

HARVARD STIRRED OVER GIRLS' MEET IN THE STADIUM.

Y. W. C. A. Athletes From All Over New England to Compete Saturday.

(Special to The Evening World.)
BOSTON, June 8.—Silk bloomers of feminine athletes will rustle in the Harvard Stadium for the first time in all its history on Saturday next. Y. W. C. A. girls from all over New England will shatter the tradition of several decades in competing on the famous cinder track. The track meet will be exclusively for women, but spectators' seats are open to all comers.

Two hundred and fifty pairs of silk bloomers will line up for the "Y" girls' events. Hurdle jumping, shot putting, sprinting, high jumping, baseball throwing, relay racing and potato races are down on the entry card. Harvard students as well as athletic authorities from leading New England colleges will assist the girls in their events, but only by acting as starters, timers and judges.

Y. W. C. A. teams from twelve New England cities, from Portland, Me., to Pawtucket, R. I., will be represented in the events. Cups and medals will be given the individual winners and a large loving cup to the team that scores most.

It was not without debate that the conservative Harvard authorities agreed to give over the stadium for feminine sports. Cambridge professors have ever been loath to get teamed up over novelties; and the idea that the games might be altogether too attractive to Harvard students—who are this week in the throes of their final exams—also carried its weight. When the women's committee on the girls' carnival made their final appeal to the Harvard board, however, the ayes had it easily. Harvard said yes, and tickets may yet be found in speculators' hands, so stirred up in Cambridge over the impending contests.

Allowances will be made for the girls' inferiority in field and track athletics. The cross-bar in the high jumping event won't start at four feet and a half as it does in college track meets. Nor will the hurdles that the girls will have to jump be of the usual variety height. Four feet, six inches, may be to the liking of male timber toppers, but that height would be more than deadly to the female. So the girls will scramble over baby barriers that measure just two feet high.

The athletes will use the Harvard shower baths for changing into athletic clothes. For once more men will be kept 100 yards from the locker building. Harvard will do what it can to make the girls comfortable, but shiny noses after the meet must be daubed with non-Harvard talcum powder. The girls will have to bring their own.

There is no rule against concealing a vanity case in running trunks, either.

STOLEN CAR STARTS CHASE ALONG 42D ST.

Prisoner Picked Out of Times Square Crowd Insists He Is Wrong Man.

A young man giving the name of Jack Cook, No. 305 West 105th Street, who claims to be a victim of mistaken identity, was arrested in the subway at 42d Street and Broadway at noon today, after a crowd on foot and in automobiles had participated in a chase from 41st Street and Fifth Avenue to the lower end of Times Square. He was charged with stealing an automobile, and was locked up in the East 35th Street Station.

Samuel Barrell, of Astoria, leaving the building at No. 40 East 41st Street saw his automobile which he had left at the curb a few minutes before rolling along westward and turning south into Fifth Avenue. He gave chase shouting and numerous curious citizens joined him. Caught in the traffic jam at 42d Street and Broadway the occupant of the car ran into the subway followed by Charles Miller, a traffic policeman. Miller grabbed Cook out of the crowd on the platform. Cook claims he was waiting for a train and knew nothing about the attempted theft of the automobile.

BOYS' TEAM CAUGHT IN SPORTS FACTORY

Found Taking Uniforms and Bathing Suits When Another Lad Tells Police.

A small boy with tortoise-shell glasses, bobbed hair and Norfolk suit, went into the Bergen Street Police Station, Brooklyn, last evening and informed Detectives McClung and Downs that several rough looking lads had slipped back the cotton on the lower window of the A. G. Spalding sporting goods factory, Nos. 25 and 26 Sixth Avenue.

When the detectives arrived they found Charles Peterson, Joseph Shannon, Joe Fitzpatrick, Thomas Swift and Leo Walsh, pitcher, catcher and most of the infield of Young Babe Ruth B. B. C., of Hudson Avenue, trying on uniforms. It is thought the outfield was acting as lookout. The boys, who are between thirteen and fourteen, had also decided to get a few bathing suits. They were taken to the Children's Society for the night and go before Judge Wilkins in the Children's Court today. In the meanwhile the outfield, still at liberty, is looking for the boy with the glasses.

CRAIG ANSWERS M'ANENY.

Says State, Not City, Must Pay Transit Board Salaries.
In an affidavit filed with Supreme Court Justice Whitaker, Comptroller Craig asserts the State and not the city should pay the 105 employees of the new Transit Commission, who were transferred when the present body succeeded the old Public Service Commission. The affidavit is in reply to mandamus action brought by George McAneny, Chairman of the new Transit Commission, to compel the Comptroller to pay the employees. The Comptroller quotes sections of the new law which, he says, make it clear that the State intended to pay the transferred employees. He says even the exact amount of the appropriation needed is mentioned and that "every one of the 105 positions is represented by an item in the annual appropriation bill of the State."

BURGLARS USE TUNNEL.
Steal $15,000 Silk Shirts by Working From Building Next to Factory.
A tunnel from an adjoining building was used by burglars who got $15,000 worth of silk shirts from the factory of Albin & Manacous, No. 147 North Ninth Street, Brooklyn. The police learned that three weeks ago three men rented the adjoining building, a vacant garage, saying they wanted to store vegetables in it. A hole was cut through the wall, cleverly avoiding the burglar alarm wires. It is believed that the shirts were carried away in a truck sometime between noon Saturday and Monday morning. The police have descriptions of the men who rented the garage.
