POLICE TRAIL WOMAN IN ELWELL CONFESSION

WOMAN NAMED BY HARRIS IN HIS ELWELL CONFESSION CLOSELY WATCHED BY POLICE

Mr. Whitman Inclined to Believe Story is a Ruse to Divert Pursuit.

HARRIS FAINTS IN CELL.

Alienists Examine Him and He Is Again Questioned by N. Y. Detectives.

Detective Sergeant Henry Oswald, sent to Buffalo to investigate the statements of Leroy Harris regarding the murder of Joseph B. Elwell in his West 70th Street home last June, reported by long-distance telephone to Police Headquarters to-day that he had talked for some time to-day with Harris this morning. Oswald was furnished with additional suggestions for questioning Harris and said he thought he could reach a definite conclusion before night as to whether Harris "knew something" or was merely an artistic liar.

District Attorney Moore of Erie County, acting for former Governor Whitman, in charge of the District Attorney's interests in the Elwell case here, reported at the same time to Mr. Whitman that he was more and more convinced that even though Harris might be untruthful in some of his statements he had either been concerned in the murder or had been in the confidence of persons who had a share in it.

Mr. Whitman said he had the greatest confidence in the good judgment of Mr. Moore having known him for years since, as Governor, he appointed Mr. Moore to fill a vacancy in the District Attorney's office at Buffalo.

Mr. Whitman said he had not acted on the suggestion of Mr. Moore that the authorities here take into custody a woman identified by Harris from a photograph as the person who instigated the crime as he describes it. Mr. Whitman explained that all the persons mentioned by Mr. Moore, including this woman, were easily watched and reached, and could not disappear without detection. He refused to say whether these persons—the woman and her close friends—were under surveillance.

Mr. Whitman intimated it was not beyond the possibilities that Harris had been prompted to make a "confession" by a person who was guilty

$20,000,000 WILL BEQUESTS OF ENO UPHELD BY COURT

Appellate Division Reverses Jury's Verdict Finding Testator Incompetent.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to-day decided that the verdict of a jury in the Surrogate's Court to the effect that the late Amos F. Eno, who died leaving an estate worth more than $20,000,000, was incompetent when he made his will, was contrary to the weight of evidence and ordered a new trial.

The will was contested by many of the heirs and supported by Columbia University, which appealed from the verdict and from the Surrogate's order denying a motion to set it aside.

Lucius H. Beers and William Mitchell, proponents of the will, were with Columbia University on the appeal. Among the respondents were William F. Eno, Antoinette E. Wood, Gifford Pinchot, Amos R. E. Pinchot, Antoinette Johnstone, Henry Lane Eno, Mary P. Eno and Florence C. Graves.

Roderick C. Penfield Dies in Japan. Dispatches from Yokohama to-day announced the death there last Friday of Roderick C. Penfield, former New York magazine owner and playwright. The White Hen, Princess Piccola and other plays were his work. For two years he had been publishing an international trade magazine, "The World Salesman," in Yokohama.

STILLMAN CHECK FOR $62,500 IS RECEIVED TO-DAY

At the Same Time Notice of Appeal Is Filed by Banker's Counsel.

THE firm of Cadwallader, Wickersham & Taft, counsel for Mrs. James A. Stillman, announced to-day that a check for $62,500 in payment of two months' alimony and counsel fees of $47,000, allowed by Justice Morschauer, had been received by them.

In a letter accompanying the check, attorneys for Mr. Stillman said they would not appeal the award if assured of an early trial.

A clerk from the office of DeLancey Nicoll, counsel for James A. Stillman, gave notice at White Plains this afternoon of the filing to-day at Carmel, N. Y., and with the clerk of the Appellate Division, Second Department, of a motion to appeal the judgment of Justice Morschauer giving Mrs. Stillman $7,500 a month alimony and $47,000 for legal expenses.

Counsel for Mrs. Stillman asserted they would at once go before Justice Morschauer to ask for at least $2,500 additional counsel fee for the purpose of fighting the appeal before the Appellate Division.

FREEDOM OF CITY FOR EINSTEIN AS BIG CROWD CHEERS

Board of Aldermen Confer the Honor on Scientist and Head of Zionists.

FALCONER IS SCORED.

Collins in Bitter Attack Derides Claim of Distinguished Ancestry.

By a vote of 56 to 1 the Board of Aldermen extended the freedom of the city to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the Zionist movement, and his associate, Prof. Albert Einstein. Alderman Falconer was the only man voting against the resolution.

Loud cheers greeted the announcement of the vote.

When the meeting was called to order the gallery and main floor of the Aldermanic Chamber were jammed with Jewish citizens who came to protest against Alderman Falconer's action at last Tuesday's meeting.

Democratic Floor leader William T. Collins led in the attack on Falconer after the resolution extending the freedom of the city to Chaim Weizmann, head of the Zionist movement, and Albert Einstein, the scientist, who is another member of the Zionist delegation to this country, had been read. By general agreement, the phrase "and their associates" had been netted from the resolution upon its reintroduction. Collins referred to a speech given to the newspapers by Falconer before to-day's meeting in which Falconer referred to his American ancestry dating back to 1702. His first ancestor, a Frenchman by birth and an Englishman by naturalization, came to this country as secretary to Lord Edward Viscount Cornbury.

"There were no typewriters in the days that this Pierre Falconer came to this country," said Alderman Collins, "and a secretary at that time was a menial who held a coat or blackened his Grace's boots. Men of that class fled to Canada when the colonists were at war with Great Britain."

"Truly, then, this Bruce M. Falconer, who flaunts his ancestry in our faces, is nothing more than the descendant of a Falconer, a secretary, a coat holder or a man who blacked the boots of a British Lord. This is the man who never heard of Einstein or Weizmann! I claim that any Alderman who objects to granting the freedom of the city to such distinguished men as these is a bigot, a disgrace to this Board and the city at large and a reflection upon the whole spirit of tolerance in this country. This man Falconer, with all the bitterness of his ancestry was against the Mannix and the De Valera resolutions. He ought to give up America and go back to England. He is the one obstructionist in this Board. He is condemned by all fair minded people, irrespective of race or creed, and, although a Democrat, I can state with authority that the Republicans are through with him."

ELWELL MYSTERY BROUGHT INTO TRIAL OF STOKES'S CASE

Witness Asked if He Tried to Fif Keys Into Door of Slain Man's Home.

NO, IS HIS ANSWER.

Mr. Littleton Explains Why He Asked Questions of the Plaintiff's Cashier.

Martin W. Littleton, attorney for Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes, defendant in the divorce suit, stated at recess this afternoon that he intended to prove that agents of Stokes had tried to fit keys, alleged to have been taken from Mrs. Stokes's writing desk, to the door of Joseph B. Elwell's house in 701. Street where he was murdered.

The matter of the keys came up during the cross-examination of Leslie S. Petrie, cashier for Mr. Stokes, who, after keeping them in his safe, went in June, 1920, with a private detective named Jentzer, employed by Stokes, to the former home of Edgar T. Wallace, one of the co-respondents, at No. 13 East 35th Street, and saw them tried in the door of the apartment.

"Did you ever try the keys in the door of Elwell's home?" Mr. Littleton asked Petrie.

The witness, knitting his brows at the unexpectedness of this, said he had not done so.

"Did you know that those keys did fit the door of Elwell's home?" was asked.

"No, I didn't know that," Mr. Petrie replied.

Mr. Petrie testified that he saw Jentzer put the key in the lock of Wallace's door and a moment later turn it and open the door.

Q. The door might have been unlocked, might it not, and not have been opened by this key? A. All I can say is that I saw the key put in and turned and the door opened.

The witness stated that he had the keys in the safe in Stokes's office from November to December, 1919, until June 21, 1920, when he gave them back to Jentzer and they went together to the fitting experiment in East 35th Street.

Q. (By Mr. Wise, counsel to Wallace). Were those keys marked in any way by you? A. No.

Q. Can you swear these are the

GETS $38,000 FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Miss Lynch Awarded $13,000 More Than She Won on First Trial of Suit.

A breach of promise verdict of $38,000 was to-day awarded by a jury in Justice Square's part of the Brooklyn Supreme Court to Miss Winifred V. Lynch of No. 96 Sterling Place, that borough, who twice sued Alexander H. Figue of No. 245 West 95th Street, Manhattan. Miss Lynch was given a $25,000 verdict last year, but it was set aside on appeal. To-day's verdict resulted from the retrial of the case.

Miss Lynch testified she became engaged to Figue, wealthy member of Figue Bros., meat packers, in May, 1920, when she was eighteen years old and working as a telephone operator. She was invited to sign a general release under a misapprehension as to its nature, she said, and in December, 1917, Figue married another woman.

The verdict was said to be one of the largest ever given in Brooklyn in a breach of promise action.

EXTRA MRS. SHONTS DROPS CONTEST OF WILL; RETRACTS CHARGES

Document Leaving Bulk of Estate to Mrs. Thomas Probated—Terms of Settlement a Secret.

The will of the late Theodore Shonts, President of the Interborough, was admitted to probate this afternoon by Surrogate Foley after the widow, Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, had signed an affidavit withdrawing her objections and specifically retracting "all the charges that I have at any time made derogatory to the character, repute and conduct of Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas."

Mrs. Thomas is the woman to whom Mr. Shonts willed a great part of his estate. The widow's reasons for withdrawing her contest were not made known.

TWO WOMEN LIVE IN LOCKED HOTEL ROOM FOR 3 YEARS

Had Means, but Ate Only Canned Goods and Never Opened Door—One Dying.

Hoboken health authorities and the police to-day began investigation of two women, both apparently well-educated and having moderate means, who since January, 1918, have locked themselves in a suite of three rooms at Meyer's Hotel, Third and Hudson Street, Hoboken, and never at any time until to-day stepped outside their retreat.

On complaint of Henry Braun, proprietor of the Hotel, Dr. F. X. Stack, Hoboken Health Commissioner, gained admittance on a threat to break down the door.

He found the elderly woman, whose name was given as Miss Carrie Sunderland, in bed, and on the bed a dog. Dr. Stack said Miss Sunderland, who is sixty years old, had tuberculosis and could not live more than three weeks. He ordered her removal to St. Mary's Hospital.

The younger woman said she was Mrs. Fannie Miller. She appeared to be about forty-five. She objected to having Miss Sunderland, her aunt, taken to St. Mary's Hospital, saying she would make arrangements for her to be taken to a private hospital, for which she was able to pay.

Mrs. Miller said she realized that her aunt was very ill and that their manner of life had been extraordinary. She said she and Miss Sunderland came from New York to the hotel and cut themselves off from the rest of the world because they "had to."

Dr. Stack said he found she was slightly infected with tuberculosis. She said they lived entirely on canned goods which they ordered by mail, and milk delivered at the door. They paid $30 a week for the suite, by checks which they left in envelopes at the door. They received mail, and conducted all other communication with the outside world through the crack at the bottom of the door, which was kept locked at all times during the three years and three months.

Edward Moore, the health manager, said he went to the health authorities when, after repeated notices the women failed to remove empty cans they had piled on the fire escape.

Mrs. Miller, according to Dr. Stack, talked rationally, and appeared to understand the condition of herself and her aunt fully. It was said no prosecution on grounds of alleged violation of the health laws will be made.

PLOT TO POISON JUDGE LOVETT IN OMAHA REPORTED

Hotel Maid Said She Was Offered $500 to Put Drug in Glass of Water.

POLICE GUARDING HIM.

Chairman of Union Pacific Had Just Completed Inspection of System.

OMAHA, April 8.—A plot to poison Judge Robert S. Lovett, of New York, chairman of the board of directors of the Union Pacific system, was revealed here to-day when a maid employed at the Fontenelle Hotel told Captain of Detectives Van Deusen that she had been offered $500 by a man to slip poison into a glass of water and serve it to Lovett. From the description given by the maid police believe the man is a foreigner.

Police refused to give the name of the man or to discuss the case further than to say that they will guard Mr. Lovett closely during the remainder of his stay here. Two detectives stood guard in his room last night.

Judge Lovett completed an inspection of the Union Pacific system Tuesday and has been here since. He expects to leave for New York tonight. Chief Special Agent Gale and seven Union Pacific detectives will accompany his train when it leaves for the East.

At the offices of the Union Pacific, No. 120 Broadway, no message concerning Judge Lovett had been received this afternoon. It was said there that he was on an inspection trip in the West.

JULIE OPP DIES IN HOSPITAL HERE AFTER OPERATION

Well Known Actress of Shakespearean Roles Was Wife of William Faversham.

Mrs. William Faversham, who while she was on the stage was known as Julie Opp, died here to-day at the Post Graduate Hospital following an operation.

Mr. Faversham at present is playing in Columbus, O., in "The Prince and the Pauper," in which he appeared here earlier in the season. He was notified this afternoon of her death.

Miss Opp underwent an "extensive abdominal operation" a week ago Wednesday, it was said at the hospital. She was in a weakened condition, it was said, when she went there for the operation, following her return from abroad.

Julie Opp was the daughter of Johnny Opp, who had a restaurant and saloon at No. 311 Broadway thirty-five years ago, and becoming wealthy gave his daughter the best education he knew how. While understudy Julia Neilson in London in 1896 she had an opportunity which led to her becoming a star.

Drowned in Coney Island Creek. Edward Moore, four, who lived with his grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Moore, at No. 3708 West Sixth Street, Coney Island, was drowned to-day in Coney Island Creek at the foot of Shell Head. When he fell into the water his playmates ran screaming to their homes. Frank McLaughlin, who lives next to Mrs. Moore, and Policeman George Maloney got the child's body and Dr. Weinstein of Coney Island Hospital worked with a pulmotor for half an hour before pronouncing him dead.

KING CALLS ARMY RESERVES AND VOLUNTEERS AS GREAT UNIONS DECIDE TO STRIKE

Regular Army Also to Be Recruited at Once—Walk Out of 3,000,000 Men Begins Tuesday and It Is Feared It Will, If Successful, Paralyze the Entire Industrial Life of the Nation.

LONDON, April 8 (United Press).—King George to-day called the army reserves and volunteers to active service in the threatened industrial revolution. His message was read in the House of Commons by Premier Lloyd George.

The King's proclamation included the army, navy and the air force reserves. It also provided for increasing the strength of the regular army by recruiting.

A general strike of the Triple Alliance throughout Great Britain, throwing the country into industrial chaos, will start at midnight Tuesday unless negotiations for settlement of the coal strike are reopened. It was announced by union leaders shortly after 7 P. M. when the executives of the Triple Alliance had been in session three hours.

The Premier stated that enrollment of volunteers will begin to-morrow. The territorial forces (militia) will not be included in the reserves, he said, but members and ex-service men were urged to enlist.

"For the first time in the history of the Nation," Lloyd George declared, "it is confronted by an attempt to coerce it into capitulation by the destruction of its resources."

He urged that volunteers offer their services to supplant railway strikers in essential services. He also asked that they support the police to see in their work.

LONDON, April 8 (Associated Press).—The intention of the British Government to issue an appeal for volunteers for the transport and other essential services, in view of the prospective triple alliance strike, was announced in the House of Commons late to-day by Lloyd George, the Prime Minister. A royal proclamation would call up the army and navy reserves, he said.

The Government also intends to enroll special constables and form a special emergency force for a period of ninety days to protect the police in the execution of their duty, the Prime Minister added.

After recounting the day's events from which he drew the conclusion determined to allow the mines to go to destruction in the belief that by such action it will be able to intimidate the nation into surrender, Mr. Lloyd George declared it was the duty of the government, as the trustees of the nation, to prevent this catastrophe. He then announced the measures to be taken and read the King's emergency proclamation.

J. Austen Chamberlain, the Government Leader in the House, moved that the King's message be taken under consideration Monday. Amid cries of "to-morrow" the motion was agreed to and the House adjourned.

Great Britain to-day appeared to be face to face with an industrial crisis of unprecedented proportions. The National Union of Railwaymen and the Federation of Transport Workers declined to strike in support of British miners, who have been out since early this week. (Membership of the three great labor bodies, the "Triple Alliance," is placed at 2,000,000.)

Hopes that the miners and the owners of coal pits might meet with Government officials to discuss means of settling the strike were apparently blasted shortly before noon, when it was announced the miners had refused to meet their employers.

The original invitation from the Prime Minister for a meeting between the miners and owners, to be held at noon, was contained in identical letters to the Mining Association and the Miners' Federation.

Each body was invited to meet "to deal in the first instance with the question of pumping and the preservation of the mines," the letters suggesting "that this matter should be disposed of before any other question is entered upon."

In their reply to this invitation to the noon conference the miners said they were ready to meet the owners and the Government "as soon as we hear from you that the conference to be held will be entirely freed from any preliminary conditions as to what is to be or not to be discussed."

To this Mr. Lloyd George replied: "We have never suggested that any limitations should be imposed upon the discussions, but as regards the order in which the matters be discussed, the national interest in the preservation of the mines is paramount and must take first place."

"While the mines are hourly being
