LIVE UP TO RULES OF WAR, WILSON WILL INSIST IN A NEW NOTE TO THE ALLIES

Tells Callers These Regulations Apply to All the Belligerent Powers.

ALL NEUTRALS BACK HIM.

Sir Edward Grey Refuses to Make Public Recent Notes From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—No nation has the right to change the international rules of war. Conditions of war, and under which nations shall wage warfare, have radically changed, but the rules as laid down and subscribed to by all powers still exist and must be lived up to.

Stripped of legal verbiage and diplomatic assurances of good will, this will be the answer of the United States to the latest announcement of Great Britain and France. It is the position of the Wilson Administration and will be adhered to at all times.

President Wilson emphasized to his callers to-day that he believes the international rules apply equally to all of the belligerent powers of Europe. All have certain pledged duties to perform so far as this country is concerned. And they will be reminded of these duties in the most friendly but perfectly firm manner.

The President made it clear that for American ships to sail for Germany would involve no violation of neutrality but merely the usual risk of the owners of vessels and cargo in legal proceedings.

The joint note was discussed at length by President Wilson with the Cabinet. The disposition was to stand against continued interference with American shipping.

The President accepts the note handed to the United States and the

ALLIED WARSHIPS WRECK ANOTHER DARDANELLES FORT

Chanak, on the Asiatic Side, Under Fire of the Big Guns.

LONDON, March 2 (United Press).—Resuming their attack upon the Turkish forts inside the Dardanelles the Anglo-French fleet has partially dismantled Fort Chanak, on the Asiatic side of the strait, and has damaged the fortress of Killid Bahr, on the European side, according to Athens despatches this afternoon.

From the same source came reports that the success of the Dardanelles bombardment is becoming known to the people of Constantinople. Several demonstrations in favor of Turkey declaring an immediate peace to save her capital are said to have been broken up by the police.

The Athens despatches said that Killid Bahr's guns were booming a violent reply to the warships' shells. Part of Chanak fort was reported demolished and the fire from its guns becoming more feeble.

The two forts under attack are about sixteen miles inside the strait, and, once past them, the allied fleet will steam into a narrow channel, scarcely a mile wide, leading into Nagara Road, where the Turkish fleet is supposed to be waiting.

One report is that the Turks are assembling 100,000 men to defend Constantinople.

Capt. John Bell of the collier Thoradix to-day laid claim to the $2,500 prize offered by a shipping newspaper to the master of the first unarmed merchantman that sank a German submarine.

Capt. Bell reported that his ship sighted the periscope of a submarine off Beachy Head Sunday morning. The collier's course was changed, he said, and she rammed the German craft, smashing over her periscope. All hands felt the crash, Capt. Bell said, and the submarine disappeared, leaving a trail of oil on the surface.

M'CARTHY NAMED U. S. MARSHAL TO SUCCEED HENKEL

Republican, After 17 Years, Gives Way to Tammany Man Appointed by Wilson.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Thomas D. McCarthy was to-day appointed by President Wilson United States Marshal for the Southern District of New York to succeed William Henkel, who has held the office for seventeen years. James M. Power of Brooklyn was named Marshal for the Eastern District.

McCarthy is a member of the Tammany Hall organization of the Twenty-first District, Manhattan, but Tammany had little or nothing to do with the appointment, McCarthy having been chosen on the recommendation of Corporation Counsel Polk, who looked up his record by request and made a favorable report to President Wilson.

Up to last October McCarthy was special deputy clerk of the Supreme Court, which position he resigned to manage the campaign of Ambassador Gerard in his race for United States Senator.

The appointment of Power was also recommended by Mr. Polk. Mar Elmer of New York City was named internal revenue collector for the Third District.

MILLIONAIRE MUST SIT ON WATER WAGON OR LOSE FORTUNE

O'Brien Gets Four Years Probation on His Own Recommendation.

Oswin Jerome O'Brien, a millionaire to-day sentenced himself to a seat on the water wagon for four years, and if he doesn't retain that seat during that time he loses control of his $2,000,000 fortune for the rest of his life.

This novel situation came to light to-day when papers filed in the Supreme Court disclosed that Mrs. Ethel O'Brien, his wife, had brought proceedings to have his declared incompetent because of his overindulgence in liquor. In order to avoid the necessity of having a committee appointed to care for him, O'Brien signed an agreement which reads as follows: "If, after two years, the said Oswin Jerome O'Brien, upon an application by him made to the Supreme Court of the State of New York in the County of New York, which is hereby fixed as the proper tribunal for the determination of this trust, shall show to the satisfaction of the said court that he has refrained from the excessive use of or overindulgence in wines, spirituous liquors or other beverages of an intoxicating nature, then the trust shall be terminated."

Anarchists Caught in Fifth Avenue Church After Placing Lighted Bomb in Midst of 700 at Worship.

POLICE SPY NIPS PLOT FOR "REIGN OF TERROR."

Frank Abarno, who placed the two bombs in St. Patrick's Cathedral to-day, made a confession this afternoon at Police Headquarters of the conclusion of a tense dramatic scene in keeping with the sensational arrest at the church and the methods followed out in working up the case. The confession of Abarno was forced from him by the fear that his supposed accomplice, Charles Baldo, in reality Policeman Emilio Polignani, would break down under the strain of the questions put to him and reveal the plot.

Carbone late this afternoon made a complete confession to Inspector Faurot corroborating Abarno's confession in every detail. Both Carbone and Abarno insisted that they worked up the conspiracy alone. They admitted knowing Alexander Berkman and other Anarchist leaders.

Carbone refused to answer when asked to tell what he knew about the church bomb explosions last October and November.

Polignani had reported that Abarno was a weak, egotistical character and might confess if properly handled. At noon to-day Abarno and Polignani were taken to a private room where Assistant District Attorney Arthur Train and Capt. Tunney of the Detective Bureau were waiting.

Tunney locked the door and then he and Train went savagely at Baldo. The masquerading policeman refused to talk. After some time he showed signs of losing his temper and finally he turned to Abarno and abused him in Italian and English as a blunderer and a fool. Abarno answered back, angrily. The man he knew as Baldo insulted him further and he flew into a rage.

"You fool," screamed the disguised policeman. "You let them see you."

ABARNO IS CAUGHT IN TRAP.

"I know they saw me," cried Abarno, "but it was your fault. You were to look out for detectives."

"Ah, you fool," sneered his companion. "Now, see what you have done. You have admitted they saw you."

"That's a bad admission," put in Capt. Tunney. "You'd better tell the truth. It's only a question of time when this fellow (indicating Baldo) will squeal."

"I believe he would squeal," said Abarno. "I guess I might as well tell you."

"I was in this job, but never in any other. I put those bombs in there. I had been told that Archbishop Corrigan and Archbishop Hughes and other big men in the church were buried under the floor where I put the bombs, and it was my hope that the explosion would open their graves and show the contempt we felt for them and their church."

"I am twenty-four years old and came to this country with my parents sixteen years ago. I went to school in Mulberry Bend and up to four years ago I went regularly to mass in the church of St. Loretta in Elizabeth Street near Bleeker. I am a printer and worked in a shop in Wooster Street.

"About five years ago I became interested in Socialism. But I couldn't see much in it, and began to study Anarchy. That, I decided, was the proper means of settling the wrongs of the poor, and I associated a lot with Anarchists. I quit going to church four years ago and since then I have hated the church because it is the enemy of the poor. It pays no taxes and caters to the rich.

"We Anarchists hate the Catholic Church because it fights Anarchy all the time. Many a time I have hooted at churches and priests and spit in the faces of nuns as they were leaving the church. Our plan is

Frank Abarno, Who Planted The Bombs To-Day in St. Patrick's

HOW DETECTIVES FOILED PLOT TO BLOW UP THE CATHEDRAL

Fifty Policemen in St. Patrick's When Man Places Bombs Under Pew and Lights One With Cigar.

Detectives in disguise stationed in St. Patrick's Cathedral during 7 o'clock mass to-day captured Frank Abarno of No. 284 Elizabeth Street, an Anarchist, who had just planted two bombs under pews in the north aisle and had lighted the fuse of one.

This capture, made possible by skillful and intelligent detective work, nipped in the bud a plot to blow up the Cathedral, destroy the homes of Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller and Cornelius Vanderbilt and raid various banks and trust companies.

The Anarchists hoped to create such a reign of terror in New York that when their final coup, which included the procurement of vast sums of money from banks, was in readiness they would meet with no opposition. The two bombs planted in the Cathedral were sufficiently powerful to have spread death and destruction throughout the edifice.

Two other arrests were made—one at the Cathedral, the other at No. 218 East Sixty-seventh Street. At the latter address detectives captured Charles Carbone, nineteen years old, an enthusiastic Anarchist, who made the bombs.

The third man arrested was the lookout at the door of the Cathedral. He gave the name of Charles Baldo of No. 301 East One Hundred and Sixth Street, but in reality he is Emilio Polignani, a boyish looking policeman, who, under instructions from Capt. Tunney of the Detective Bureau, joined a group of Anarchists in Harlem last December and so ingratiated himself that he was selected for participation in the great plot.

SIXTY DETECTIVES TRAP ANARCHISTS. The arrests in the Cathedral were sensational in the extreme and formed the culmination of months of detective work along old style melodramatic lines. Upwards of sixty detectives were engaged in the final development of the police plot.

Of these fifty were stationed in the Cathedral. Some were disguised as women worshippers, two as scrubwomen, others as ushers. They were located at all points where a bomb would mostly likely be placed.
