ABERG'S WINNER OVER ZBYSKO IN 1 HOUR 4 MINUTES

Russian Throws Pole in Thrilling Wrestling Match for Graeco-Roman Title.

WRESTLING came back strong last night at the Madison Square Garden. Alexander Aberg, Russia's foremost grappler, met Vladimir Zbyzsko, Austria's champion wrestler. Aberg won in one hour and four minutes with a side roll and chancery hold.

The match was one of the most intensely fought seen in this city. Of course the grapplers can do all sorts of things to fool the public, but these lads wrestled as though the contest were absolutely on the square and there wasn't a moment during the contest when they didn't seem to be trying their hardest to win.

There were almost five thousand people on hand and every one was a keen student of the game. There wasn't any wild cheering or noise of the kind every one seemed to be thoroughly interested in the work of the men on the mat.

Open Air Handball Tournney, Starting This Week, Brings Business Men Into Play

The old-fashioned game of handball, which usually forms an important part in the training of every athlete, and in fact is the best kind of exercise for anybody with desire to keep "in shape," is in a big boom this week.

Handball is practically neglected nowadays as far as the sporting pages of newspapers are concerned. It is a game which some five thousand people are playing every day, yet the results of any of the matches are rarely chronicled in the papers.

"It's a New Columbia" Since Football Was Revived on Morningside Heights

Students at Local University Appear to Have Taken On New Life, and Every One Is Bubbling Over With Enthusiasm.

"Unless you had seen the students going around here with their heads down in the fall," said Harry Fisher, the graduate manager, "you could not appreciate what a return to the gridiron game really means. Everything about the college grounds appears to have taken on new life. The students scurry around with heads erect, the cheerleaders have a class upward of one hundred and the membership of the athletic association has increased more than 300 per cent."

Too Much Football Material Counts Against Big Colleges

It Means Slow Development, Because So Many Men Must Be Tried, and This Gives Minor Elevens Early Season Advantage.

PRINCETON and Cornell are the only big teams that haven't been defeated this season. With the exception of the Cornell Harvard game, the downward of the leaders has been brought about by the "minor" elevens. The little fellows have been scrappier than ever.

Popularity of Gridiron Game Is Proved by an Increase of Nearly 500 in the Membership of the Athletic Association.

The first game, "By the way," said Mr. Fisher, "I would like to explain that we only have six hundred men to select a team from even though there are nearly five thousand men attending the university. You see, only the boys in the college proper are eligible."

R. Edgren's COLUMN

To-Night's Ritchie-Dundee Bout Should Settle All Doubt About Result of Their Four-Round Contest.

WILLIE RITCHIE and Johnny Dundee fight ten rounds—of late—to-night at Madison Square Garden. The postponement of making this a poorer match, improved it, for Willie Ritchie has taken advantage of the longer training period to take off weight and get into real fighting shape.

Bill Brown will referee. The Boxing Commission has marked its approval of his decision in last Coffey-Moran fight by appointing him a very excellent idea. The Commission should appoint all referees of important bouts.

The Ritchie-Dundee match has been ushered in with much boasting by the nimble press agent, although a bout between two of the best fighters in America shouldn't need advertising. Among other things the nimble party referred to has informed us that Dundee is a "Ritchie" before in a four-round contest.

Monteith says that Dundee will prove to-night that he did whip Ritchie in San Francisco, and can do it any time. And at any rate it can't be denied that Dundee and his manager are very confident. They were so anxious to get a match with Ritchie, American lightweight, that they actually offered to take the responsibility of guaranteeing Willie's end of the purse and posted $2,500 demanded by Ritchie. Dundee was as stake holder. When the club license stipulated because of a match license stipulation with the old Boxing Commission Monteith was so anxious to hold Ritchie to the match for a late date that he didn't draw down his money.

Dundee will be near the lightweight limit, Ritchie probably three or four pounds over it. Ritchie has been saying little and training hard. He expects to stop Dundee before the tenth round and is making a close study of the little Italian's jumping style of fighting.

Several months ago, in an interview, Frank Moran told me he had been a student at Pittsburgh University, and had played on the football team. I quoted him to that effect, and soon afterward received a complete denial from member of the Pittsburgh University faculty.

I never told you I was a college graduate. That I was a student is a fact. I matriculated in 1908 at the University of Pittsburgh and played with and on the scrub team and lived at the training quarters nearly all the season. I quit school before the football season closed, and as I had become ineligible for college athletics, on account of professionalism, I returned the next year to the University. This makes clear all I have ever claimed—aside from what others may have said. I am, sincerely yours, FRANK MORAN.
