TO GIVE TWO IRISH PLAYS.

A strong military version of the Irish play "Robert Emmet" will be given by the Irish Players of New York at the Central Opera House on East Sixty-seventh street, next Monday night, St. Patrick's eve. Following the play, with Dr. P. T. Cunningham in the leading role, the Irish actors will give "The Irish Attorney," a humorous play lasting thirty minutes. After the plays motion pictures will be shown, to be followed by dancing.

Years ago under the stage name of "Hugh O'Neill" Dr. Cunningham gained wide repute in the West as an impersonator of Irish characters. He has written several Irish plays and is an enthusiast on the revival of Irish drama and song.

The Irish Players of New York is composed of young men and women of Irish descent who have had stage experience. In the two plays to be presented Monday night Miss Beulah Lorton, who is slated to Justice Lorton of the Supreme Court of the United States, will appear in leading roles.
