

INSISTS SHE SHOT MRS. DI SIMONE TO GET HUSBAND BACK

Mrs. Martinangelo Admits Man Was With Her, but Denies He Is to Blame.

ACCUSED BY VICTIMS

Song Writer First Sought by Police Now Declared to Be Innocent.

Although in an ante-mortem statement to the police at her bedside in St. Vincent's Hospital, Mrs. Rosina Di Simone declared she was shot by Giuseppe Milano, a song writer and vaudeville singer, because she refused longer to live with him, Mrs. Nunziata Martinangelo, also a vaudeville singer, swears she shot Mrs. Di Simone, and is now under arrest. She was taken to the District Attorney's office today for interrogation. Milano, for whom a police alarm was sent out after Mrs. Di Simone's statement, has not been found.

The shooting took place yesterday morning in front of Mrs. Di Simone's home, No. 47 Marston Street, after Mrs. Martinangelo said she had made repeated appeals to the other woman to relinquish her husband, Remo Martinangelo, a chauffeur. Not only did Mrs. Martinangelo assert who did the shooting, but she said to-day: "I hope she dies, but I'm sorry I shot her. She called me a terrible name when I spoke to her yesterday morning, and drew a razor. Then I shot her. After that, I threw the pistol in an ash barrel and went to my parents' home at No. 71 West 21st Street, Bayonne, N. J., in a taxicab. There I was arrested last night."

When she was told of the ante-mortem statement of Mrs. Di Simone to Detective Shevlin of the Charles Street Station, she said: "I don't see why Milano should be charged with it. I did it. He was with me because he had heard that Mrs. Di Simone was threatening to sell some furniture he bought when he was living with her. But he ran away after I fired the first shot at her. I fired three others, but I am told only one struck her."

Mrs. Martinangelo, known on the vaudeville stage as Aurora Di Bella, a contralto, lives at No. 519 East 117th Street. She is the mother of two children and takes care of four others, children of a dead sister. She is twenty-nine years old, a year older than her victim.

She said she was married in Cleveland in 1916 and came to this city two years ago. Her husband, she added, left her three months ago on account of Mrs. Di Simone. All appeals to the latter to give him up failing, Mrs. Martinangelo says she obtained a summons for her but could not serve it on Tuesday, as Mrs. Di Simone fled through the rear of her home. She went there again yesterday and waited until Mrs. Di Simone returned from a neighboring grocery. The shooting followed.

Mrs. Di Simone has had two husbands. One, Attilio Di Simone, is in Sing Sing, serving from twenty years to life for killing Alessandro Della Rosa, at No. 189 Thompson Street in July, 1916, in a row over Mrs. Di Simone. He had been arrested in 1910 for killing another man in a similar quarrel, but was freed. Milano is said to have deserted a wife and children to take up with her, but after a disagreement returned to his wife.

$94,000,000 LESS FOR U. S. TO PAY IN 1922 THAN EXPECTED

President Tells Congress Estimated Expenditures Are Now $3,940,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. Estimated expenditures of the Government for the fiscal year 1922 are now placed at $3,940,000,000, a reduction of $4,000,000 from the August 10 estimate of $1,084,000,000. President Harding was informed Congress in a letter to Speaker Gillett. The new estimate was presented by the President in connection with deficiency estimates of appropriations of $187,222,574 which, Mr. Harding said, were taken into consideration in arriving at the new estimates for 1922 expenditures. The President fixed the expected aggregate reduction in expenditures for the current year at $609,000,000.

COMPLAINS POLICE SEIZED HIS HOME WITHOUT WARRANT

Brother Charges Nellie Bly Directed Action, and Gets Injunction.

Martin Conboy, counsel to Albert P. Cochrane of No. 1028 Beverly Road, Flatbush, in asking Justice Benedict of the Kings County Supreme Court to-day for the continuation of an injunction issued on Oct. 22 by Justice Aspinall restraining Police Commissioner Enright and the commander of the 74th Precinct, Brooklyn, from trespassing in Mr. Cochrane's home, said that policemen invaded the premises on Oct. 15 without warrant, broke through locked doors, damaged furniture and remained on guard day and night until driven out by the injunction.

Mr. Cochrane is a brother of Mrs. Elizabeth Seaman, who writes for an evening newspaper under the name of Nellie Bly. She obtained an injunction recently restraining Mr. Cochrane from selling at auction certain furnishings and works of art in his home which, she asserted, were her property, having been bought by her late husband, Robert Seaman.

At the time the policemen took charge of Mr. Cochrane's home, he was arrested and finger printed. Referring to this, Mr. Conboy said to-day, in course of the court proceedings: "Apparently a mere direction by Mrs. Seaman is sufficient to cause policemen to arrest, without warrant of law, a citizen and compel him to have his finger prints taken. We have here an attempt to use the Police Department in a claim for property."

"How did the police get into Mr. Cochrane's home?" inquired Justice Benedict. "They just walked in," replied Mr. Conboy. "I thought a man's home was his castle," remarked the Court. The injunction against the police was continued.

Hylan Has 128 Blood Pressure; Tested in Public

Doesn't Bare His Arm for Benefit of Crowd in the City Hall Plaza.

Mayor Hylan has a blood pressure of 128, and is therefore, according to the medical code, in the pink of condition. He is fifty-three years of age. The Mayor's blood pressure was taken in public in City Hall Plaza to-day by Health Commissioner Copeland, and the result was shown in a red fluid that climbed through a tube on a thermometer-like standard at least ten feet in height. While the rubber band was being adjusted about the Mayor's arm he bowed impressively to the gaping crowd.

After the Mayor had been told by Dr. Copeland that he was in good shape physically, His Honor bought several tickets for the public health exhibition which will be held Nov. 14 to 19 at Grand Central Palace under the joint auspices of the Department of Health and the American Public Health Association.

The American and French medical authorities agree that the normal blood pressure of a person is found by adding the age to 100. On this basis, the Mayor's blood pressure should be 153. If Dr. Copeland's bit is correct, the Mayor's blood pressure is sub-normal.

WORK ALL NIGHT TO AID MAN BURIED 55 FEET BY CAVE-IN

Pipes Carry Air to Victim Under Tons of Sand—He Fails to Answer Signals.

WANAUKE, N. J., Nov. 3.—A force of men has been working swiftly since yesterday afternoon in an attempt to rescue Frank Graham, an iron worker, of Buffalo, who was buried alive by a cave-in at an excavation for damming the Wanauke watershed. It is not known whether Graham is still alive.

When the sandy soil slipped down upon him, burying him fifty-five feet deep, it carried some timbers along. Practically the only hope for his life is the possibility that the timbers may have formed a sort of bridge over him, giving some protection and a little air space.

Pipes have been driven down and compressed air forced through them in the hope that some of it would reach the imprisoned man. The diggers have worked fast, but have been obliged to stop at intervals and shore up the sand banks above them. Signal taps have been given on the air pipe, but there has been no response.

Two other men were standing with Graham when the soil began to go. One of them put out a hand to Graham as he was being pulled down. They were pulled apart. A rope was thrown to Graham, coupled with the suction, soon exhausted him and the rope slipped from his grasp. He was drawn under.

The Court held that the value of the life of a child is the most speculative of all calculations and that the responsibility in this case rested with the jury.

FREE TRANSFER POINTS CUT FROM 2,365 TO 358 AS Hylan CLAIMS 5-CENT FARE CREDIT

Passengers Pay Double and Triple While Mayor Talks and Talks.

CHARGES TACKLED ON

Two Cents Collected at 227 Points in Face of Vote Appeals.

While Mayor Hylan is talking about the "five-cent fare," thousands of street car passengers in this city are hourly paying double and some triple fares.

Figures obtained from the Transit Commission to-day show that when the Mayor took office there were in Greater New York 2,365 free transfer points on the surface lines of this metropolis.

To-day there are exactly 358 free transfer points. Of the 2,365 transfer points of three years ago, 1,789 were discontinued, leaving only 585 in effect, and of the latter number a transfer charge of two cents is made at 227 points, leaving the net number of absolute free points at 358.

Disintegration of the lines automatically abolished many of the transfer intersections. The lines reverted to their lessors and then came a total abandonment of useless lines and in some cases only a suspension of service, much of which has to date not been resumed. Many of these conditions grew out of the refusal of the present city administration to give to the trolley companies the relief they sought in increased fares. In relief from paying charges along the various rights of way.

Such of the free transfer points as were not binding through franchise obligations were either eliminated entirely or transfer points or were transformed into two-cent transfer points. Decried relief from the terms of existing franchise agreements was denied by the city—hence the recourse through receivers of the company.

The situation as it stands now is that more passengers are paying more fare on the surface lines to reach their destinations than they paid three years ago. Ten women pickets bearing placards with red and black type performed service for the Coalition forces at the many transfer junction points in Manhattan and Brooklyn this morning during the rush hours to show Greater New York passengers that Hylan had not been a "gentle fare" Mayor, they said.

THIEF WHO SERVED LOVERS' QUARREL IN THE ARMY GETS ENDS IN MURDER; 19-YEAR SENTENCE MAN TRIES SUICIDE

Judge McIntyre Says Worst Period Was Only Time in His Life Kane Was Not Criminal.

At the conclusion of a plea by Counselor George Simpson for a new trial for Matthew Kane of No. 69 West 126th Street, who was convicted a few days ago of holding up the clerk of a cigar store at No. 149 Lexington Avenue, Judge John F. McIntyre said: "You ask for mercy for this man because he served with the army in France. The record shows that he has been a thief all his life and was first convicted of robbery when he was sixteen years old. The only period when his name was not in the criminal records of this country was while he was in the army, and he began to hold up cigar stores as soon as he got out. The city is overrun with armed hold-up men who are murderers at heart and they are entitled to no mercy."

Judge McIntyre then sentenced Kane to serve nineteen years in Sing Sing Prison. Nineteen other persons were sentenced by Judge McIntyre during the morning session of his court. The aggregate of sentences was 130 years. Louis Cavanello and John Fallon, who made a practice of standing on elevated railroad stations and grabbing purses and jewelry from women through the open windows of cars were sentenced to Sing Sing for not less than two years and six months nor more than five years.

Mary Krivoski of No. 351 East Third Street, convicted of enticing a man to her room, giving him knock-out drops and robbing him of $1,300, asked for clemency on the ground that she was desperately in need of money to pay the expenses of a new trial for her husband, who is in the Tombs, charged with burglary. Miss Rosenberg, however, had more to tell. She said he not only winked but called her his "little Queen of Sheba" and suggested a "party" where, she said, she, "I just twisted his wrist until he was down on his knees—and here he is."

LOVERS' QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER; MAN TRIES SUICIDE

Miss Kline Killed in Hallway of Brooklyn Home by Sweetheart, Who May Die.

Miss Vera Kline, thirty-three, was shot in the right breast and instantly killed in the hallway of her home, No. 281 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn, last night by her sweetheart, Nathan Slug, thirty, of Bayonne, N. J., who then shot himself in the abdomen.

Slug was taken in a critical condition to Williamsburg Hospital charged with homicide. He probably will die. Neighbors told the police the shooting followed a brief quarrel in the hallway.

The police say Slug and Miss Kline had kept company for several years and recently had a bitter quarrel. Slug called early last evening, but Miss Kline was out. He waited in front of her home.

When Miss Kline came along at 8:45 Slug spoke to her and both entered the hallway. A few minutes later Philip Zertin, a young woman's cousin, in whose apartment she lived, heard two shots.

Running to the hallway he found Miss Kline and Slug on the floor. Slug with a revolver in his hand. Other occupants of the house had heard the shots and were running, panic-stricken, down the stairs.

The police later learned that Miss Kline had for years been saving money to bring her brother and sister over from Russia, and had repeatedly told Slug she would not marry him until her ambition was realized.
