

The Gibson farm, but over the telephone Mrs. Gibson hurled defiance at those who have questioned her story. She said:

"I have not disclosed all I know. Murder will out. Wait and see. I have been threatened with death already. Efforts have been made to buy my silence. But I am going to stick to the truth at all costs. My life will stand investigation, and I don't care how many people attempt to discredit me.

"The neighbors who say I am a faker and a liar are comparable only to Judas. But they can't nail me to the cross. What I have told the authorities is true. And my son Willie, will bear me out as to my leaving the farm the second time that night to return to the Phillips farm. I must admit I did not at first tell the authorities about the second visit, but that was because they did not press me for details, and I guess it slipped my mind.

"I could have a deep sympathy for Mrs. Hall had she frankly admitted her knowledge of the murders and said she was there that night to defend a wife's honor. But the ban of Providence and destiny has grieved me and I will tell the whole truth."

It is reported a witness has been found to clear up one thing that has never been explained—how Mr. Hall reached the trying place. The street car men had the second visit, but Mrs. Mills going toward the place on a car, but no one could be found who saw the motor. Now the investigators have discovered evidence that Mr. Hall rode to the end of the line on the car following that Mrs. Mills took.

SAW SLAIN COUPLE, WITNESSES NOW ASSERT.

Another important discovery is made through William O'Rourke, a contractor, of No. 16 Central Avenue, who was driving with his wife to New Brunswick about 9 o'clock on the night of the killing. He says they saw Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills somewhere between 8.30 and 9 o'clock walking beyond the far end of Buchanan Park, toward De Russy lane.

O'Rourke said the couple seemed much absorbed in each other, and while he did not admit it to reporters, it is understood he told the investigators Mrs. Mills carried a paper package and was weeping. He said there no doubt it was Hall and Mrs. Mills, as he knew the motor and his wife knew Mrs. Mills.

"Something about the woman's face drew the attention of my wife," he said. "What it is I do not wish to say. If she authorized me to call, let them." It is supposed he referred to the report that Mrs. Mills was weeping.

Detective Mason, chief investigator of Mr. Mott, will conduct a search to-day of the Phillips farm for a pistol or further evidence. He said he is finding yesterday of two .22 calibre cartridges, one with a nose that appeared to have been filed or worn off. They were picked up by sightseers about 100 feet from where the bodies were found. The place has already been searched and thousands of persons have overrun it, so not much is expected to come of the new "bullet clue."

WATCH CLUE LEADS INVESTIGATORS NOWHERE.

For a time yesterday the investigators thought they might recover the watch on the night of the murder, which has never been found. They heard of a watch answering the description that had changed hands several times in New Brunswick.

Charlie Anderson, a Negro porter in the Phillips house, said he had seen the watch had been offered to him for $110 by Mrs. Aleck Williams, wife of a porter in a furniture store. At the time he saw the watch, he said, Mrs. Williams also had a flashlight and a clip of cartridges for a .32 automatic pistol.

Mrs. Williams and her husband remembered the watch, but they insisted that it was not worth even $10, because Aleck tried to get that much on it one time when he was broke. Aleck got the watch, he said, from a white man who just happened to come up to his door and was offered $15. He had never seen the man before.

"I wasn't in the habit of pawning watches," said Aleck, in a true Southern drawl. "But I saw the watch was pretty good and I let him come on it. It was a crap game a little while later, but my wife got it back for me and last Wednesday the man came and bought it back for $5. I didn't charge him interest."

The Williamses had an electric flashlight. They showed it but said they knew nothing about any .32 automatic or a clip for it. They said vigorously that they owned any firearms.

Besides her son "Willie," Mrs. Gibson may be partly corroborated by Norman R. Tingle, whose home is the nearest house to the Phillips farm. His "shooting star" story was reviewed to-day in support of Mrs. Gibson's statement about the screams and shots. It will be recalled that this was his story:

"My wife and I went out on the porch at nine o'clock. Fifteen or twenty minutes later we saw a shooting star, and my wife said that meant death. I laughed at her superstition. A few minutes later she broke off in the middle of a sentence and said she heard a woman's scream. Then we heard what we thought was an automobile backfire. Then came four or five more reports, then complete silence. Shortly afterward we went to bed."

This is said to be the only corroboration the authorities have of Mrs. Gibson's story except the statement of her son that she left home at the time she said she did.

QUITS PULPIT TO CAMPAIGN FOR MAYORALTY.

FEABODY, Mass., Oct. 29.—The Rev. Robert A. Bakeman quit the pulpit of the Congregational Church here and started out after votes for himself for Mayor. "In these latter days there is an ever-increasing challenge to those forces that profess the leadership of Jesus to go out into the community with the good news of justice, good will and unselfish service," the minister said.

SMITH OPENS FIGHT HERE WITH ATTACK ON MILLER CLAIMS

Will Centre City Campaign on Traction and Governor as People's Friend.

Ex-Gov. Smith opened his city campaign this afternoon by issuing a statement which indicates that during his controversy on the stump with Gov. Miller he will devote considerable attention to traction affairs and also to the claim he has made that the Governor has been kinder to the corporation than to the people.

"Gov. Miller," said Mr. Smith, "will attempt this week to lead the people of the City of New York to believe he is acting in their behalf. He tried to do the same thing in his home town, Syracuse, last week, and failed."

"In fact, Gov. Miller has made no effect upon Syracuse. He is coming here as a last hope, but I predict he will not be any more successful in the city than he was in home."

"If Gov. Miller had enforced the laws of the State which protect the rights of men and women who toil as vigorously as he has enforced the laws of the State that protect the large corporations he would not feel so keenly the resentment of the working people. Nobody knows better than Gov. Miller how the working people feel over the destruction, in his administration, of protective labor laws passed in previous Democratic administrations."

While the ex-Governor had announced he would make only one speech a night in the city, it is likely the programme will be abandoned, so numerous are the calls for him to attend meetings.

After to-morrow night's rally at Tammany Hall Mr. Smith will go to Harlem to address a mass meeting of Negro voters. Details of this meeting will be announced later.

MAJOR JOHN P. SHORT, CIVIL WAR VETERAN, DIES AT 88 OF OLD AGE

Brooklyn Man Was City Works Supervisor There Until He Retired. Major John P. Short, eighty-eight, a veteran of the Civil War, died today of old age at his home, No. 153 Garfield Place, Brooklyn. His funeral will be held to-morrow.

He was a native of Devonshire, England, and ran away from home and came to this country when he was sixteen years old. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted with the Northern Army. At the Battle of Fair Oaks he was in command of skirmishers and made several captures among the sharpshooters of the enemy. On one occasion he refused to let his men fire at a man on a gray horse leading a body of Confederates, saying it would be a "teen murder." He learned afterward that the man was Gen. Joseph Johnson.

Major Short was wounded at Bristol station, Va., and lay for four days on a stretcher. He recovered and in several years ago he was a Superintendent in the Department of City Works, Brooklyn.

DECLARES DAUGHTER DID NOT KILL RECTOR

Seeks Clue in Ownership of Gun Used to Slay Both. HAVRE, Mont., Oct. 29.—While Mrs. Christie to-day was on a train bound for Waterloo, N. Y., accompanying the body of her slain husband, the Rev. Leonard J. Christie, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church and known as the "Bishop of All Outdoors," Mrs. Joseph Pyle, mother of Mrs. Margaret Carleton, whose body was found lying across that of Christie, is attempting to prove that her daughter did not commit murder and suicide.

A coroner's verdict yesterday declared that Mrs. Carleton killed Mr. Christie and then shot herself early Friday morning. In spite of the verdict Mrs. Pyle is seeking evidence that her daughter did not commit the crime.

"I do not believe Margaret did it," said Mrs. Pyle shortly after her arrival from her home in Butte. "I shall not be satisfied until I find who owned the gun." Her reference was to a .28-calibre revolver in the hand of Mrs. Carleton when the bodies were discovered. A small .22 calibre revolver she customarily carried was found in Mrs. Carleton's handbag.

Mrs. Pyle is piecing together bits of a torn letter found in the waste basket in her daughter's room and which she declares is in Mr. Carleton's handwriting. That Mrs. Carleton had an infatuation for the minister is admitted by Mrs. Pyle.

$500 BAIL FOR HUSBAND WHO DISARMED COP

Called by Frightened Wife and Rescued by Fellow Policeman. William Meyer, thirty-two, No. 26 Meserole Street, Williamsburg, was held $500 bail by Magistrate Powell in Williamsburg, Court to-day on complaint of Policeman Waters of the Stage Street Station, who charged that he was severely beaten by Meyer in the latter's home when summoned by Mrs. Meyer. Waters was dismissed by Mrs. Meyer and was being pummeled into unconsciousness, he said, when Policeman Koch, also of the Stage Street Station, arrived and clubbed Meyer into submission.

Mrs. Meyer approached Waters at Union Avenue and Meserole Street and told him she was afraid to go home because of her husband's violence. The policeman accompanied her and was out as soon as he entered the home. Mrs. Meyer's screams attracted Koch.

Case of a Girl and a Minister In England a Startling Parallel To Our Own Mills-Hall Affair

MISS GLADYS PRYCE

But English Rector Is Alive and Girl Has Only Disappeared.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The mystery of the disappearance of Miss Gladys Pryce, Jan. 31 last, from her home in the Broadway, Woodford Green, Essex, has given Great Britain a thrill of melodrama which is very like that caused here by the Mills-Hall case at New Brunswick, in so far as the missing woman was the protégée of the Vicar of St. Barnabas, Snake's Lane, Woodford, who says he was engaged in literary work with her and furthermore she had taken him into her confidence more than she had her own parents, who charged that he had been communicating with her by letter and telegram. Miss Pryce was twenty-five years old, of charming manners, beautiful and excellent education.

The minister's only explanation, the Pryce statement continued, was that at Bournemouth he had notified Miss Pryce seemed troubled and flushed and had gone out on his bicycle hoping to meet her on the way to her music lesson. Also, that he had arranged the code word so that his wife might not be disturbed as she was in a decidedly nervous condition.

The Pryce said their detective had learned Miss Pryce and the minister had been seen together frequently in London and on trains from their suburb to the city.

Mr. Pryce said his family spent a fortnight at Bournemouth in August, 1920, and left Gladys behind them. The Rev. Mr. Wheeler at once upon their return to the city remained there during the rest of their stay. At Bournemouth, the Pryce charged, the minister gave four explanations of his presence there, saying he wished to rest and wanted no one at Woodford to know where he was; that he was visiting an uncle there; that he was looking for work for his daughter; and that he was engaged in collaboration on a novel with Miss Pryce.

Last summer the Pryces went to Hunstanton. Again, they said, Mr. Wheeler appeared after they had gone leaving their daughter. The minister, who had a temporary vacation charge in the vicinity, had admitted seeing her there, Mr. Pryce charged.

The statement concludes that the Rev. Mr. Wheeler told the Pryces that on his return to his duties at St. Barnabas, Woodford, he observed Miss Pryce seemed out of sorts and she told him that she was lonely after he left Hunstanton and went walking on the moors and a man had "invoiced her." This was in January.

Finally, the story explained, January 22, two days before her disappearance, Miss Pryce told him that as a result of the incident on Hunstanton Heath, she was to become a mother.

The Pryces left the meeting after concluding this statement and Mr. Wheeler gave his explanation of the charges. Some of the statements were true, the vicar said, and some were a tissue of lies. None of them, except his letter, he set forth, was made in writing by him.

Mr. Wheeler asserted that Mrs. Pryce had stated Mrs. Wheeler and told her several letters incriminating the girl and the vicar had been found, but was unable to produce them at Mrs. Wheeler's request.

The Rev. Mr. Wheeler explained that two years ago he had asked Miss Pryce, who was a very beautiful and highly educated girl, to collaborate with him on writing a novel about the relation of the church to spiritualism.

Apparently nothing came of that book, and he proposed writing another about Jews and why the church should drive them. A day or two before the vicar said, he got this letter:

"My Dear Child: I did not see you as I hoped to-night and I expect you did not go to music school. Would you mind writing me a few lines at dinner hour to-morrow, and I shall know all is well. Forgive me for being somewhat stupidly inquisitive as to your welfare. It will be quite right to wire as I am expected to hear in ten or twelve days. In great haste. No need to sign telegram."

The minister's only explanation, the Pryce statement continued, was that at Bournemouth he had notified Miss Pryce seemed troubled and flushed and had gone out on his bicycle hoping to meet her on the way to her music lesson. Also, that he had arranged the code word so that his wife might not be disturbed as she was in a decidedly nervous condition.

The Pryce said their detective had learned Miss Pryce and the minister had been seen together frequently in London and on trains from their suburb to the city.

KILLS ONE OF MOB ATTEMPTING TO STAGE KIDNAPPING

HENRYETTA, Okla., Oct. 29.—Reece Adkins of Dewar, Okla., was shot to death and Thomas Bogus, Speller City constable, was wounded, probably fatally at Speller City, near here, last night when a band of masked men, of which Adkins was a member, called Bogus from a motion picture theatre and attempted to kidnap him in a motor car. Another man, unidentified, is known to have been shot in the leg.

Bogus drew a pistol and began firing when the party attempted to entice him into the motor car, police said. They reported he admitted killing Adkins. Bogus is near death at a local hospital. Other members of the masked party have been wounded, according to Constable George Smith, who mounted his pistol at the machine in which they drove away.

Local police say the members of the band wore blue jumpers and masks of a dark blue material. They are said to be members of a newly organized alleged secret society known as the True Blue. A cotton rope was found at the place where the car stood in front of the theatre. They carried Adkins's body with them as they drove away, going to his home at Dewar.

Although the theatre near which the shooting occurred was crowded at the time, there were few persons in the street. Bogus was formerly a deputy sheriff.

$4,000 IN HAT BOX MISSED BY THIEVES, GOT $2,000

Servants in Home of Grover Walsh, Freeport, Questioned. Freeport detectives were investigating to-day the robbery of $2,000 in jewelry and cash from the home of Grover Walsh on Long Beach Avenue last night. Four thousand dollars in cash hidden in a hat box in a bedroom closet was overlooked. No evidences of forced entry were found by the police, and several servants in the Walsh home were questioned to-day.

Gold pieces totaling $500, contained in a bureau drawer and covered with a sweater, were taken by the robbers. A platinum wrist watch and a platinum lavallier set with diamonds also were taken. The Walshes returned from a night of Philadelphia before midnight and discovered the robbery.

"I have prepared a straightforward, businesslike statement on Roumanian financial conditions, but I have no intention of pleading inability to pay, but we need time."

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The offices of the newspaper Secolo, at Milan, have been raided and ransacked by a force of 150 Nationalists, says a dispatch of the Italian Agency. U. S. MAY COMPROMISE BIG WAR FRAUD CASES

Daugherty Told That 425 Cases Are Being Investigated. WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Attorney General Daugherty has received a report from the War Frauds Bureau discussing investigations into approximately 425 contracts and asserting that civil or criminal suits, or both, will be necessary in "innumerable instances" if the Government is to recover even a part of the "fabulous sums" paid out through fraudulent or improperly executed war contracts.

The substance of the report has been made public by the Department of Justice.

"Legal civil action will be taken in every case in which it has been discovered that fraud, collusion or dishonesty was practiced," said Attorney General Daugherty. "While great numbers of cases indicate on their face the worst kind of fraud and thievery, the Government cannot, of course, go into court until it has established absolutely, on the face of records in its possession, that its case will stand the acid test."

MUSSOLINI, ASKED BY KING, WILL FORM NEW GOVERNMENT

The crowds to remain calm, and patriotic airs were sung.

The newspaper, Alpino Socialista, to-day contains the following: "We learn that all the members of the Communist Party were informed last evening that that party is ceasing its operation to-day, and all its members are released from party discipline and duties."

Soldiers in the King's uniform early to-day were lining the road from Civita Vecchia to Rome, along its way through the Apennines and the hills and sentries with fixed bayonets protected the entrance to Allumiere, Tolla, Manziana and Bracciano, twenty miles northwest of Rome. Railway communication was still interrupted in the early hours between Civita Vecchia and Rome.

Within a radius of fifty miles from Rome 60,000 Fascisti were encamped overnight, many of them sending lorries into the capital to bring back the bread necessary for their sustenance. The King's troops unquestioningly permitted the Fascisti to pass in and out of the city.

Both regulars and Fascisti bore themselves with marked graciousness toward foreigners, doing their utmost to alleviate the inconvenience caused by the prevalence of something near martial law. As an automobile, one of the occupants of the car, and the correspondent, approached the town of Bracciano last evening a bright young corporal jumped aboard the car to escort it safely across the town.

The citizens, under the impression the occupants were under arrest, jered them until the corporal explained the passengers were Americans. Then the crowd cheered, crying "Viva America."

One incident, typical of the attitude of large sections of the people, occurred along the route to Rome when a group of Fascisti, shouting and with flags momentarily and cheered, as a party of black-shirted Fascisti marched along the road, shouting, "Viva Fascisti."

The revolt against "the politicians" long ago begun by the Fascisti, many of them vigorous young ex-soldiers of the World War, was crowned with success yesterday when King Victor Emmanuel, greatly moved, embraced Deputy Di Vecchi, one of the supreme military authorities of the Fascisti, told him that he would give Italy a Government most suited to the new spirit pervading the country, and then intrusted Mussolini with the task of forming a Ministry.

In forming a new cabinet Mussolini said he would retain to himself the portfolios of Interior and Foreign Affairs, and appoint Gen. Diaz Minister of War; Admiral Thaon di Revel, Minister of the Royal Navy; and the governing body the Catholic Deputy Cavazzoni and the Liberal Senator Lusignea, now Prefect of Milan, conferring the other portfolios upon Fascisti.

The culminating gesture by Mussolini in asserting his determination to have the Fascisti in control, the shouting, were the Fascisti in control, the shouting, Premier Salandra was asked to form a Cabinet. Upon hearing of this the Fascisti leader told former Premier Salandra that he would not enter a Cabinet with Salandra or any other politician. Salandra then declined to form a Cabinet.

LONDON, Oct. 29. (Associated Press).—British official dispatches from Rome indicate that the Fascist movement in Italy is proceeding peacefully. So far the Fascisti, it is stated, have proved themselves well disciplined.

Only comparatively minor incidents, apparently, have broken the general pacific progress of the movement. A belated Rome dispatch told of rioting in a workingman's quarter last night when the Communists and Fascisti clashed, but this incident was promptly suppressed, with but few casualties. In Northern Italy some disorders were reported Sunday, but these seemed to be isolated happenings, and while some fatalities resulted the disorders apparently were neither widespread nor prolonged.

The only announcement the Fascisti allowed themselves to-day was to have some training copies of the new newspaper issued this morning.

A huge bonfire, which must have consumed several tons of paper, burned all day in the public square

MRS. ROSIER TELLS WHAT HAPPENED ON DAY OF MURDER

Planned Suicide Before Husband and Stenographer—Doesn't Recall Killing.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Catherine Rosier, charged with the killing of her husband, Oscar, and Mildred G. Reckitt, his stenographer, testified to-day in her trial for the slaying of the girl that she did not remember the shooting. She said she saw her husband and Miss Reckitt in his office, that she screamed and knew no more until she found herself in the hands of the police.

In a voice hardly audible and frequently interrupted by weeping Mrs. Rosier told her story of events in the family and the conduct of her husband until the shooting. She testified that while she was in a hospital at the birth of her baby Arthur Rosier, brother of Oscar, that her Oscar was paying attention to his stenographer Miss Reckitt. She also testified that Arthur had attempted to trap her into a compromising situation.

Miss Rosier testified that her husband admitted to her that he was going out with Miss Reckitt and added that he loved the stenographer and her. "He said he wanted me to get a divorce and that there was nothing I could do to make him give her up," Mrs. Rosier said.

"I screamed, and that is the last I remember."

Mrs. Rosier completely broke down, her head resting on the rail of the witness stand. When she recovered her attorney asked her whether she had any intention of killing any one.

"No, no; it was to make the final appeal," she replied, "and if he refused, to kill myself right before them both."

Mrs. Rosier was turned over to Maurice J. Speiser, District Attorney, for cross examination.

BERWIND MINE COLONY SEEN BY COMMITTEE

Children Are Barefooted and Need Clothes, It Is Said. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 29.—Members of Mayor Hyland's committee, sent here to investigate working and living conditions of the miners who supply coal for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, made a fifty-mile tour of the fields yesterday and talked with miners and their families.

From Johnstown the party motored to Berwind Mine Nos. 23 and 24 and the Berwind-White Company, where a tent colony of eighteen families was visited. Practically all the children were barefooted and the majority were afflicted with coughs and colds. Their clothing was far from comfortable.

Hirshfeld notified officials of the Berwind-White Company of the hearing and was informed that the company would not be represented.

TEN DEAD, THIRTY HURT IN FRENCH TRAIN CRASH

Express Plunges Into Freight. PARIS, Oct. 29.—In a violent snowstorm which has delayed traffic more than an hour the Paris-Brest express yesterday dashed into a freight train, killing ten passengers and injuring more than thirty. The accident occurred near Guinecamp in Brittany, just before daybreak, with most of the passengers asleep.

Outside the newspaper offices, surrounded by a ring of enthusiastic on-lookers, the demonstration took place under the laughing eyes of the royal guards stationed there to protect the members of the newspaper staff.

The Home Commander of the Fascisti, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome to-day, has issued a urgent order to the Fascist squadrons in the city not to carry out any reprisals. The manifesto says: "All conflicts are not only useless but harmful to the Fascist cause."

The Fascisti and Nationalists spent the entire day parading the streets of Rome, shouting and shouting the Fascist slogans ending at the Quirinal, where the King was proclaimed for his "enlightened decision" to call Mussolini to power.

No incident or gravity was reported either in this city or in the provinces.

SLAIN, STUFFED INTO A BAG AND LEFT NEAR CHURCH

Tag in Pocket Expected To Be Clue in West Side Mystery.

Identification is expected to-day of the body of a man shot to death, carried to West 23d Street between Eighth and Ninth Avenues in an automobile, and dumped in front of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in a burlap bag that covered all the body except the man's feet. Policeman Sommas, thinking he saw the bag move, investigated and found the body was still warm.

An autopsy showed two steel-jacketed and two lead bullets in the body, and the man's shoulder was broken. The latter may have resulted either from a fight, or from being thrown out of the automobile. One reason the police are certain the murder was committed in another part of the city is that automobile trucks swung in toward the curb where the body was found, then out again toward the centre of the street.

A tag found in a pocket, issued to laborers of the New York Construction Company, may lead to an identification. The police learned that the company has such tags for payroll identification and that its records showed this one was issued last May to a man describing himself as Pezatti Gedice and giving a Mott Street address. The janitor of the Mott Street house could not identify the body, but some workman may be found to-day who can. There is no record of his finger prints at Police Headquarters.

The autopsy showed the man had drunk a large quantity of liquor. The dead man was about twenty-five, five feet six inches tall and weighed about 130 pounds. Tattooed on his right arm were the words "Amora di Madre" and on the left arm the initials "E." The first is an Italian phrase meaning "Love of Mother."

The body was clad in a blue coat bearing the label "Majestic Clothing Company," black trousers, a blue shirt, pink socks and brown laced shoes. Most of the pockets were found turned inside out and empty.

Handwritten spots were on the bag and on the man's clothes. It is believed he was shot while standing at the head of a flight of steps and fell into an arcaway or cellar where his stayer had to use candles to find the body.
