

WARSAW WAS GAY WHEN ITS CAPTORS ENTERED, SINGING

Offered Flowers to German Soldiers, Who Came to Air of "Die Wacht am Rhein."

CITY IS IN GOOD ORDER.

Russians in Haste Left Many Things They Intended to Take.

Lodz, Russian Poland (via London), Aug. 12.—The city of Warsaw, the centre of the recent colossal campaign for the Vistula line, suffered comparatively little from the battles which raged around it and from the process of its evacuation by the Russians. Although fears had been expressed that the Russians in leaving the city might repeat the century-old precedent at Moscow and set the city on fire, they did not do so. The water, gas and electric plants were left in working order, and only in Praga were the water mains damaged in several places by explosions.

The Russians retired in such haste at the last moment that they omitted to carry out many measures they had planned. A whole park of automobiles and carriages which had been collected for removal were left behind. An order to carry off the church bells was only partly executed, and many bells, even those in principal churches, were left hanging.

Most of the Polish residents of the city declined to follow the order to leave with the Russians, generally escaping deportation by keeping out of sight.

The scenes of the night of the evacuation were dramatic. At 10 o'clock in the evening a series of extraordinarily heavy explosions were heard, signaling the destruction of the forts. The sky over the city flamed red from burning military buildings and railway shops. The bridges were jammed with retreating troops or flooded with columns of artillery.

At 5 o'clock the next morning pioneers destroyed the three Vistula bridges. An hour later two German officers rode coolly through the city in an automobile to the Town Hall, where they met the chief of the citizens' committee. A few minutes afterward patrols of cavalry appeared, their lances decorated with flowers and the men singing "Die Wacht am Rhein."

From the scenes in the street it might have been thought the evening was a city festival. Crowds in gay summer attire thronged the thoroughfares, cheering the entering soldiers, while many offered them flowers. Meanwhile, behind the front lines and even from overhead came the noise of exploding shrapnel shell and the whiz of speeding bullets. Many casualties occurred in the city and ambulances were busy the entire day transporting the wounded to their homes or to hospitals.

Municipal affairs are in the hands of a citizens' committee under the control of which a volunteer citizens' police force has been formed to preserve order.

The destruction of the railroad bridge was poorly executed. The middle spans were wrecked and dropped into the river, but the piers were left standing so that it will take but a comparatively short time to rebuild the structure and reopen railroad communications for Prince Leopold's armies.

GERMANS MUST CUT WAY TO CONSTANTINOPLE, SAYS COUNT REVENTLOW.

AMSTERDAM (via London), Aug. 12.—Discussing the Balkan situation in the Tagesschau, Count Reventlow declares that Germany must cut her way through to Constantinople and make the new triple alliance a reality.

"The demand for direct communication between Hungary and Turkey," he writes, "has found expression more and more energetically during the past few months. Among the securities which the new triple alliance needs and must obtain is permanent security of the political, economic and military link between Constantinople and Berlin and Vienna."

"The alliance can develop full strength and highest effect only when the allied powers possess assured communication. In future times of peace no less than now the new triple alliance will constitute a great strategic factor, and the rapid, thorough building up of this factor is our most immediate task."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 8 (by courier to Salonika).—Proclamations declaring that Germany is preparing to send an army to fight with the Turks at the Dardanelles were to-day circulated from the mosques.

WHAT IS A PERFECT HUSBAND?

Two New York wives write to Miss Marshall that their husbands are perfect. One has been married for ten, the other for twenty years, so they ought to know. Oh, yes, here's a point that mustn't be overlooked—one says she doesn't ask too many questions, and the other says she doesn't object to lodge nights or fishing trips. How about perfect wives, by the way?

Two Feminine Cynics Have Only Contempt for the Average New Yorker as a Prospective Husband and Provoke a Challenge to the Said Average New Yorker to Defend Himself and "Fight for His Altars and His Fires."

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

Eureka! They have been found. They really and truly have declared themselves. I was beginning to think there weren't any more. I was wondering if even one yet existed in New York. I was considering an absolutely neutral appeal to the Suffragists and the Anti-Suffragists. But it won't be necessary. The situation is saved. They have saved it.

WHO? TWO NEW YORK WIVES WHO HONESTLY BELIEVE THAT THEIR OWN HUSBANDS ARE PERFECT! There are two of the wives—count them, TWO. I have received a letter from each. And as if to intensify a situation which scarcely any modern novelist would have the audacity to portray, one of these amazingly contented creatures has been married for nearly ten years, and the other for twenty years. They are not letting off the steam of a honeymoon ecstasy, but are expressing a time-tested conviction. And I only hope their husbands see the letters printed below.

Of course, to a thinking person the accusation that there are many more unhappy marriages to-day than ever before must seem superficial. There always were many unhappy marriages. The only difference is that now we hear about them, since, in increasing numbers, both men and women are deciding that what can't be cured must not be endured. Just the same, it is rather refreshing to anybody, married or single or divorced, to hear of two women who, after a score and a half score of years of matrimony, admit their complete satisfaction with what the gods have given.

You'll note too that the husbands these women describe are not repellent flawless prigs. Perhaps, to you or to me, neither one of them would seem perfect. But to their wives they are perfect, and there's no going behind those returns. Read, and refresh your faith in married human nature:

AFTER TWO DECADES OF TRIAL HUSBAND IS O. K. Dear Madam: Seeing your request for a letter from a satisfied wife or a contented one, my husband dared me to write you. Perhaps when the two young, discontented little wives who aired their small troubles in The Evening World the other day are twenty years married, instead of one and a half or two years, they will see things my way. My husband has the faults of which these two complain—namely, that he has never taken me to a movie or other theatre, also has never taken care of the babies to let me go alone or with somebody (in fact, when the babies were tiny tots and needed me, I think I never thought of going without them anywhere). At the same time, he has worked very hard, wanted me with him in his spare time, which was little, always spent his time, in our younger years, at home or at work. If real necessity arose, he spent money freely enough, as in the case of sickness or when any of his family asked for help and needed it. There was and is the comfortable feeling that if I have not everything I would like, the money is there, saved from both sources—his work and, in the latter years, my work.

At first I was hurt that I did not have the pretty clothes I was accustomed to, nor anything like the good home, but everything came in good time and my husband is the finest and best in the City of New York, although he is as plain as plain can be. We shall be twenty-one years married on Sept. 2. He has his friends, with no questions asked, and I have mine, who are livelier than his. Both of us are happy. F. M. L. P. S. I may add that now that the children no longer require me every minute, the younger ones take care of each other, while the elder ones take me out and father, still a plodder, has his quiet amusements, or walks with the men he has met in business. Or we all sit at home and read or talk. It's all very simple when one has a husband she thinks perfect.

TEN YEARS, THREE CHILDREN, FINE HUSBAND, HAPPY WIFE. Dear Madam: I have been married nearly ten years and have three babies and believe I have a right to judge my husband as a or position or future prospects in the light of how these things might affect their happiness and the fulfillment of the quest possibilities of their united life. At least, this is a goal worth striving for, and the more in that the fullest happiness of an entire life in the balance. C. B. B. MAN'S THE THING, NOT MONEY, IN GOOD GIRL'S MIND.

Dear Madam: I am not a New York girl, and therefore cannot answer "M. D.'s" question, "Does money come first with the New York girl and the New York wife, the man being only a secondary consideration?" But of girls in general I think he has a very wrong impression. Money, of course, is an interesting factor in a young girl's mind, but money alone would never satisfy her. The man, and the man only, is the first consideration in her character, habits and ideas. A girl likes to go out with men who have money, for the simple reason that she likes to see them, and the man only, in the first consideration, is an interesting factor in a young girl's mind, but money alone would never satisfy her. A girl likes to go out with men who have money, for the simple reason that she likes to see them, and the man only, in the first consideration, is an interesting factor in a young girl's mind, but money alone would never satisfy her.

Every girl has her ideal of the man she is to marry, and many a girl dreams of a man who is rich and who she helps him gain any wealth which she might want him to possess. Her ideal is a MAN in the world, not a dummy with money.

I think "R. Y.'s" idea of a perfect husband is about as near to the average girl's as any one could get. It certainly is mine. L. C.

NEW YORK IN PROFESSIONAL OR BUSINESS LIFE DISQUALIFIED. Enter, now, to-day's quota of cynics. They are the unmarried young ladies. One of them writes to the editor: "A perfect husband is not to be found in the business offices of this city; the other says any New Yorker is disqualified for your altar and your fires, men of New York! I would gladly allow myself to be disposed of in this sweeping fashion? I shall be glad to print any defense you or the woman who doesn't find you so bad—care to make."

Dear Madam: I sympathize most heartily with "M. D." in his search for a true woman, for it seems to be an unsuccessful as my own experiences in finding a true man. The trouble is that "M. D." hasn't gone to the right places, for at a fashionable hotel in Atlantic City, where it is common to see the daughters of mammas take their daughters to make a "big catch," he couldn't look for any other treatment. To find the true woman of whom there are plenty, even in my own acquaintance, one must go into the business world, where girls have to earn their own living and perhaps support their mothers. Those are the girls who appreciate a good man. My business takes me into the public eye and I meet with all classes of people and many members of the opposite sex, in which I have lost faith. I am sorry to say it, but it can't be helped. Of all my acquaintances I can pick very few true men. I am speaking frankly and from my own experience only. Business and professional men fall so easily for a pretty face that, girls, if you knew them as I do, you would not care to have them for husbands.

I have had dozens of disgraced offers from such men, all of whom are married. They try to buy girls with money and diamonds and forget all about their poor wives at home. Some try to pass as single men, and others,

ITALIANS REPULSE AUSTRIAN ATTACK IN NIGHT BATTLE

Bersaglieri Sweep Enemy Back Under Glare of His Own Searchlights.

ROME, Aug. 12.—A daring attack by two Bersaglieri companies in the full glare of Austrian searchlights Tuesday night swept the enemy from a strongly entrenched height at Monte Sel Bust, Gen. Cadorna reported to the War Office to-day.

The Bersaglieri charged without firing a shot, routing the enemy with their bayonets. The position, however, was made untenable by bright fire from Austrian artillery on surrounding peaks, and before dawn yesterday the Italians withdrew after first wrecking the enemy's works.

At several other points on the Carso plateau, Austrian attacks have been repulsed, the Italian Commander-in-Chief reported.

"In the Cadore region Monday we repulsed strong enemy attempts to advance toward Seikofel and also toward Fonte del Rimbianco," said the official report. "In Carnia, enemy attacks on the entire front were repulsed. We advanced slightly at Flavaldino during Monday night and Tuesday by heavy artillery and infantry attacks."

WALL STREET HEARS MORE GOLD IS COMING

$200,000,000 Bullion From South Africa to Be Sent to the United States, Says London Report.

Wall Street heard to-day that the consignment of gold from England received yesterday is only the forerunner of much larger shipments to J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents of Great Britain in the United States.

The $19,334,200 placed in the Treasury yesterday brought this country within $53,955,000 of getting back the gold it exported a year ago. It is believed that by the end of the month the difference will be entirely wiped out.

The gold and securities, which arrived via Halifax early yesterday on a steel car train, accompanied by armed guards, was carried through the streets in twenty-five armed motor trucks. Nothing was given out by the Morgan firm in regard to the securities that came with the gold.

A London despatch to-day says: "Steps have been taken to send $200,000,000 in bullion from the South African mines to the United States in order to establish a definite gold credit and meet the foreign exchange situation. The gold will be conveyed on British warships, but it is not definitely known whether it will be landed at New York or at some Canadian port for transshipment."

PARIS REPORTS FURIOUS BATTLES AROUND VERDUN

French Claim Repulse of Two Determined Attacks—Crown Prince Hammers Away.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Trench to trench fighting with grenades and large bombs, with heavy artillery rocking the whole region, makes the combat here raged around Verdun the most furious on the Franco-Flanders battle front in the past fortnight.

Official despatches this afternoon reported the repulse of two determined night attacks by the Germans near Maria Therese and Pontalmeaux-Charmes. The Crown Prince's troops are hammering hard at the French positions near Vienne-le-Chateau.

Le Preire Woods, in the Pontalmeaux region, has been the scene of desperate fighting in the last twenty-four hours, the Germans piling up heaps of dead against the French blockhouses. In the Voges region a German attack on the French trenches at the summit of Lingekopf was repulsed by a shower of grenades.

Bomb actions and cannonading continued throughout the night around Souchez, the War Office reported.
