

U. S. WOULD CARRY RAIL INJUNCTION TO SUPREME COURT

Jacob M. Dickinson Asks Court to Fix Precedent for the Future.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Pointing out alleged evasions and discrepancies in the Federated Shop Crafts' answer to the Daugherty strike injunction, Special Assistant Attorney General Jacob M. Dickinson yesterday declared to Federal Judge Wilkeson the greatest appeal to labor and to orderly government demanded the issues of the injunction case be decided by the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Dickinson opposed the argument of Donald R. Richberg, counsel for dismissal of the temporary injunction on the ground that the strike has ended.

Blackburn Esterline, Assistant United States Solicitor General, preceded Mr. Dickinson, closing his argument against dismissal.

Mr. Dickinson declared the issue is concerned by the loss of an outraged people, who will as never before be made to the general welfare. They have been at times slow to see, at times indifferent, at times sympathetic with labor on account of the grievous wrongs inflicted upon it, and have yielded to the disposition to forget and condone when a crisis has passed.

"Now they know they must submit the life currents of the Nation to unbridled control by a small minority or exert their power to end such domination.

"We have reached a point where it is a public necessity to know what the law is. Defendants ought to want to know. We cannot go on with a war of one class or another against the people. . . . If the law be not declared, and in its light a peaceable and just solution provided by Congress, the Nation is headed for an illiad of woes."

The Stage

By BIDE DUDLEY

THE Keith special train, bearing 300 friends of E. F. Albee to Cleveland for the opening of the new Keith Palace Theatre, returned yesterday with the party in high spirits. On it was a "society car" in which were numerous well known persons who have middle names. There was also a "news-paper car" in which were twenty writers and several cases of good ginger ale. Mark A. Luescher was in charge of this car and he saw that his proteges had a fine time. The pilgrimage of the Keith special was a memorable event to all who were fortunate enough to be in the party.

A CHORUS GIRL'S RISE.
Joe Flynn informs us that Helen Herendeen, who has been numbered among the chorus girls at the Winter Garden, is to become a press agent Monday, in the publicity department of the Mosses Shubert. It seems Miss Herendeen recently wrote an article called "Are You a Dancer?" for a magazine and she is desirous of attaining literary prominence. She has adopted the right course. Why, even Mr. Flynn himself began as a performer. He was a slight of hand man. But he had a side line of jokes.

A PLAY FOR MISS BRICE.
From the Ziegfeld offices comes the news that Ring Lardner, in collaboration with Gene Buck, is writing a play for Fanny Brice.

BANS USE OF "ARTIST."
R. H. Burnside, General Director of the Hippodrome, has issued an order prohibiting the use of the word "artist" by any person connected with the big playhouse in correspondence or press matter relating to the Hippodrome or those in the "Better Times" company. He gives as his reason his belief that the term is losing its best meaning and true intent through a tendency to apply it loosely to all sorts of entertainers, including dancers, singers, acrobats, contortionists and animal trainers. Mr. Burnside says that while there are artists at the Hippodrome there are many performers who are not artists.

POLLOCK TO TALK.
Channing Pollock, author of "The Fool," will speak on that play tomorrow afternoon before the Drama Comedy organization, in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor. Some from the play will be given, also.

HICKMAN AS A GOLFER.
They're telling a story about Howard Hickman, who writes plays for Bessie Barriscale. He went out to learn to play golf recently and, on his return, was asked by Miss Barriscale how he got along. "I did pretty well," he replied. "Made it in sixty-six."

One thing in common—brains

At a club in New York, we saw the publisher of some of the greatest American magazines, which number readers by the millions, eat a lunch of crackers-and-milk.

In the dining car of the train that runs between Philadelphia and New York, a little gray-haired man ate his crackers-and-milk apparently with great relish. He is a great electrical engineer.

Another man, with a strong, determined face that has been pictured in the newspapers often, gets his lunch in a downtown restaurant near his office. He eats crackers-and-milk. He is a great financier.

One thing these men have in common—brains. They must make every minute of every working day count, because on the functioning of their brains depends the work of the hands of thousands.

They cannot afford to eat heavy lunches that would stupefy their brains—that would rob them of the mental energy they must have for their work.

Yet they must have food that will really feed their bodies, that will give them enough physical energy to run their minds at high speed.

So they eat crackers-and-milk, and they have one thing in common—brains.

If you work with your mind, a crackers-and-milk lunch would help you.
