

THE EVENING WORLD'S RADIO PHONE SERVICE COLUMN.

By Capt. Robert Scofield Wood.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Charles Schmidt—"I have a crystal detector set consisting of a tapped coil, a crystal detector, a 43-plate variable condenser, a phone condenser and a pair of 2,200 ohm phones. The aerial consists of two strands of phosphor bronze wire, each measuring forty-eight feet and a lead-in of twenty-five feet. I used to get good results but now "all sets are off." Sometimes I get fairly loud reception, but so "chuck" full of noises that it is useless. What is my trouble and how can it be remedied?"
Answer—"From the meagre information contained in your letter it is impossible to tell just what kind of a noise you are hearing. If it is a hum, a loose connection or open circuit in your hook-up is responsible. It may also be that your crystal has become insensitive and needs attention or replacing. Write again and be more explicit. Your aerial is too short by about fifty feet. A single wire strung in a straight line about 100 feet long will give the best results."
