

HUGHES SENSITIVE ON HIS ATTITUDE ON EUROPEAN WAR

Situation Is One in Which He Must Be Careful to Show Strictest Neutrality.

By Perry Arnold
(United Press Correspondent.)
PIKESVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—Republican Candidate Hughes is determined not to make any answer to the charge that he represents the German-American vote. He holds it his duty neither by word nor deed to walk into any trap which shall seem to commit him—a man who may be chosen in November to dictate America's position toward the world—to any specified course of action with regard to European politics.

The United Press presents this explanation of the candidate's attitude by permission to-day.

When Hughes discusses and condemns the British "blacklist," it is further explained, it is not with the idea of an animus against Great Britain. When he hits at the submarine warfare and the Wilson Administration's handling of that issue he does not speak with a mind biased against Germany. He speaks as one who regards America's opportunity, as the greatest of neutral nations, the most momentous to America herself and to the other nations of the world in establishing firmly the principles of neutrality.

To those with whom he talked on the subject, Mr. Hughes has added to this statement of position, the following:

America must leave no stone unturned to enforce against any nation her representations as a world power. By so doing the United States not only maintains her own dignity as a nation, but she establishes more firmly the principles of justice contained in international law.

The Republican candidate, it is said for him, feels very strongly the delicacy of his position as a Presidential candidate in this time when international law is in the making. He is extremely resentful of any jockeying by either his friends or his political foes, which attempts to align him with either the Allies or the Entente powers. He does not desire in any utterance to mention the name of a single one of the warring powers, lest some incorrect deduction be made from his mention. But in every speech from now on, he expects to reiterate in emphatic language his disavowal that he has any understanding, or agreement or intrigue with any body.

Here at Pikesville, Ky., early to-day, the Governor made this disavowal, although the major part of his speech was devoted to a discussion of labor problems and prosperity.

To-day the nominee was almost in the feud belt of Kentucky. He was scheduled for six speeches during the day, winding up with a mass meeting in Louisville to-night. Local committeemen, who came aboard the train to-day, declared Kentucky would break away from the South in November, and certainly the Republican Presidential candidate went at his job of stamping with a will.

Misses' Suits and Coats Censored By Fashion

The predominant style note in this season's apparel for young women is grace. Whether manifested in huge cape collars, funnel shaped pockets, full and rippling cascade flare or de'tly applied fur trimming, youthful modes speak one word—grace.

A Lanvin model. A charming broadcloth suit with coat that is pleated from semi-Empire back; top of pleats held down with buttons. Cuffs and separate collar of Hudson seal (dyed muskrat). Skirt is plain with separate belt. May be had in beige, green, Normandy blue or brown. $57.75

A broadcloth suit has 36 inch, full shirred coat with narrow sash that confines the fullness. Large cape collar and funnel shaped pockets edged with Hudson seal (dyed muskrat). Simple skirt with points at pockets. Peau de cygne lined and interlined. $33.75

Coat of genuine striped Bolivia cloth in a very full model with raglan sleeves; slash pockets. Large collar and very deep cuffs of Australian opossum. Warmly lined and interlined. Brown, ivy green, elephant. $69.75

Broadcloth coat, made on very youthful lines, is pleated at waist, but not stitched. The pleats are held in position by a full belt, button trimmed. A three-inch band of kit cone trims the entire bottom and the large cape collar, which may be buttoned high up to the neck. Navy, green or brown, all wool mixtures. $29.75

Margarita Pearls

It takes an expert to distinguish a Margarita Pearl from a real Oriental Pearl. And at times even the wise men are puzzled.

A Margarita necklace has the rich lustre of a string of genuine pearls—an ornament to grace the fair throat of a princess.

"Pearls beyond price" are beyond the means of most women, but Margarita Pearls are within the means of all women. A necklace at a little price, which so closely simulates a necklace at a fabulous price, makes a universal appeal, for all women love beautiful gems.

Margarita Pearls range from $14.89 to $49.75.

NEW!

Seen in the Store

An Inkstand—
An imported inkstand is made of nickel and stands on a broad base about four inches in diameter. At the top of the inkwell cover is a perpetual calendar, one month, days and dates, which stands upright. The interesting feature is that the calendar is so arranged that whether the cover is raised or lowered it remains upright. Main Floor.

A La Valliere—
A very new and handsome La Valliere of 14 Kt. gold has a doubly formed pendant. The upper part bearing an oval topaz, the lower a triangular topaz. It is made of antique gold and is beautifully plated in 14 Kt. gold. It is suspended from a heavy chain. Main Floor.

A Fan—
An exquisite fan for evening wear has sticks of Oriental pearl, daintily hand carved and embossed in antique finish gold. It is covered with real Duchesse lace with a center medallion of roza point lace. Main Floor.

A Handkerchief—
A tiny glove handkerchief of finest French linen has a little ball of Colonial figure daintily hand embroidered in one corner. The adorable little Colonial dame in dress of blue is making a sweeping courtesy while a young cavalier in a profound bow kisses the tip of her tiny finger. The edge is hand folded. Main Floor.
