FRIENDS OF VAN NAME SAY POLITICIANS SEEK TO "SIDE-TRACK" HIM

Richmond Borough President Will Run Again at Special Election Nevertheless.

Many protests are heard in Staten Island against the decision of the New York City Law Department, which has ordered that Borough President Van Name, elected by the Richmond Aldermen to serve out the term of the late Borough President, Charles McNorman, could only serve by virtue of this election until Dec.

31 of this year. Then a special election must be held to elect a successor to President McNorman for the remainder of the term, which ends in December, 1917. The friends of the incumbent seem numerous and influential. They say that Mr. Van Name has filed his election last July, but that he has not signed the professional politicians, who are seeking to side-track him. William S. Van Cleaf, President of the Staten Island Chamber of Commerce, member of the Richmond County Country Club and a prominent business man, said: "Mr. Van Name was so wisely and properly elected to the position in accordance with the provisions of the charter for the 'unexpired term' and not for the balance of the year. The action of the corporation committee in the opinion of the Corporation Committee is perfectly clear, and how this official or his assistants have been able to misinterpret the meaning to fill the purpose of certain distinguished politicians is archaeanical, and I believe would be found invalid if tested through legal proceedings." The Republicans will nominate for Borough President George Schofield, a young lawyer of Rosbank, S. I. Mr. Van Name will seek re-election.

"HONEST STEVE" IN A RAGE OVER HOT GAMBLING TIP

Nassau Sheriff Hears of Desperate Season-End Games at Long Beach.

IN "HOUSE OF MYSTERY"

His Men Stop "Doll Wheel," but Can't Find Real Faro or Roulette.

"Honest Steve" Pettit, Sheriff of Nassau County, flew into a rage late last evening when, returning to his home after a vacation trip, he was told by an Evening World reporter that in his absence gambling had been flourishing in the fashionable summer colony at Long Beach. "I am going out after proof of that," he shouted. "I'm sick of going over to Long Beach on gambling tips and not finding anything. I went there early in August, searched through a suspected house and didn't find a thing. "Now, if I can get some one to testify, I'll get busy with the Grand Jury and ask for indictments. But it seems to me the thing is up to the police at Long Beach. They're the ones who ought to have the gamblers. It's a mighty long ride to Long Beach, and usually before I get there the 'tip' is passed out that I'm on my way. So what can I do? "But I'll get busy again. I'm going to send some of my men to watch a suspected house there and gather evidence."

While Pettit was having his vacation at Lake George certain conscientious attaches of the Sheriff's office served notice on a committee in charge of a "doll wheel" at a fair which was being held in a barn at Baldwin, L. I., for the benefit of a Catholic charitable institution that it would not be tolerated. Just at the time this notice was being served the tiger was walking. It's a mighty long ride to Long Beach, Pettit expressed regret that the "doll wheel" had been stopped. "It was a harmless affair," he said. "What I am after is the real gamblers in Nassau County."

"FEMALE CAPPER'S LEAD VICTIMS TO TIGER'S LAIR. Investigations made Saturday evening and yesterday by a reporter for The Evening World showed that any man or woman bent upon gambling who has a "roll" and an unsophisticated look can toy with the goddess of chance at Long Beach. If you're not an unsophisticated-looking well-to-do gambler, however, you're running in Long Beach with a semblance of "outward order and decency," and in a hotel there are stud poker and roulette games which, needless to say, are conducted "on the quiet." The gambling is desperate in its nature, for it is of the season-end brand—the "getaway" style of play, which means that the owner must "keep the shingles on his roof" for next year. This is why the unsophisticated are welcome—so much sought after, in fact, that the "getaway" brand, known as Castles-by-the-Sea, the famous dancing resort owned by the Vernon Castles. Also, a man "capper" is very much in evidence around the Hotel Nassau. He is a very quiet individual, crippled in one leg, and he usually sits around contemplating the sea and what happens to him. Look all right he will mournfully whisper to you that he knows where a little game is to be had. Should that solemn ally appeal to the "reporter" inclinations of the listener the lame "capper" will lead him—or her—to the gambling house, which is at Broadway and Montgomery Place. The "getaway" brand is around which "Honest Steve" Pettit went snooping early in August, but was unable to find anything save this Persian carpets and mahogany furniture.

In justice to "Honest Steve," however, it may be remarked that the house is said to be a double set of windows. The panels of the inner set on the second floor are reversible. Guess what the answer is. Why, if an unwelcome caller like "Honest Steve" shows up, he himself into the building alarm buzzers are sounded, the inner panels are opened, gambling paraphernalia crammed between the double walls, and then the panels are closed again. Therefore, if an alert Sheriff isn't alert enough, all he is likely to find is carpets, furniture, &c. George Constance, his bosom friend, Edward N. Burke, and Arnold Rothstein own the structure, which has more mystery about it than Hawley's built of stone. Two stories in height, with a large sized attic and a low hanging roof of red tiling.

"NOBODY HOME" FOR GIRL WHO HAS A LUCKY HUNCH. Look at it from a distance and you'd think it was a double set of windows. Long Beach mansions that house a happy family, a cat and an automatic piano. But try to enter and you'll find a "different" place. For instance, when an Evening World reporter visited the place early Saturday evening, with him was a young woman "capper," whom he had met at Castle's-by-the-Sea. There she had said to him: "My gracious, I do feel rattled to-night. I just don't know what to do. Oh, yes I do! I want to win some money. I feel lucky—I want to play roulette." The reporter remarked that he did not believe roulette was being played at Long Beach. "Oh, yes it is," said the young woman. "I know a place. Just come with me." The reporter said. Along the boardwalk they went, to the Brighton and then over toward the "house of mystery." One light was

LAST DAY! LAST DAY! LAST DAY! LAST DAY!

Last Day—Tomorrow, Tuesday—of the August Furniture Sale and Its Half-Price Offerings

We are reluctant to close the Sale. It has been a month of happy, satisfying enthusiasms. The sunny faces of the people as they bought told us this. Their words to the salesmen (overheard by the advertising writers who fairly live with the merchandise) told us. We have helped to make many new homes. That is a world of pleasure in itself. We have helped to make old homes newer and better. And that is well worth while. We have brought money out of its hoarding place and put it to useful work—bringing pleasure to the owner and work to the furniture maker—and that is good for the whole country.

And now as a farewell and "good-will-thank-you" we are doubling the purchasers' money in these half-price offerings. We are doing all this, not alone because it brings pleasure to us personally; not alone because it is our duty as merchants to do the best we can; but because scientific merchandising has brought the August Sale of Furniture, originated here, to its present high state of useful efficiency. Our gratitude for the increasing loyalty and friendship of the public is deep, indeed. Our responsibility is deep also. To those who shared in this sale we say this: Our responsibility for the furniture you bought goes with that furniture into your home and remains there as long as the furniture remains.

Last Year the Last Day Was the Biggest Day of the Sale

Folks who put off coming, folks who had just returned to the city, folks passing through the city—folks from near and far—all came in and were courteously and satisfactorily waited on, notwithstanding the great crowd.

Having in mind the recollection of this last day of last year we have prepared for an emergency tomorrow—

- plenty of furniture in the half-price group.
- plenty of variety in the entire general stocks.
- plenty of salesmen and helpers to make things run smoothly and happily.

The only privilege we ask is that deliveries may be deferred a few days, where not inconvenient, to enable our big furniture auto trucks and the big brawny good-humored men who operate them to catch up with their work.

Come as early tomorrow as you can, but if you should be delayed by business to the last minute, just whisper the word FURNITURE to the door-man and he will let you in the store even though it is a few minutes after closing time (5 P. M.).

We do not want even one individual to be disappointed in any way with this August Sale of Furniture—or with the house that fathers it.
