

Car Hit in Fifty-Ninth Street
 A Columbus Avenue car, bound north, and a Fifty-ninth Street car, bound east, halted at their crossing this forenoon. The motorman watched the situation, and when he thought he got the order to go ahead, before fronted bumper could throw on the emergency brakes the cars came together, showering scraps of glass right and left. After a few moments of panic it was found that no one was badly hurt. Dr. Hughes of the Polytechnic dressed slight cuts of three or four girls.

Hit by Street Car, Run Over by Wagon.
 Wilmer E. Harkness, a piano dealer of Wilmington, Del., who has been stopping at the Grand Hotel, Thirtieth Street and Broadway, was crossing Broadway near the hotel to-day when he was struck by a southbound trolley car. He was thrown in front of a horse attached to a delivery wagon. The wagon passed over him and the driver did not stop. Harkness was taken to the New York Hospital suffering from internal injuries and two fractured ribs.

HOST OF 'THINKERS' AID MRS. SANGER AT COURT HEARING

Woman in Birth Control Case Defies Government, Refusing to Stop Crusade.

Mrs. Margaret L. Sanger, arrested by the Government authorities because she sent through the mails a publication called "The Woman Rebel," which contained articles advocating birth control, was arraigned before Judge Henry D. Clayton in the Criminal Branch of the United States District Court to-day.

At the request of Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Knox the case was postponed until Jan. 24. It is doubtful if it will go to trial even on that date.

In court to-day Mrs. Sanger gave the impression that she was posing as a "martyr." She refused to retain a lawyer, but appeared in her own behalf and insisted upon an immediate hearing. Beside her stood her sister, Miss Ethel Byrne.

Many men and women who are known as "free thinkers" on sex problems filled the court-room and there were more out in the corridor.

Most of those in the court room had attended a dinner for Mrs. Sanger last evening at which Mrs. Rose Parsons favored birth control. Among others in the court room were Leonard Abbott, Fola LaFollette, Jessie Ashley, Florence Lewis, Mrs. L. B. Block, Max Heideberg, Maude Malone, Mrs. Florence Wollerton, Mrs. Alice Frank and Mrs. Zelma Corning Brandt.

When the case was called and the continuance granted Mrs. Sanger said to the Court:

"If there is a further postponement on the 24th—what will happen then?"

"The District Attorney will keep you informed," replied the Court. "If a further postponement is planned he will let you know so that you will not be unduly inconvenienced."

"I am overwhelmed by the attention of doctors of friends who have rushed to my aid," said Mrs. Sanger to newspaper men before the case came up. "I am guilty of no crime, and will fight to the bitter end."

It was reported in the courtroom to-day that the Government had offered to drop the case if Mrs. Sanger would promise to refrain from sending any more "birth control" matter through the mails. She is said to have spurned this offer and to have insisted on a trial.

FORBID BOXING DECISIONS.

Bill at Albany Would Ban Announcement in Any Form.

ALBANY, Jan. 18.—The plan for decisions in boxing bouts got a legislative jolt to-day, in addition to Gov. Whitman's punch of last week. Senator Joseph of Manhattan introduced a bill to prevent absolutely announcement of decisions in any form.

The bill reads as follows: "No decision shall be rendered or announced directly or indirectly by any referee, official of the State Athletic Commission or any member of the club or association under whose auspices such sparring match or exhibition is held as to the result of such sparring match or exhibition."

Celebrated 57 Years Wed.
 Mr. and Mrs. William Woodfill of Ely Avenue and Twelfth Street, Long Island City, celebrated the fifty-seventh anniversary of their wedding yesterday by a family reunion. Mr. Woodfill is eighty-three years old and his wife, Theresa, eighty-one. He was formerly local manager for the Standard Oil Company. Their son, William L. Woodfill, is a Deputy Internal Revenue Collector.

MISSING MUSICIAN SLAIN OR PRISONER, HER MOTHER FEARS

Miss Belle Fonrow, Who Disappeared Thursday, Often Carried Big Sum.

Fearing that her daughter, Miss Belle Fonrow, twenty-three years old, has been lured away and has either been killed or is being held prisoner, Mrs. Mary Fonrow of No. 153 Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, has started the police on a city-wide search.

"My daughter had no love affair," declares Mrs. Fonrow. "She was in love only with her music. She was a fine pianist and a violinist, too." Miss Fonrow was a music teacher and an insurance agent. She left home last Thursday morning, telling her mother she was going to a conservatory in Manhattan and would then make some collections from her insurance clients.

She left the Josephs home about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and went to the insurance company to turn in her collections. Since the death of her father, Jacob, about fifteen months ago, Miss Fonrow has looked after his insurance business. From the insurance office she went to the home of a cousin, Jacob Minkowitz, a machinist living at No. 38 Market Street. It was upon leaving there in the evening that she disappeared.

Mrs. Fonrow said that about six weeks ago a young man, also a music teacher, began to call on her daughter. When he rang the bell Miss Fonrow would go downstairs and talk to him in the hallway. The young man was never brought into the apartment and introduced, so Mrs. Fonrow did not know his name nor his description. Since the girl disappeared his visits have ceased.

Mrs. Mamie Fishkin, the janitress, describes this mysterious musician as a youth of about twenty-five, with a thin face, who wore a soft hat and always carried a violin case. Mrs. Fonrow says her daughter went to a concert with this man the night before she disappeared, returning home about 11 o'clock. Her daughter had started to take lessons from Emanuel Goldberg, in Borough Park. Mrs. Fonrow said, but when seen at his home Goldberg stated that he last saw Miss Fonrow a week ago last Sunday. He had given her only two lessons, he said, and both times he had seen her mother in the apartment.

The missing girl is described as follows: 5 feet 4 inches in height; auburn hair, fair complexion, well built; wore a blue corduroy suit, blue hat, with a blue and white striped ribbon, white shirt waist of linen, white stockings and blue shoes. She carried a brief-bag for her music and wore a small watch with a black and white ribbon.

WEIRD STORY OF KILLING.

John Behnstedt Tells Court Companion Urged Him On.

John Behnstedt, a watchman of No. 436 East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, told a weird story of why he killed Michael Laquinto when he was put on trial to-day for murder in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. He said that William Donoghue, a plasterer of No. 124 Second Avenue, got him drunk, sneered at him for carrying a revolver and told him he hadn't nerve enough to kill any one; then led him to Laquinto's boothblack stand and dared him again. He fired three shots into the boothblack.

Justice Weeks accepted Behnstedt's plea of guilty of murder in the second degree, and the man will testify at the trial of Donoghue to-morrow.

BIG MEN WILL HEAD ANDREW FREEDMAN HOME

Leading New Yorkers Named as Incorporators of Institution for Aged and Indigent.

(Special to The Evening World.) ALBANY, Jan. 18.—Special legislation for incorporation of Andrew Freedman Home, to which the late financier left most of his fortune, was introduced to-day by Senator Ogden L. Mills. The incorporators named are Samuel Baker, Eugene L. Busho, Richard Croker Jr., August Belmont, De Lancey Nicol, Valentine P. Snyder, Walter Luttgen, Jacob H. Schiff, Nathan Straus, Edward E. McCall, Anson McCook Beard, Henry A. Gildersleeve, Charles E. Rushmore, John E. Campbell, Charles J. Wittenberg, Daniel B. Freedman, Alvin Untermyer, Charles S. Guggenheimer, Harry Bronner, Joseph P. Day and Bernard Sachs.

The bill states the Home is designed for aged and indigent persons of both sexes, without regard to religious faith, limited only to those who shall at one time have been in good circumstances, but by reasons of adverse fortune, have become poor and dependent.
