LEG OF WOMAN FOUND, MAY BE PART OF BODY CAST INTO THE RIVER

Picked Up Off Keansburg in Lower Bay, Twenty Miles From the Point Where Other Parts Were Discovered.

STERNEMANN GIRL ALIVE, TALKS WITH DETECTIVE.

Daughter of Letter Writer Says She Kept Silent in Order to Avoid Visits From Father.

A portion of a woman's leg, cleanly cut just below the hip at one end and just above the knee at the other, was found at Keansburg, N. J., by two young men this afternoon.

The leg was cast up by high tide on the beach near the Morris Pavilion just outside of Keansburg. By the circuitous water route the spot where the leg was found was at least twenty miles from the place where the lower half of a murdered woman's body was found at Weehawken on Sunday and twenty-three miles from the spot where the upper portion of the torso was washed ashore two days before.

Irving Brander and Norman Carhart found the relic. They reported the discovery to the local police and Coroner Harry Fay of Red Bank was notified. He went over to take charge of the limb.

It is in an almost perfect state of preservation and the cuts at either end indicate that they were done by unusually sharp tools.

Hudson County officials will go down to Keansburg tonight to view the leg and bring it back to compare it with the fragments of the body now at Hoboken morgue.

Assistant District Attorney Murphy announced late this afternoon that he would apply at Night Court to have Peter Handel Sternemann committed to Bellevue for observation as to his sanity.

Ella Sternemann, daughter of the ready letter writer, Peter Handel Sternemann, is not dead and lives in partially assembled fragments on a slab in the Hoboken morgue, as her father has insisted by letter and word of mouth.

She was interviewed today by Detective William Maher of the Glendale station in the home of John Rithman, a distant relative, at No. 1543 Silver street, Fresh Pond, L. I. Ella Sternemann does not live there. She was by appointment, and only after much persuasion by the detectives, led by Rithman and his family, to induce her to meet Maher and clear the mystery of her whereabouts.

The girl is working as a maid in a home somewhere in Greater New York. It was only upon the word of Inspector Faurot at Headquarters that her present address would not be revealed that she consented to meet the detectives at the home of Rithman, one of whose daughters is the wife of John Sternemann, a half-brother of Peter of the ready pen.

She kept her address secret from father.

Ella Sternemann told Maher she had come forward sooner and revealed herself because she did not want her father to know where she was. She had been discharged from three or four positions in the past because her father had come around and interfered with her work, she said. Furthermore, she was tired of supporting him. He was prone to take all of her earnings for his own use.

POLICE WILL RAID RED LIGHT PLAYS IF NOT KEPT CLEAN

Special Performance of "The Lure" for Grand Jury Tomorrow Night.

"THE FIGHT" REVISED.

Counsel for Managers Insists That Objectionable Features Have Been Removed.

The advertisement that performances of "The Fight," one of the two red-light dramas suppressed because of the public sentiment against such plays that was shown to exist by The Evening World, does not mean, according to Commissioner Waldo and Chief City Magistrate McAdoo, that a reproduction of the objectionable parts of the play will be tolerated. It is an expurgated and deodorized version which is to be presented; the officials are informed. If it is the same play the managers will be arrested and the theatre license will be forfeited.

The attitude of the head of the Police Department is well known with regard to the "red light" plays. He holds a number of warrants for the arrest, not only of the principals, but of the actors, and the machinery of the law is ready to be set in motion at a moment's notice.

It was said to-day at headquarters that if any evasion be attempted of the agreement to suspend all proceedings until the Grand Jury shall pass on the merits of "The Lure" and "The Fight," activities will be begun by the police, and that there will be no further leniency shown to management and actors.

Max Steuer, attorney for the Harrie estate, which is operating the Hudson Theatre, has addressed a letter to Commissioner Waldo, in which he states that on Thursday night the management intends to give a perfect performance of "The Fight." There is not an idea, a word or an action in the play which is to be put on, he says, which constitutes a violation of section 1160, paragraph A, of the penal law.

It is understood that a similar letter has been forwarded by Attorney Steuer to Chief Magistrate McAdoo, adding that a private performance would be given of the play, which had been rewritten by the author, this afternoon, this evening or to-morrow, at any hour. An early reply was asked for.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo said this afternoon that the matter of stopping "The Fight" was entirely up to the police. The matter is in the hands of Commissioner Waldo, he said, "and I have so advised him. Attorney Steuer showed me a copy of a letter which he had sent to Commissioner Waldo in which it was stated that all objectionable features had been removed, that the play had been rewritten in fact. This does not interfere with the original case and I have advised the police that it is their duty to visit the performance and if there is any violation of the law immediately to make a complaint."

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Bill Dahlen and his Dodgers pitched their camp on the west side this afternoon for a three-day battle with the Cubs. The Brooklyn men arrived here from Pittsburgh to-day feeling that they were lucky after taking the measure of the Pirates in yesterday's conflict at Forbes Field. The Dodgers feel that they are going to be able to puncture the winning streak of the Cubs, for they are anxious for revenge because of three straight defeats handed them in Brooklyn by the locals on the last Eastern trip of the west side men.

FIRST INNING—Moran led off with a single to right. Cutshaw forced Moran at second and was doubled at first. Corrigan unassisted to Saler. Collins walked. Stengel hit to Miller. No Runs.

Leach popped to Cutshaw. Phelan was given base on balls. Schulte was safe on Fisher's fumble. Zimmerman fled out to Stengel. Saler fouled to Daubert. No Runs. Two Left.

SECOND INNING—Daubert singled to left. Smith was out. Phelan to Saler. Fisher fled out to Miller. Fischer walked. Rucker beat out a lap to Cheney, hitting the bases. Moran

FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 10.—The New York Giants are well primed for the last Western trip of the season. Considering the fact that they always play well in the West, it appears likely that they will settle the race for the flag definitely before they return home. Of course the Giants are going to have a hard time here, for the Pirates are very dextrous at finishing in third place.

FIRST INNING—Snodgrass fled to Carey. Doyle walked. Fletcher singled to third base and Doyle was caught in a run up. Dolan to Wagner. Burns doubled to left, scoring Fletcher. Shafer fled to Wilson. One Run. One Left.

Dolan fanned. Carey fled to Snodgrass. Viox was safe on Fletcher's overthrow, but was out at second base, Merkle to Fletcher. No Runs. None Left.

Wagner fouled to Meyers. Miller singled to centre. Wilson fouled to Meyers. Miller out stealing. Meyers to Fletcher. No Runs. None Left.

THIRD INNING—Snodgrass struck out. Doyle doubled to centre. Dolan threw out Fletcher. Doyle taking third. Burns drove in another run when he singled to centre, scoring Doyle. Burns out stealing. Gibson to Wagner. One Run. None Left.

Mitchell lined to Murray. So did Simon. McQuillan shot a safe hit to right field but lost it when he loaded as Murray threw him out at first base. No Runs. None Left.

FOURTH INNING—Shafer out, Miller to McQuillan. Murray fled to Carey. McQuillan tossed out Meyers. No Runs. None Left.

THAW IN NEW BATTLE AGAINST EXTRADITION FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE

Counsel Demands Release From Colebrook, Where He Is Held Awaiting Jerome's Arrival, After 75-Mile Race in Auto.

TURNED LOOSE IN VERMONT, FREE ONLY THREE HOURS

Crosses Two States and Canadian Boundary During Aimless but Spectacular Flight Toward Maine.

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 10.—Harry K. Thaw, arrested here, about three hours after the Canadian immigration authorities had hustled him over the line into Vermont from Coaticook, in the Province of Quebec, and turned him loose on his own resources, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. C. Carr this afternoon, charged with being a fugitive from justice from New York State. C. F. Johnson, a lawyer employed by Thaw as soon as he arrived here, protests against the proceeding, on the ground that Thaw is not a fugitive from justice and is not accused of a crime, but Bernard Jacobs, a lawyer retained by the State of New York, insisted that Thaw be held until the arrival of William Travers Jerome, Special District Attorney General of New York.

Mr. Jerome, the lawyer said, is on his way here from Bennington, Vt., and had telephoned that he expected to take a special train on the Connecticut River Railroad in order that he might reach here to-night. Mr. Jacobs set forth that Thaw escaped from Mattawan, a State insane asylum, to which he was committed by an order of the Supreme Court, and that the order had been upheld by other New York courts.

Thaw was composed during the court proceedings and allowed his lawyer to do his talking. He was not placed under arrest, but is in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Drew, who says he will keep his prisoner at the local hotel until Mr. Jerome and Deputy Attorney Franklin Kennedy of New York arrive.

THAW MADE 75 MILE RACE IN AUTO.

Thaw had ridden about seventy-five miles in an automobile, following a devious route through Vermont and New Hampshire, when he was arrested. His appearance here created a great sensation. But there were no demonstrations in his favor as there had been in Canada. After luncheon at the hotel, Thaw went to a barber shop, where he was shaved, washed and brushed up. Then he bought a clean collar and said he was ready to let New Hampshire justice take its course. His arraignment before the justice of the peace followed.

When Thaw crossed the international boundary at 9 o'clock this morning, after his forcible deportation from Coaticook, only about a dozen persons were at Norton Mills, the first town on the Vermont side of the border, and none of them made any attempt to delay his car.

For the first time since his arrest at Coaticook, three weeks ago, Thaw was a free man. He stood for a few moments, not knowing which way to go, and then asked one of the newspaper correspondents who had followed him from Coaticook in an auto if he might enter his car. Permission was granted and the party started immediately for Averill, where a stop was made at the village inn.

On reaching Averill, Thaw attempted to get in telephonic communication with some of his lawyers at Montreal, but the line was working badly and he was unsuccessful. He had breakfast at the inn, partaking of a bowl of bread and milk.

DOUBLED BACK INTO CANADA ON AUTO FLIGHT.

Re-entering the auto, Thaw and his newspaper acquaintances doubled back into Canada for a short distance, and then returned to American territory at Canaan and Beecher Falls, Vt., crossing the Connecticut River to New Hampshire at 10 o'clock. Throughout the trip Thaw made no attempt to conceal his identity.

The first stop in New Hampshire was made at West Stewartstown, where Thaw stood in the village square for ten minutes, talking freely with those who gathered about him. He was very nervous and tried again, unsuccessfully, to get in touch with his mother and his attorneys. After leaving West Stewartstown Thaw stopped at the farm of Mrs. Martha Appleton, where he entered the kitchen and asked for permission to use the telephone. Again he failed to connect either with Montreal or Colebrook, where court was in session and where he wished to engage a New Hampshire attorney.

As soon as the Coos County officials learned Thaw was in their jurisdiction, spreading the net for his apprehension was begun, and two hours before noon the few roads leading toward Dixville Notch and the Maine
