eva II., a combination of Ned and Eva, by which names Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury are known to their family. It was built for their son, who is an Ensign in the navy, and was intended to be used in the defense of our coast. But because its freeboard was not quite high enough to meet Government specifications Mrs. Stotesbury had another built for the Navy Department's use, and now has given this one to the Junior Reserve, which is dedicated to the training of boys for sea service.

At the "posts" boys of from ten to fourteen years of age are given the initial impulse toward seafaring life through military drill and elementary work in seamanship. At the waterside camps boys of from fourteen to eighteen enter upon a course of practical training and come into personal contact with boats and their use. The purpose is to fit these boys for either the navy or the merchant marine.

The United States Junior Naval Reserve came into being as a result of the Reserve came of an idea evolved by Major Willis J. Physioc, its present Commandant of Cadets, about two years ago. It at once enlisted the interest of leading men and women of the country who furnished the means to put it into operation. Through the local posts about 8,000 boys have been enrolled, 1,012 of whom have received waterside training at Camp Dewey, 205 at Camp Paul Jones at Corpus Christi, Tex., and about 200 at Camp Josephus Daniels.

of the Reserve covers a list of names suggestive of an American "Who's Who." The Reserve is about to begin a drive in the hope of enlisting many more boys who have been enlisted by the Boy Scouts of America.

PRISON CONFRONTS OBJECTORS TO WAR, PRESIDENT RULES

Will First Be Given Opportunity to Enter Non-Combatant Branches of Army.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—President Wilson to-day directed that conscientious objectors drafted into the National Army, and who are unwilling to accept non-combatant service as provided in the Draft Law, shall, in extreme cases, be confined in disciplinary barracks, but when they do not actually disobey a command shall be held for whatever disposition the Secretary of War may make of their cases.

Each such objector is to have the benefit of a full explanation of the law by a "tactful and considerate officer," and so far as possible the choice of a wide range of activities including almost everything except actual fighting. In accordance with the President's order the Secretary of War will revise sentences of court martial heretofore held of persons who come within the conscientious objectors' class and judgments at variance with the order will be changed.

After April 1 and each month thereafter, division, camp and post commanders are to report to the Secretary of War the names of all conscientious objectors, with a statement of the character of the objections of each. Pending decision of the Secretary of War, they will be segregated as much as possible in the camp, but will not be subjected to undue hardship. The executive order does not set forth what action the Secretary of War may finally take. It does state, however, that men who willfully disobey a command shall be court-martialed and may be sentenced.

Objectors who have no preference will be assigned to the Medical Corps, but they may serve in the Quartermaster Department, all branches of which are considered non-combatant, in any engineer work in the United

THAT HOUR OF DAYLIGHT MEANS MANY MORE SHIPS.

All patriots should rejoice when the Daylight Saving Law goes into operation at 2 o'clock on the morning of Easter Sunday, March 31 next.

Ships, ships, more ships are needed to transport the Kaiser and his whole Hohenzollern crew to Eiba, St. Helena or Devil's Island.

An hour more of daylight will help the shipbuilder immensely. Shipworkers begin their toil about 7 A. M. and stop about 5. This means they are working every day, and practically every stroke of "outside" work on ships must be done in daylight. Under the daylight saving system this hour will be regained and more ships set afloat, for, in effect, the hours of work will be from 6 A. M. to 4 P. M.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," says the saying. But for six months after March 31 you may do an hour's more work by daylight if you want to do it. However, you will have an hour more of daylight in which to play, if you want to play.

States, or in the rear of the zone of operations abroad.

Any man who is drafted but fails to report because of alleged conscientious scruples will be treated as a deserter. The Draft Law provides that the claims for exemption on grounds of membership in a religious sect against war shall be considered only when it is determined that such a sect is of recognized authority and in existence before the United States entered the war.

Asks All Teachers to Aid Draft Work.

All school teachers in the city are urged, in a statement issued yesterday by Martin Conboy, Director of the Draft, for New York, to give up their Easter holidays to the work of indexing the results of the classification of all registrants under the Selective Service Law. They are asked to attend a meeting to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock in the De Witt Clinton High School, 59th Street and 19th Avenue, at which Mr. Conboy will appoint them to the local boards that require their services.
