no intervention. The President's new policy involves nothing except what is entirely friendly to Mexico. No other steps are considered save those which are of the most friendly and considerate nature.
