This official photograph, taken on the British western front in France, shows a company of American soldiers passing their British comrades resting by the roadside. Their joyful spirit is reflected in their light, springy step and the gay badinage they are engaged in with the resting Tommies.

20,000 ROUMANIANS TO FIGHT FOR ALLIES

Legion to Be Formed in United States and Other Nations at Once. YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 5.—A Rumanian legion of 20,000 men to be recruited in the United States and the Allied nations for service against Germany will be formed immediately, under the plan adopted here by the National Rumanian League. According to the formation of the legion will center in Cleveland, where the National League decided to locate a permanent home.

Henry Johnson, one of the two negro soldiers cited for bravery by the French command, was also mentioned by Gen. Pershing in his communique of May 14. In the Pershing announcement Johnson's companion was named Needham Roberts. The two, members of what formerly was the 14th New York (Colored) Infantry, were sentries who repulsed a large raiding party of Germans. Both were wounded.

CAPTURED GERMAN OFFICER SHOOTS A U. S. SERGEANT

American Officer Whips With His Fists a Prussian Soldier for Striking Him. By Perry Robinson. (Copyright, 1918, by the Press Publishing Co., New York Evening World.) (By Arrangement With the London Daily Mail.)

HEROISM SHOWN BY AMERICANS OF GERMAN BLOOD

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, July 5.—In connection with the fighting July 4 in Hamel Village one hears stories of large captures of prisoners by individuals, for the village was full of dugouts into which the Germans retreated on the approach of the British tanks and infantry. One American went alone into a dugout and knew in the darkness that men were around him. He called on them to surrender, but in reply some one hit him, just missing his head, presumably with a rifle butt. Then the American began shooting in the dark while a scuffling like that of rats went on around him. Presently cries of "Kamerad!" went up, and when a light was brought it was found his random shots had killed five men and nine others, unwounded, were ready to surrender.

Prisoners taken here mostly have been of a good physical type, larger than the Prussians, but some officers are most offensive. One deliberately struck an officer who was speaking to him with the utmost courtesy. He might have been shot, but instead the officer who was hit, and a much smaller man, turned in and hammered the Prussian with his fists until the latter literally squealed.

It appears a German officer, after having surrendered, shot an American sergeant with a pistol, and in that part of the attack thereafter it was bad for any German to come within reach of an American soldier. One of the extraordinary sights of the battle was to see Australian soldiers bringing German wounded in tenders on stretchers. The prisoners say frankly the food they are getting is better than their recent rations.

In one case a tank was 200 yards ahead of the infantry and found a nest of six machine guns. The men simply rolled over them, crushing all guns and some of the crews, and the others of whom were shot down in trying to escape.

At first it could see nothing, so it perambulated around the hummock, asking what it could find. It had just about made a complete circuit when suddenly out of a camouflaged trench over forty Germans sprang out with their hands in the air.

LETTERS FROM WAR VICTIMS AHEAD OF CASUALTY NOTICES

Relatives of New Yorkers Get First News of Their Wounding by Mail. After ninety days in the front line trenches, First Lieut. Thomas H. Lee, twenty-seven, of No. 116 West 121st Street, was wounded by shrapnel. His father, Thomas J. Lee, who was notified by the War Department Lieut. Lee had been wounded June 11, has learned it is only a slight wound in the hip.

Following the telegram Mr. Lee received a letter from a friend of his son, who wrote that Lieut. Lee was doing nicely and was going to visit Paris. He is a Fordham University graduate. He had law offices at No. 45 Broadway. "Don't worry, mother. I'll come around all right and will go back at 'em again," wrote Hugh Murtha to his mother, Mrs. Anna Murtha of No. 475 Jackson Avenue, Jersey City. Yesterday Mrs. Murtha received official notification of her son's injury, received in action between June 8 and 9. She had already learned from him, however, that a German bullet had hit him in the side.

Lieut. Joseph A. Synnott, mentioned in the casualty list among those who died in action, is a brother of Miss Molly Synnott and a cousin of Major Martin J. Synnott of Montclair, N. J. He has been awarded the War Cross (posthumously). He had been in the Marine Corps seventeen years. Mrs. Anna Weaver of No. 23 Atlantic Street, Newark, received a telephone message from Mary M. Keon of Charlestown, Mass., yesterday that her three nephews, who were with a Canadian regiment, were killed in action a week ago. The soldiers were Douglas J. John P. and Murray J. O'Hanley, sons of Daniel O'Hanley of Cape Breton, N. S., Douglas, Mrs. Weaver said, had been wounded eleven times in three years of service. Joseph Asenzi, twenty-one, missing in action, formerly lived with his father, James, at No. 262 North Sixth Street, Brooklyn. Private John J. Sheridan, killed in action, was draft man trained at Camp Dix and lived with his parents in Newark. He was twenty-four years old. Private David Doctor, thirty, killed in action, lived with a sister at No. 276 Vermont Street, Brooklyn. He was born in Russia and had lived in this country eight years. In a recent letter he said he had a "hunch" he would never come back.

Mrs. A. B. Booth of No. 45 North Willow Street, Montclair, has been notified her son, James M. Booth, died in battle with a Regular Army regiment that joined Gen. Pershing. Private Jeremiah Sheehan, severely wounded, lived with his father, a longshoreman, at No. 345 West 16th Street. He went over with the 165th, formerly the 68th New York. Louis Winters, severely wounded, lived with his parents at Oceanide, L. I., and after being trained at Camp Upton was shifted to a Regular Army regiment. Lieut. K. Kenneth Rutherford Jr., wounded in action, is the brother of Mrs. Abner Kenney Clarke of No. 155 Alta Avenue, Park Hill, Yonkers, and is reputed to be the first American officer to lead American troops in Alsace-Lorraine. He was born in Wadlington, N. Y., where his parents still live, and won his commission at the first officers' training camp at Plattsburg.

Word has been received by Dr. C. A. Lang of No. 37 Hanson Place, Brooklyn, that his brother, Oscar, of the 104th Aero Squadron, has been wounded in France. He is a graduate of Brooklyn High School and Polytechnic Institute. Corpl. Elwood L. Colby, killed in action, was not known around No. 100 West 57th Street, the address given. The building is being razed. It was also impossible to locate the home of Dennis Falvey, formerly at No. 2749 Eighth Avenue, a private in the Engineer Corps, who died of disease.
