FIRE MANIAC IMPERILS MANY FAMILIES

TRADE MARKS MUST NOT DECEIVE THE BUYER OF GOODS

Labels on Packages of Merchandise to Tell of Composition of Product.

DECISION OF U.S. COURT Government Wins Victory in Suit to Establish Fair Dealing in Business.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Manufacturers are required to use trade names and labels which will convey to the purchasing public an accurate description of the materials or ingredients composing their products.

The Supreme Court decided on this line to-day in a case brought by the Federal Trade Commission against the Winsted Hosiery Company. Justice Brandeis delivered the opinion of the Court. Justice McReynolds dissented.

Manufacturers throughout the country have been awaiting with keen interest the decision in this case, hoping a rule would be laid down definitely defining the extent of the control the Federal Government may exercise in designating labels and brands to be used on products offered for sale in interstate commerce.

The Government also considered the question of paramount importance, asking a decision which could be made a precedent in disposing of a large number of cases now before the Federal Trade Commission involving charges of misbranding.

LONDON WOMEN USE HENNA BATH FOR OLIVE TINT

Treatment Gives Delicately Colored Skin to Go With New Oriental Modes.

LONDON, April 24.—A henna bath cult is forming among London's more ultra society women who deem olive colored skin worth acquiring.

The craze is said to be of French or American origin. Bathing, strongly tinged with henna dye, are taken monthly and impart a delicate tint which looks well with the evening dresses of oriental shades and design now popular here.

IRISH LABOR QUITS FOR DAY; PROTEST AGAINST CIVIL WAR

Dublin and Southern Ireland Carry Out Demonstration Without Trouble.

LONDON, April 24 (United Press).—Dublin passed quietly through the great general strike against militarism which completely paralyzed the Irish capital and a large part of Southern Ireland to-day.

Although communications were interrupted, the Colonial Office here announced this evening that Dublin was quiet throughout the day. Trouble, which had been feared from insurgent sources, did not materialize.

Communication with Dublin was crippled to-day the workers having included telegraph and telephone services and steamship and railroad lines in their walkout. Cable companies announced they would refuse messages.

Even racing, the sport with which the Irishman consoles himself on such days was barred. Golfing was forbidden. Any form of public sport was under the same restrictions.

The Westminister Gazette's correspondent declared the insurgent leaders and Free State army commanders already have reached agreement as to a truce.

The correspondent says he understands that hostilities between the rival forces are to cease, although the political issue between the two parties is not affected.

The decision, it is added, followed negotiations between the leaders, who have been deeply influenced by the fratricidal character of the struggle.

BELFAST, April 24.—Two persons were killed and ten wounded in rioting and fighting in the Ulster capital over the week end.

DUBLIN, April 24.—News has just arrived in Dublin that the railway line has been torn up at Newcastle West, where Mr. Collins and his party are said to be held up.

MULLINGAR, April 24.—Father Kelly and Mayor John McKeown last night met representatives of the Free Staters and Republicans at Mullingar. Both sides agreed that there should be no trouble until after the peace conference in Dublin next Wednesday.

LIVES IMPERILLED AT MOUNT KISCO BY FIRE MANIAC

Blazes Start in Two Houses and Tea Room About the Same Time.

LUMBER YARD BURNS. Hay Soaked in Gasoline Used by Firebug—Nearby Firemen Called.

From 7 o'clock last night until late this morning Mount Kisco was kept astir by four fires, at least three of which were established to have been set by an incendiary.

The first fire was in the Halstead lumber yards on a tract two blocks long, between the New York Central Railroad tracks and Kisco Avenue. J. Cregier, Chief of Police, estimated the loss to the lumber company as more than $100,000. The fire is still smoldering.

Firemen were called during the night from White Plains, Chappaqua, Golden's Bridge, Pleasantville, Ossining, and Briarcliff. Some of the outside companies were still throwing streams into the lumber yard when a message came to fire headquarters from Gustav Hoffman on Lexington Avenue in the Kirbyville section of the town that Link's tea room was burning at Lexington Avenue and Main Street.

At almost the same instant somebody at Link's called the firemen to tell them that Gustav Hoffman's house was afire.

Link, with his family of four, narrowly escaped being burned alive. The house was almost completely consumed. Hoffman, who had been sitting up with a sick baby, got all of his family out. His house was damaged to the extent of about $1,000.

Meanwhile a fire started under the porch of the home of Joseph Dailey on East Main Street a few steps away. Mrs. Margaret Barkeley, sister-in-law of Mr. Dailey, was waked by sparks falling on her bed. Mr. Dailey went out in his pajamas and got the best of the fire with his garden hose.

A bale of hay, soaked in gasoline, had been used to start the fire at the Dailey house. The hay was taken from the Dailey barn. Back of the Hoffman house the police found a cloth glove which smelled of gasoline. Rubbish and straw had been piled in the spot where the fire started.

Near the Link house a five gallon can nearly emptied of gasoline and a burned horse blanket were discovered. Lieut. George Roberts of the State Police has taken a squad from the White Plains headquarters of the constabulary to help Chief Gregier hunt for the firebug.

2,100 Cases of Real Scotch Gone From Sub Chaser FIDUS; Who Got It All? Why, Pirates!

Roughnecks Came Aboard, They Did, and Trussed Up the Skipper, They Did, and Then Left—and Booze Left, Too.

Up through the Narrows past Quarantine to-day steamed the FIDUS, a low, rakish craft, which was United States Submarine Chaser No. 101 before the navy sold her at auction.

There was something about the way the FIDUS came gliding under the guns of Fort Hamilton and Fort Wadsworth that caused the Quarantine observer to sniff suspiciously and get Police Headquarters and the Custom House on the telephone.

"Privately owned submarine chaser coming in," he reported. "Acts like a bootlegger from the Islands. Better get busy."

Down the bay snorted the John F. Hyman with a detachment of harbor policemen peering over her rail and training her quickfiring and her machine guns. Close behind the Hyman was the Custom House craft Surveyor, in charge of Customs Inspector Hokeness. They surrounded the FIDUS and boarded her. They got no liquor aboard but instead the wildest pirate tale since last week when Night Watchman Breckinridge of the Royal Insurance Building told he who had been seized by nine armed robbers. But Breckinridge changed his tale to admit that he had himself planned the robbery and admitted the thieves.

The captain and crew of the FIDUS stick to their tale of the perditional attack on them by pirates and the theft of the 2,100 cases of grade and Scotch booze which they had aboard and with which it would have been a crime for them to be caught inside the three-mile limit.

"We sailed from Bermuda," ran the tale, "with over 2,100 cases of Haig & Haig below. All went well until yesterday afternoon, when we were off below miles off Montauk. We were all below except Capt. John J. Kelly, on the bridge. We heard the bell of another vessel and then the engine stopped."

"We piled out to go up on deck and were met by a villainous band of roughnecks who shoved guns in our faces and told us to go below and stay quiet. We did."

"We heard them working on deck and in the cargo space aft for a while. Then the bell sounded again and everything was quiet and we were all on the deck. We saw a man in a uniform of the navy or so close to it we didn't know the difference! And 'THE WHISKEY WAS ALL GONE.'"

Capt. Kelly had but little to say. He would not deny the story told by the man. On the report that the chaser had been transferred to British registry at Bermuda, the British Consulate intervened in the investigation.

District Prohibition Enforcement Chief John D. Appleby, Custom House Attorney Andrews, and Assistant United States Attorney Falk consulted long and earnestly as to what charge could be made against Capt. Kelly, his vessel, or his crew. Up to a late hour this afternoon they had not thought up anything satisfactory though from charts showing landing places all along the nearby coast and the absence of anything like a manifest of the cargo they are morally certain that the FIDUS has been on a bootlegging errand.

Among the members of the crew detained for questioning were Chief Engineer Lockwood, who acted as spokesman for the crew and exhibited the very rope which he had taken from Kelly at the mast; Ray Palmer, who, according to Mr. Falk, had a carded in 1888 she "let go" a charge at the walls of Morro Castle. There was a terrible roar. But when Santiago fell it was found that no damage had been done to the old fort.

FRANCE WILL LEAVE GENOA IF HER WISHES ARE DENIED; WARNING GIVEN BY PREMIER

Poincare Also Says Republic Will Act Alone to Enforce Payment of Reparations if Germany Defaults May 31.

Lloyd George Believes, However, That Crises Are Paced—Expects to Complete His Work This Week.

BAR LE DUC, April 24 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincare announced in a speech here to-day that if the French delegation at Genoa could not go ahead with its work under the agreed conditions France would regretfully have to cease participation in the conference.

The Premier also declared France would, if necessary, undertake alone to see that the Treaty of Versailles is executed if the Germans default in their reparations payments.

These statements were made in an important speech before the General Council of the Department of the Meuse.

Referring to the Russo-German treaty signed last week at Rapallo, Premier Poincare said: "That accord brings out into the full light the sympathies which had developed in the darkness between the Bolsheviks and the Germans. How many persons wrested from their confidence of yesterday will not now admit that the Cabinet was right in desiring to insist for the moment on eighteen months' military service?"

M. Poincare referred to the discoveries of stocks of arms and munitions in Silesia the formation of police organizations in Germany composed of former non-commissioned officers, which he said were so easily transformed into a framework of military force. He instanced these things, as well as the Pan-German agitation, to justify the precautions of France.

"Things are going in Germany," he said, "as if the Pan-Germans were watching for an opportunity to foment trouble sooner or later on their eastern frontier with a view to getting back by force the Polish regions taken from Germany by the Treaty of Versailles."

"What is going on at Genoa," continued the Premier, "singularly confirms all we know of the state of mind of too great a portion of the empire."

"How long back had Germany prepared the treaty with the Soviet Government, and are we sure the treaty has been entirely published? Is it or is it not accompanied by secret clauses? Is it simply a shield for political and military conventions?"

At any rate, added M. Poincare, the coming together of Germany and the Soviets was a great menace to Poland and an indirect menace to France.

French opinion, said the Premier, would have been prepared for the dissolution of the conference at Genoa upon the disclosure of the terms of this Russo-German treaty.

"But," he added, "we did not separate on this occasion from our Allies and from our friends of the Little Entente. We publicly affirmed our solidarity, but this new proof of our conciliatory intentions does not alter the policy of the Cabinet."

"If the French delegation cannot go on with the work at Genoa under the conditions agreed upon, then we shall have with great regret to discontinue our collaboration in the con-

FLYING PARSON MARRIES COUPLE WAY UP IN THE AIR

Ceremony Wireless From Plane With All Radio Fandom As "Witnesses."

Here's another "wedding in the air." The bride is Miss Sarah Cocke-faire, a nurse in a Brooklyn hospital; the bridegroom is Albert P. Schlarke, athletic director of the Veterans' Mountain Camp.

The knot was tied this afternoon on a five-passenger Fokker craft flying over Curtis Field at 2 o'clock. The clergyman engaged for the occasion was the "Flying Parson," Lieut. Edwin W. Maynard, winner of the transcontinental air race. A radio operator was one of the witnesses and the flower girl Miss Marie Louise Bobb of New Orleans, winner of prizes at sixteen Southern baby shows.

Radio fans who were interested in the wedding got on the wire at 2 o'clock and heard the words that tied the knot.

After the ceremony Maynard piloted the honeymoons to Schenectady and Syracuse, where, it is said, the Mayors will be on hand to greet them. From Syracuse the plane will proceed to the Veterans' Mountain Camp on Tupper Lake, where Schlarke and his bride will spend two weeks.
