CHAPTER II.
When the passenger crew got outside there were hurried explanations. Storm, knowing every foot of the line, saw that they had reached the longest passing track on the division and that by running around the stalled train he still had a chance to overtake his quarry. Throwing his engine into reverse he backed down took the passing track switch and lost the standing cars after the fast disappearing passenger engine. With all of its lights extinguished, and still maintaining terrific speed, it was at a hopeless disadvantage against the skill of the man at the throttle of the engine behind. Overhauled and with defeat in sight as the nose of the huge freight engine crowded them, Hyde, from the gangway, and Spike, turning from the useless throttle, opened fire with their pistols on their pursuers. Hyde, firing his last shot without effect, in his rage hurled his heavy gun back at the other cab. It crashed through the window where Helen had sat an instant before, but she was now up and back over the engine tank. As Storm drew steadily abreast of the runaway, she watched her chance, and with reckless daring sprang from where she stood over to the tank of the passenger engine. The safe-blowers turned to meet her. Stack and stack the engines were rushing toward the little San Pablo bridge. But with Spike's and Hyde's attention turned from the passive engineer and fireman in the cab, they were suddenly attacked by both from behind. A furious mix-up followed. Hyde, as Helen jumped down at him, grappled with her. Storm, eager in the jumping gangway opposite to Spike, looked at her peril. Catching up a wrench, he hurled it with all his force at Hyde's head; it fell true and the thug sank under the heavy blow like a bullock. Spike in the interval tearing loose from his assailants, gained the foot-plate and, leaping up on the coal, defied them. It was for no more than a moment; the engineer went pluckily after him. Cornered, Spike looked ahead. They were reaching the river and the engines were making a dizzy speed. With the recklessness of a madman the criminal leaped from the tender far out into the stream below. The slightest miscalculation—a mistake of a tenth of a second in his reckoning—would have cost him his life. Yet he made his jump without injury, struck out for shore and gained the river bank.

PRIMARIES CAN'T ELECT NATIONAL DELEGATES

At Least in States Where Law Does Not Provide for It, Asserts McCombs.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 7.—Delegates to the Democratic National Convention do not have to run in State primaries, but must be elected by the State Conventions of that party according to a statement issued here to-day by W. F. McCombs, National Committee Chairman. His statement was given in view of the fact that the Arkansas committee had declared delegates must seek election at primaries, and because he understood a dozen other States were contemplating similar procedure. "The plank adopted at the Democratic Convention in Baltimore was a suggestion and is not mandatory," Mr. McCombs said. "I doubt if delegates elected in a primary, where no provision is made in the State's Primary Law, would be seated by the convention." The Arkansas Primary Law makes no provision for the election of delegates in the National Convention.

The Most Wonderful Endorsement Ever Given Any Product

John Philip Sousa and his famous Band have circled the globe on numerous tours and inspired millions of people in many lands with their soul-stirring, inimitable music.

Mr. Sousa has been a smoker of Tuxedo Tobacco for years. Recently, at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, a newspaper representative made the discovery that every member of Sousa's Band is also a Tuxedo smoker!

Whereupon, the following endorsement of Tuxedo was gladly given and signed by Mr. Sousa and the sixty-six members of his Band. Read it—as sure-fire and convincing as a Sousa March:

"All the vim, energy and enthusiasm we put into the playing of the 'Stars and Stripes Forever' we find in the steady use of TUXEDO."
