BAGMAN McLEAN'S REPORT SHOWS NO FUNDS FROM ANY OF BIG INTERESTS

The Contributions From the Asphalt Companies and Contractors Not on Sworn List. HENNESSY NAMED THEM.

Where Did They Go? Who Got Them? Did They Travel With Tony Brady's $25,000?

(Special to The Evening World.) ALBANY, Oct. 22.—In view of the statement of John Hennessy that the Bitulthic Paving Company, the Barber Asphalt Company and others interested in State contracts contributed to the Democratic State campaign fund last fall through Treasurer Arthur McLean of Newburgh, "Murphy's Bagman," a complete list of the contributions reported by Mr. McLean to the Secretary of State was secured to-day.

It does not include any mention of a contribution from the Bitulthic Paving Company, claimed by Mr. Hennessy to have amounted to $5,000, nor of a contribution of $5,000 from the Barber Asphalt Company, which Mr. Hennessy claims Mr. McLean got. Neither does the list carry the names of "Jim" Stewart, who, Mr. Hennessy says, has given McLean $5,000, or a contractor named Kerbaugh, who is said by Mr. Hennessy to have given up $10,000 in three years.

Everett Fowler, who is said by Mr. Hennessy to be the agent for the good roads contractors, contributed $5,000. Bart Dunn, the New York Tammany district leader who is under indictment in Rockland County, was the only other contractor on the State roads whose name appears in the list.

In addition to the $10,000 he gave William Sulzer, Thomas F. Ryan gave $10,000 to the State Committee and was the largest individual contributor. August Belmont is down for $2,000 and Reeves Smith for $6,000.

The name of Samuel A. Beardsley, the late Anthony N. Brady's agent, does not appear on the list. Mr. Hennessy says William Sulzer refused $20,000 from Beardsley and that Beardsley took the money to Charles F. Murphy.

The largest contribution appearing on the list is a total of $83,000 from the Democratic National Committee. Search of the list for the names of canal contractors reveals none, although Mr. Hennessy says he has proof of contributions by at least two of these gentlemen. However, he does not name them. Big Tom McGee is there with $2,000. Honest Graft George Plunkitt $1,000, while Soft Soap Bart Dunn gave a measly $300. Later on Mr. Dunn came across with $200 more. Some of the names on the list reported by Treasurer McLean follow. It is sworn to in due form as required by law:

IRATE NEIGHBOR MAY HAVE SHOT AT SICK BABY

"Shut That Brat Up," Yelled Disturbed Sleeper — Bullet Follows When Cries Continue

After waiting nine days for police aid, John Helmutz, a steel and iron merchant, with offices in the Hudson Terminal Building, retained private detectives to-day to learn who tried to shoot his seven-month-old baby, John, while the baby was crying in his cot in the Helmutz apartment, No. 75 Northern avenue, at One Hundred and Eighty-first street.

The baby had been suffering from indigestion for several days and was under the constant care of a physician, who had ordered that it be kept near an open window when asleep. The baby cried almost constantly from pain, waking at brief intervals through the night. On the night of Oct. 12 a man's voice shouted from a window opening on the interior court of the house on which the window of the nursery opened: "Shut that brat up!" "Shut it!"

Mr. and Mrs. Helmutz ran to the window of their own room, but could not tell from what apartment the shout came. They went to bed a little later. At 2 o'clock in the morning the baby began to cry again. Mrs. Helmutz made him as comfortable as she could and returned to her room. Little John was still crying.

She had hardly put out the light when a revolver snort crashed in the court and there was a tinkling of glass in the nursery. The Helmutzs ran in. There was a shattered hole in the window, a foot above the baby's crib and a bullet lay on the coverlid. The bullet had crossed the room, flattened against the wall and dropped behind the radiator. Mr. Helmutz made an investigation at once, but could not trace the shot.

Mr. Helmutz told a reporter of The Evening World to-day that he had gone to the police of the St. Nicholas avenue station to make a complaint, but had been told by a lieutenant that the police could do nothing in the case unless he could furnish them with the name of the person who fired the shot. He did not hear of the matter again. Mr. Helmutz says he knows the man who shot at the baby, but has no means of proving that the same man fired the shot.

WIFE SAYS HUBBY HIRED WOMAN TO LURE HER TO RUIN

Female Detective Took Her to Hotel Where Husband Had Set a Trap.

DECLARES HE BOASTED.

"It Cost Me Only $1,000 to Get You," Wife Quotes Him in Affidavit.

Mary R. Morgan, sued for divorce by Ralph C. Morgan, head of the outside securities department of Charles H. Jones & Company, of No. 29 Broad street, submitted affidavits to-day to Justice Garrison in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn charging her husband with criminal conspiracy to blacken her character.

The Morgans were married in 1907 in the Little Church Around the Corner and separated in 1911. Mrs. Morgan swears, because of his attentions to Miss Jean Lynch, a stenographer, Mr. Morgan, who lives at No. 267 West Seventy-ninth street, charges his wife with misconduct between July 1 and Sept. 5, 1913, with a man unknown to him at No. 399 West Ninety-ninth street, where she had lodgings; with another man, not named, from Sept. 5 to Sept. 12, at No. 111 West Forty-seventh street; with another, Aug. 27 at the Colonial Hotel; with another, Sept. 3 at the Hotel Braddock, and with H. L. Lewis, Sept. 12, at the Hotel Monsey at No. 127 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street.

CAUGHT WITH MAN IN RAID ON HOTEL ROOM.

The testimony offered against her was supplied in affidavits by Jacob Cohen, a detective; Arthur C. Turner, an employee of Jones & Co., and Jack E. B. Cummings, who said that they accompanied Mr. Morgan on the night of Sept. 12 to the Hotel Monsey and took room No. 78. They then went to room No. 84, found the door unlocked. Inside was Mrs. Morgan, they said, with her hair disarranged, her hair down and young Lewis lying partly dressed on the bed. On the register, room No. 98 was charged against "H. L. Lewis and wife, Norfolk, Va."

Mrs. Morgan said that in September a new lodger appeared in the Ninety-ninth street house, calling herself Mrs. Dorothy Walsley. They became very good friends. Sept. 12 Mrs. Walsley, she said, introduced an elderly man as Mr. Anderson of Los Angeles, her fiancé and a very wealthy merchant. Mrs. Walsley and Mr. Anderson invited her to go out for the evening. They visited a restaurant and cabarets and drank a great deal, Mrs. Morgan said. At Sonoma's, in Harlem, young Lewis spoke to Mr. Anderson and was introduced as an old friend from Newport, Va. Mrs. Morgan said that she became very sick while they were riding through Central Park, and after that her head cleared and she knew everything that was going on.

COUPLE LEFT ALONE IN ROOM OF HOTEL.

After midnight Mr. Anderson suggested that they go to the Hotel Monsey and play cards. He made the arrangements for the room, Mrs. Morgan said, and they went to room No. 98 and played cards for a time. The women took off their hats and coats at the suggestion of Mr. Anderson. He explained, at the card table, to Mrs. Morgan, that he has the work was accomplished, taking into consideration the magnitude of the work and the time it required.

"I do not expect to go through the canal via water, and it is my intention to return by November 15." The Secretary of War would not discuss the Mexican situation.

ANOTHER CHILD CRUSHED TO DEATH BY A MAIL TRUCK

Wheels of Big Auto Pass Over Three-Year-Old Julius Surback in Brooklyn.

CHAUFFEUR SET FREE.

He Is Allowed to Go Pending an Investigation by the Police.

An automobile mail truck of the type which have been spreading dismay by their reckless charges through crowded streets in Manhattan since the transfer of the mails was put in charge of automobile contractors who took the place of the old cage-wagons drawn by bony horses, killed a boy this afternoon.

The little fellow was Julius Surback, aged three years. He was run down at Fourteenth avenue and Seventy-sixth street while playing in the street. The driver of the truck, C. H. Smith of No. 193 Chauncey street, was taking a load of parcel post mail out through Flatbush. The streets were not crowded and he had a block to slacken speed—according to witnesses—to avoid running into the children. These witnesses say he drove his big car at some distance from the curb, apparently relying upon the command of his horn to clear playing children and other persons out of the way.

The little Surback boy made no effort to get out of the way of the car. Apparently he did not realize his danger. The truck knocked him down and the wheels passed over the middle of his body. Smith stopped the car at once, ran and picked up the little boy. He laid him on the seat of the truck and made all speed to the Roosevelt Hospital, where little Julius was taken in charge by Dr. Aborn. The boy died almost as soon as he was laid on the operating table.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED BY A WAGON.

Hugh Kelly, five years old, started to run across the street in front of his home at No. 302 East Eighty-ninth street to-day. He did not see a delivery wagon going east and ran against the front wheel, which was knocked over and the wheels passed over his body.

FLATBUSH FLOODED WHEN PIPE BREAKS.

Water Shoots Five Feet High and Police Rescue Mother and Infant. Had William Henry Noah circulated around Flatbush in the vicinity of East New York and Albany avenues near noon to-day, he would surely have been collecting the untraced animals in the district and headed them toward the ark. For when a big water main at this corner broke there was a flood which rose to a height of five feet.

Mrs. Raphael Mastromoni of No. 372 East New York avenue had given birth to a baby a few hours before the main broke. Gallant Policemen, Tom of the Flatbush avenue station, carried her and the infant out of the flooded home. Three fire engines came to pump out the water and a crew of the Flatbush Waterworks Company worked in water under their axits to repair the leak.

WOMAN WHO STUMPS IN THE CROWDED STREETS FOR FUSION.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman addressed a big crowd of workmen at the Battery at noon to-day. She rapped Tammany as hard as the ablest spellbinder could do it and gave many reasons why Fusion should win at the polls.

"I'LL GET WELL," POISON VICTIM'S DEFI TO DOCTOR

Man Who Took Mercury by Mistake Making Courageous Fight for Life.

SITS UP AND READS.

Physician Says There Is No Hope, But Patient Merely Smiles.

Isaac Levy, the aged clothier who swallowed four bicloride of mercury tablets last Monday morning in mistake for harmless aspirin, declares he isn't going to die. Although his physician, Dr. Jacob Sarnoff of No. 1819 Eighty-fifth street, Bath Beach, has told him that his end is only a matter of days, or possibly hours, Mr. Levy has refused to become dismayed.

In the Sunshine Sanitarium in Coney avenue, with Dr. Sarnoff hurried him from his home, No. 835 Twenty-second avenue, as soon as he discovered that his patient had taken poison. Mr. Levy spends his time propped up on pillows in his bed, talking with the members of his family or reading.

"I feel no pain and I know I am going to get well," he persists, and Dr. Sarnoff only shakes his head and tells visitors that Mr. Levy is mistaken. The physician believes there is no hope for him, though he considers that if there were, Mr. Levy's indomitable spirit would greatly increase his chances of recovery.

The members of the clothier's family are broken hearted, though they are encouraged, against their judgment, by the husband and father's courage. There are few minutes of the day when his wife or some of his children are not with him.

Mr. Levy's eleven children are married and have homes in scattered sections of Brooklyn. As soon as Dr. Sarnoff realized the condition of the old man he sent word to all of them to visit their father for the last time. Immediately the eleven gathered at the family home in Twenty-second avenue and there they are staying waiting for the end. Of them all only Mr. Levy is thoroughly confident and undisturbed.

TAMMANY FRAMES UP A SCARE FOR HENNESSY BY CRIMINAL ACTION

Lawyers Plan Arrest for Libel on Account of His Charges Against the Organization Leader and Candidate McCall.

CHIEF MURPHY DENIES PURCHASE OF JUDGESHIP

"Hennessy's Speech Last Night Was Diabolical—He Invented the Sulzer Statements," Declares McCall.

A visit paid by William Travers Jerome to District-Attorney Whitman at noon to-day gave rise to the report that Mr. Jerome had been retained by Edward E. McCall to institute criminal libel proceedings against John A. Hennessy. The information came from sources outside the District-Attorney's office and Mr. Jerome.

Judge McCall, it is said, regards the intimation of Hennessy that he (McCall) paid Charles F. Murphy for his nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court—bought his nomination, in effect—is criminally libelous.

Tammany Hall gossip has it that Judge McCall's interests in this respect are in the hands of a committee of Tammany lawyers, who have held at least two conferences and have decided that the only way to shut off Hennessy is to bring a libel action against him.

TALK OF PROCEEDING AGAINST SULZER.

This committee of lawyers, it is said, is also framing up a way of instigating criminal proceedings against William Sulzer.

Mr. Jerome refused to talk about the matter when he left the District-Attorney's office. Mr. Whitman was informed of the nature of the gossip attending Mr. Jerome's visit.

"All I can say," said the District-Attorney, "is that I wasn't asked to have anybody indicted by the Grand Jury."

That some course of action has been mapped out by Tammany was indicated by Charles F. Murphy's attitude to-day. He has been saying ever since Monday that as soon as William Sulzer was through making statements there would be a complete and satisfactory Murphy statement.

To-day the boss had changed his mind.

"I don't know that I'll say anything at all," he declared. "At any rate, I'm not ready to talk now."

Mr. Murphy then broke a long standing rule. He made a prediction. He said that if the election were held to-morrow McCall's plurality would be at least 150,000, and that the sentiment for the Judge is growing all the time.

"CHIEF" SAYS HE MEANS IT.

"Do you really mean that?" asked one of his hearers. "Of course I do," he replied, calmly.

Mr. Murphy was asked about Hennessy's statement that Judge McCall bought his nomination. The boss paused a moment before replying: "Judge McCall paid me!" he ejaculated, usually. "I don't have to answer that charge, but I will say that it is absolute nonsense to suggest that Judge McCall paid anybody. And that is as far as I will go with Mr. John Hennessy."

Judge McCall addressed an immense audience of business men at noon to-day in the rooms of the Travellers' League of America at No. 560 Broadway. He made no answer to any of the Hennessy or Sulzer charges, but confined himself to a technical discussion of the subway situation as it applies to John Purroy Mitchel.

The meeting was a great disappointment. Judge McCall's hearers listened respectfully and applauded with reserve. There wasn't a sign of enthusiasm about the occasion although the candidate threw all his force and personality into his address.

ASKS McCALL ABOUT "CHIEF."

As the Judge was leaving some one yelled at him: "How's the Chief?" He did not hear or pretended not to hear, but the libel raised a laugh and some jeering.

William Sulzer issued a denial to-day of the statement sent down from Albany that he has $100,000 on deposit in a bank in Toronto, Canada. The denial was general. He said he would issue a statement this afternoon.

Mr. Sulzer and his wife kept to their rooms in the Broadway Central Hotel all through the morning and the early afternoon. James C. Garrison, who was sent to the Albany County Penitentiary for contempt of the Assembly and was released yesterday on parole by a Supreme Court Justice, appeared at the hotel at 11 o'clock and announced that he was in charge of
