

CAN PUNISH MORS FOR KILLING EIGHT, DECLARES DOCTOR

Altruist Says Man Who Slew Old Folks in Home is Legally Sane.

HAS MENTAL DISORDER.

Prisoner Says Two Victims Begged Him to Put Them Out of Misery.

Dr. M. S. Gregory, the Bellevue Hospital, interviewed Sheriff Weinstein of Westchester County today that Frederick Mors, who says he killed eight aged inmates of the German Old Folks' Home, is legally responsible although he is medically insane.

This being a holiday, the District Attorneys of Westchester and Bronx Counties dropped work on the Mors case. It appears that if there is to be any possibility of convicting Mors of murder the effort must be made in Bronx County in the case of an inmate of the home named Haensel, who Mors claimed he killed with arsenic.

Mors shows great willingness to talk about the crimes he charges himself with. In discussing the matter with the Sheriff to-day he said:

"I had not done it myself, but I had given all of the eight aged inmates chloroform. It is easier to put people out of misery that way. It is like a little child going peacefully to sleep. It is a release from constant pain."

He said Scholz and Mrs. Piazza were the ones who asked him to put them out of the way, and went on:

"But there was a patient named Baumgarten. Several times he asked me to relieve him of his agony by death, but I said:

"That is not in my business. I put others out of misery, but not Baumgarten, because he was only temporarily in pain, which could be relieved with drugs and medicines. At times he was cheerful and happy. At other times his pain was terrific. He was sixty-five years old, but he was not very ill except occasionally."

"It was only to those persons whose life was a constant torment that I brought death. Sympathy was the motive that impelled me. I could not bear to see their useless suffering. Such things as these are common."

"When I saw that I must soon or later leave the home I felt that when I found another job I was liable at any time to be a policeman's man for me. I made up my mind to write out my story and send it to the District Attorney and then to take chloroform."

"I did write a letter to the New York World telling everything. I gave this letter with eleven cents for postage to him. (Mr. Mors is a porter under arrest as a material witness) to mail. The letter, however, was never mailed."

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract.

Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will feel fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder troubles.

Kleist and His Wife, Formerly Miss Breitung; His Suit for $250,000 Has Been Dismissed

MISTRIAL IN BREITUNG SUIT CAUSED BY AN INTERVIEW WITH KLEIST

far as to state that the plaintiff had told them he had been assaulted both here and in New Mexico, the obvious necessary inference of which was that there was a connection between that assault and the defendants.

"I have therefore concluded in this case to discharge you from further consideration of the case and to declare a mistrial for the reason which I have mentioned to you. The case is going to be sent to the foot of the calendar."

"I ought to say, in justice to Mr. Crowley, who is the attorney for the plaintiff, that I am absolutely satisfied he had no part whatever in the statements to the press, and I would not have you, therefore, suppose that in any way his professional conduct is in the least affected."

"I therefore will thank you for your labors. I am sorry they have come to nothing. I hope you will appreciate there are substantial reasons why you cannot go any further with the case. I hope you will also go to your homes with the indignation that I feel that such things should be possible in the City of New York."

As the jurors filed out, young Kleist, whose talk had upset his hopes of a speedy verdict against his father-in-law, stood gloomily by the rail. When his lawyer, Mr. Crowley, spoke to him, Kleist exclaimed: "This is rotten! I'd better get out of here. I'd better get out of town and go back home. The whole case stinks me!"

BREITUNG SAYS NEWSPAPERS HURT HIS CASE. Mr. Crowley said: "I am very much disappointed. I will do my utmost to bring the case to trial soon."

Mr. and Mrs. Breitung and their daughter, Juliet, who had said in court last evening she would not go back to Kleist, all seemed dazed by the sudden stoppage.

The statements in the newspapers have been prejudicial to my case, libelous and scandalous, and an attempt has been made to wreck a young woman's character," declared Breitung, after court had adjourned.

"I consider it has been decidedly unfair," said Mrs. Juliet Kleist. She declined to say anything more.

"There may be some suits out of this," added Breitung, laughing as he spoke.

AGED CROOK TRAPPED BY POLICE "LINE UP" AT DOOR OF LIBERTY

White-Haired Bill Coleman Had Managed to Dodge Identity in Court.

A vigorous old man with gray hair and a gray beard laughed aloud today when he was lined up before the detectives at Police Headquarters and recognized by Detective Walter Williams as Bill Coleman, a celebrated sneak thief who began a life of crime more than fifty years ago and has spent nearly thirty years in jails and prisons.

Coleman was last arrested in this city in 1903 before the finger print system was inaugurated, so there was no record of him at Headquarters. When he was arraigned in court he made such a strong plea for mercy that the Justices adjourned his case and asked a probation officer to look him up.

Coleman refused to give any address, saying he did not want his poor old wife to learn of his disgrace. The probation officer, unable to find anything about the old man, sent him to the line-up to-day to be looked over by the detectives.

In 1903 Coleman robbed the home of Mrs. Ambrose Clark in Cooperstown of $10,000 worth of jewelry, which he brought to the city and buried in Van Cortlandt Park. Detective Williams was one of several sleuths who caught him digging up his booty. It so happened that Williams was the only detective who recognized him to-day. Had Williams been out on a case Coleman would probably have escaped in Special Sessions with a suspended sentence.

"I AM A BRIDE," WEALTHY MODEL WIRES PARENTS

Message Ends Frantic Search For Flatbush Importer's Eloping Daughter.

Mrs. Frank Brasseur of No. 642 East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush, started for Pittsburgh in a hurry to-day on the receipt of a telegram from her twenty-two-year-old daughter Gertrude, stating that she was married to Frederick Minton, twenty-one, a brass goods salesman, who formerly lived at No. 1102 East Twenty-second Street, Flatbush.

Miss Gertrude disappeared from her home Feb. 4, Bundle Day, and her father, who is a wealthy importer of fruits at No. 244 Washington Street, Manhattan, has been searching for her frantically.

Miss Brasseur recently astonished her parents by insisting on going to work in a department store as a model. She said she wanted to feel more independent. They indulged the whim and were greatly pleased when she quit after six weeks.

Bundle Day she packed a big suitcase with all her best clothing and announced that she was going to a nearby school to leave it for the unemployed. Her mother remonstrated with her for her extravagance, but could not make her daughter change her mind.

"I have earned enough money to buy myself a new outfit," she said. A maid went with her to carry the bag. A block from the house the young woman told the maid she was running away to be married. The maid dropped the bag and refused to go another step. Mrs. Brasseur picked up the bag and marched off down the street. The search for her began as soon as the maid returned home.

Young Minton was graduated from the Erasmus Hall High School a year ago; he was a member of the baseball and football teams and a leader in the social activities of the school. He met Miss Minton, who was a Packard graduate, at the Erasmus Hall graduation exercises.

Papa Brasseur about himself in his office to-day and refused to see callers.

The car was used for instruction in the Y. M. C. A. Automobile School and was equipped with a double set of pedals. The extra club was placed in the car so the instructor, in giving lessons in driving, could take control of the car if an accident threatened. This is the strongest means of identification.
