

SOME OF THE THEATRICAL STARS NEW YORK PLAYGOERS WILL SEE DURING THE COMING WEEK

Plays for the Coming Week

ETHEL BARRYMORE comes to the Empire Theatre on Monday night in "The Shadow," a drama by Dario Niccodemi and Michael Morza. The three acts are devoted to the exposition and development of a character in conflict with an every environment. A woman who has suffered from illness for years discovers that her husband is interested in her supposed woman friend, and this leads to a dramatic situation. Among others in Miss Barrymore's support will be Grace Elliston, Bruce McRae and Ernest Lawford.

"MOULIN ROUGE GIRLS" FOR COLUMBIA THEATRE. A two-act burlesque called "Girls of the Moulin Rouge" will be presented at the Columbia Theatre. It was written by John Rhains, with music by Will Vodery. The story relates the efforts of an American heiress to marry a title. Two impetuous foreigners are pressed into service by an American adventurer to pose as members of the nobility, and the situations that are evolved by their endeavors to impress the heiress are said to be extremely humorous. There are four scenes, the first showing the lobby of the Grand Hotel, Paris, followed by the exterior of the Moulin Rouge, after which a representation of the ball room of that famous resort is shown. The concluding scene is a replica of the Astor Hotel Roof Garden in this city. The principals in the organization are Harry Woods, Henry P. Nelson, Mabelle Morgan and Primrose Seamon.

"HAPPYLAND GIRLS" AT HURTIQ AND SEAMON'S. Anniversary week at Hurtig & Seamon's New Theatre in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street will be an event for amusement lovers of Har-

David Belasco will present Francis Starr in Edward Knoblauch's latest play, "Marie-Odile," at the Belasco Theatre on Tuesday night. The role which Miss Starr will play is that of a novice in an old French convent who has never been outside its inner courtyard. The only men she has seen are Father Fisher, a venerable priest, who visits the convent once a week, and Peter, the old gardener. In her day dreams she wonders if all men are like these two, and presently learns that they are not when she goes out into the world and has a bitter experience. The supporting company will include Jerome Patrick, Frank Reicher, Edward Donnelly, Henry Vogel, Paul Stanley, Alphonse Ethier, Edward Waldmann, Charles W. Kaufman, Robert Robson, Marie Wainwright, Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh.

Granville Barker's postponed production of Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" and Anatole France's "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" is now announced for Wednesday night at Wallack's Theatre.

On Thursday evening "The Clever Ones," a comedy by Alfred Sutro, will have its premieres at the Punch and Judy Theatre. The subjects of the authors' fun are so-called intellectuals, highbrows of leisure who go in for anarchistic meetings. Willard Candler, the son of a rich brewer, passes himself off as a poor plumber and an anarchist to Doris Marriable, the daughter of a rich hop merchant, in order to win her hand. Among others in the cast will be Charles Hopkins, Edward Emery, Russ Whytal, Herbert Yost, Charles Hampden, Mrs. Hopkins, Louise Closser Hale, Annie Hughes, Beatrice Prantice and Vera Poole.

The annual benefit performance for the Actors' Fund of America will be held at the Century Theatre on Friday afternoon. Among others who will appear are Ethel Barrymore, Miss Ferguson, Julie Opp, Mille, Dorcas, Montecary and Miss George C. Cobb and William Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, William Faversham and Frank Tinney. The concluding feature of the programme will be the Hippodrome opens its Big Winter Circus this afternoon. To-night, the Comedy Theatre, Joe Weber presents Guy Bolton's play, "The New Kid."

IRVIN S COBB IRVING MACDONALD. MRS. HOPKINS IN "THE CLEVER ONES" PUNCH AND JUDY THEATRE. MISS EMELIE POLINI PRINCESS LUBA MEROFF AT THE PALACE THEATRE. PRINCESS LUBA MEROFF AT THE PALACE THEATRE.

At the Knickerbocker Theatre on Monday night Marie Cahill and Richard Carle will appear as co-stars in "Ninety in the Shade," a musical comedy by Guy Bolton and Jerome Kern.
