WOMAN ANARCHIST THREATENS TO KILL J. D. ROCKEFELLER JR.

Marie Gantz Fights Way Into Office, Curses Officials and Repeats Threat in Bowling Green Park—Police Do Not Interfere

MUST ARBITRATE OR DIE, "SWEET MARIE" CRIES OUT.

Upton Sinclair, Sent to Jail With Women "Mourners," Goes on Hunger Strike in the Tombs.

Two threats to shoot and kill John D. Rockefeller jr. unless he consented to arbitrate his side of the Colorado mining war were made to-day by Marie Gantz, anarchist and I. W. W. agitator. The first threat was made in the ante-room of Mr. Rockefeller's office in the Standard Oil Building; the second was uttered to a crowd of 2,000 strong in Bowling Green Park which the woman was addressing under police protection. With her when she made both threats was Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, who served a term in prison for shooting Henry C. Frick. Becky Edelson, under bonds for causing riots in Printing House Square, was another companion of the Gantz woman.

The three went to the Standard Oil Building as soon as they had heard that Upton Sinclair and two of his women followers had chosen to go to jail for three days rather than pay fines of $3 for parading in front of the building wearing mourning badges and thus collecting a crowd yesterday. Marie Gantz strode up the steps ahead of the others. She is a short, plump, pink-and-white girl from whose lips the queer and unpleasant language she uses comes strangely. The crowds which bait her at soap-box meetings call her "Sweet Marie."

A gray uniformed hall man stepped in front of the elevator. She slapped him out of her way and cursed him. The elevator man said his car was out of order. She spoke profanely to him also and threatened to pitch him into the hall and run the car herself. She took the three up to the fourteenth floor. "Sweet Marie" entered Mr. Rockefeller's outer office alone.

"I want to see Mr. Rockefeller," she said to the fat little negro who sits at a desk in the outer office of the oil millionaire. "Get him out here."

In vain the doorman, who has turned back millionaires and statesmen, tried to frown her down. She used words which scared him and went hurrying back of the partition, only to put his head through the inner door and tell her that Mr. Rockefeller had gone out.

"I'll shoot him, you tell him," she shouted, "unless he arbitrates the Colorado strikes. I'll shoot him down like a dog." She added insulting epithets applied to Mr. Rockefeller.

Rejoining Reba Edelson and Berkman, "Sweet Marie" then went down to the street and took a turn or two with the increased paraders of the "Black Band of Free Silence" in front of the building. She then went to the upper end of Bowling Green Park and climbed to the top of a pile of street railway timbers. The other two followed. A crowd of two thousand at once gathered.

She began to harangue the multitude. Scores of howls and messengers charged on the impromptu platform, jeering and yelling. Twice the woman and her friends were pushed off their perch. Five policemen plunged into the mob and cleared a little space to stop the yelling, but they could not control the jeering. Occasionally the Gantz woman's voice could be heard above the uproar.

Once she shrieked out the same insults to John D. Rockefeller jr. she had uttered in his office, and repeated the threat to "shoot him down"

MAHONEY SAYS HE TRIED TO KILL ANDREW CARNEGIE

Mayor's Assailant Told Doctor He Also Had Three Others on His List.

Michael P. Mahoney, who attempted to assassinate Mayor Mitchell two weeks ago, had three other prominent men on his list, and once made an unsuccessful attempt to kill Andrew Carnegie, according to testimony offered to the Mahoney Lunacy Commission to-day by Dr. Gregory, the alienist of Bellevue Hospital.

"Mahoney," said Dr. Gregory, "has been a sufferer from systematized, boastful and egotistical senile delirium insensitively for the past thirty years. The disease progressed to a state where he imagined he was called upon to be a great reformer and change the system of things. He told me he intended to murder the Mayor and three others whose names he refused to give. Once, he said, he started out to kill Andrew Carnegie with a revolver and 'just barely missed him.' He meant, I think, that he missed the chance to shoot at the millionaire, not that he actually fired at him."

The taking of testimony in the matter of Mahoney's mental condition will be concluded in a short time. It is expected that a report will be made on his case early next week.

NORDICA IS DYING IN ISLAND OF JAVA AFTER SHIPWRECK

Famous Prima Donna Has Had Relapse and Doctors Give Up All Hope.

SHE WAS COMING HOME

Her Husband, a New York Banker, Expected to Meet Her Abroad Before Accident.

BATAVIA, Java, April 30.—Mme. Lillian Nordica, the prima donna, who arrived here quite ill nearly a month ago, has had a relapse and is sinking. The doctors give up all hope of her recovery. She had engaged passage for Genoa, where her husband, George W. Young, had expected to meet her.

A message received at the banking office of George W. Young, No. 59 Cedar street, to-day corroborated the despatches from the island of Java stating that Mme. Nordica had experienced a relapse and that her life is despaired of. Mr. Young was not at his office. He is in retirement in the privacy of the home of a friend in New York. To the repeated messages of sympathy and inquiries from newspapers and friends of the singer answers were made by Mr. Young's secretary.

"The first intimation of Mme. Nordica's turn for the worse," said Mr. Young's secretary, "came yesterday in the shape of a brief message announcing a relapse. 'To-day another message of far more grave import was received here. The message was forwarded to Mr. Young uptown. It stated in effect that the physicians held out little hope for Mrs. Young's recovery.'"

Mme. Nordica became ill as the result of her experiences in the wreck of the steamship Tasman in Torres Strait last January. The ship ran upon a reef and the passengers were put ashore in small boats, landing on Thursday island. It took several days to disembark the passengers and the singer developed a cold which later reached the stage of pneumonia.

The first cable news received by Mr. Young was of a reassuring nature, but later it took on a graver tone and it was decided to have the singer put an end to her proposed concert tour around the world and have her brought back to America. With her are her cousin, Mrs. Ada Baldwin; Paul Dufault, a tenor; Franklin Harding, violinist, and a pianist.

SECRET "MAKE UP" OF GRAYS CRASHED IN HOTEL TEA ROOM

It Was a Nice Scheme, She Thought, but He Said "Blackmail."

COCKTAILS DID IT.

She Could See the Change in His Eyes, She Tells the Court.

Qualified as an expert on matrimonial troubles by three years' litigation in the Supreme and Police Courts, Mrs. Justine Sutton Gray, attractive young wife of John Boyd Gray, one of ex-Gov. Sulzer's brokers, has discovered something new—a secret reconciliation. There's no reason, however, to get excited about what it will do for mis-mated couples since Mrs. Gray, in testifying in her separation suit before Supreme Court Justice Cobhan to-day, said it wasn't a success.

When the Grays wanted to patch up their difficulties last year, according to Mrs. Gray, she admitted her secret reconciliation plan to her husband as they were sitting in a secluded part of the tearoom of the Prince George Hotel. The plan, she said, was to work something like this:

She was not to be seen in public places with her husband, because he did not want his friends to know that they were on good terms.

She was to live with her mother at the latter's home in Pleasantville four days of the week and to spend three days with her husband in an apartment on Riverside Drive.

She was not to let any one except her mother know of the arrangement and promised to use every means to keep the plan from reaching her husband's wealthy aunt.

She was to travel in her closed automobile on shopping tours in New York City and was always to meet her husband in some "quiet little hotel or restaurant," where his friends were not likely to see them together.

She was to use an assumed name in telephoning to him. Although this plan spelled success in Mrs. Gray's mind, she says, she had no sooner submitted it to her husband than he jumped from his chair and accused her of blackmailing him. He rushed her away to a Police Court, she testified, and there charged her with trying to extort money from him. This charge was dismissed and the secret reconciliation fell with a smash.

Asked why her self-styled "secret reconciliation" was not a success, Mrs. Gray said that for one thing her husband had drunk two cocktails just previous to their talk and "that seemed to change him."

"I could see the change come over him in his eyes," Mrs. Gray testified. "It was very funny," she went on, "but when my husband and I were together and we talked things over, I would believe him, but the minute he was away from me I couldn't believe him because all I had to rely on were his past performances."

In speaking of some of the bright spots in her married life Mrs. Gray told of how her husband lavished gifts upon her.

REBELS AND FEDERALS FIRE ON AMERICAN SHIP AT TAMPICO

One Man on Ward Liner Antilla Is Hit by Bullet in Sudden Attack Made on the Steamer in Harbor.

"SNIPERS" SHUTTING OFF SUPPLY OF FRESH FOOD.

Certain American Consuls Are Authorized to Return to Mexican Posts and Resume Business.

VERA CRUZ, April 30.—The Ward Line steamer Antilla was fired upon by both the Federal and the rebels at Tampico yesterday, according to a despatch received here to-day by wireless telegraphy from that seaport.

The steersman of the vessel was struck by one of the shots and killed.

VERA CRUZ, April 30.—The navy turned Vera Cruz over to the army to-day and Gen. Funston is now in command of the forces of the United States on Mexican soil. The withdrawal of the sailors from shore duty to their ship proceeded throughout the afternoon and Gen. Funston's force spread out to take up the positions abandoned by the landing force.

Impressive ceremony marked the transfer of Vera Cruz from Admirals Fletcher and Badger to Gen. Funston. The naval brigade of occupation assembled on Sanded Wharf. Blue jackets and marines were drawn up at attention. Natives and refugees gathered in great numbers at points of vantage and the soldiers on the transports awaiting landing swarmed along the rails in solid banks of brown.

After the national anthem had been played Admiral Fletcher made a speech to the assembled battalions of sailors and marines congratulating them on their excellent work in taking Vera Cruz and in policing the city after the capture. Then Admirals Fletcher and Badger formally turned over command of the city to Gen. Funston, who accepted the trust with a few words of commendation for the work of the men from the ships.

Because their crews bore the brunt of the fighting associated with the capture of Vera Cruz the battleships Utah, Arkansas and Florida were given the positions of honor at the right of the line. As the marines and sailors returned to their ships they were greeted with cheers from the thousands of their companions who were on other vessels which had not been called into active service in the capture.

Headquarters for the army has been established by Gen. Funston in the building formerly occupied by Gen. Maas of the Mexican Federal army. The departure of Gen. Maas was so precipitate at the time the American soldiers came ashore that he left everything behind. All his effects and those of his officers have been gathered up by our soldiers and will be scrupulously accounted for.

The special chartered transports Saltillo and San Marcos arrived from Galveston yesterday afternoon. The Saltillo carried the first three batteries of the Fourth Mountain Artillery and the San Marcos the remaining three batteries and two troops of the Sixth Cavalry. The Saltillo and San Marcos are at anchor off the port, but it is planned to dock them and debark the troops this afternoon.

Extend Lines 20 Miles, Is Wish of Funston
VERA CRUZ, April 30.—It developed to-day that Mexican snipers who were driven from the city are now terrorizing farmers and gardeners who have been coming in daily with food stuffs. The farmers have been threatened with death, it is said, if they furnished the "gringos" invaders with food. As a result there has been a shortage of chickens and other farm product during the past couple of days, and to meet this situation Gen. Funston is said to have asked permission of the War Department to extend the American lines about twenty miles from Vera Cruz in order to protect the farmers and insure a supply of fresh food.

VERA CRUZ, roused from its tropical drowse by the street battle and landing of foreign forces, has gone back to its lethargy, its dancing and its promenading through the plaza.

There are no evidences here that Mexico is in the throes of a civil war.
