

WOMEN RIVALS FOR CHILDREN'S BENCH VACANCY

Magistrate Jean Norris and Mrs. A. Kross Each Seek Appointment.

Two women are close rivals for the position of Justice of the Children's Court, to be vacant on Jan. 1, when Justice Cornelius F. Collins takes the place in General Sessions to which he was elected in November.

Mrs. Anna Moskowitz Kross, Assistant Corporation Counsel, and Magistrate Jean Norris, now sitting in the Women's Court, are the two women around whom the conjectures of political observers are centering. Both have friends in the Democratic organization and both are known to be ambitious for the position.

Something more than the personal ambition of the two women are at stake, for it is felt that the strength of the woman movement in general is to be tested. The eyes of women's organizations, especially of women lawyers' organizations, are upon the Mayor's action. The time has now come, women politicians declare, for a woman lawyer to be seated in a higher court than the City Magistrate's. The Children's Court, they say, is a post for which women are especially adapted and to which it is most appropriate that a woman be appointed.

John F. Sinnott, Secretary to Mayor Hyman, said yesterday that the Mayor's mind was still open in regard to the appointment.

The Children's Court is a branch of Special Sessions and pays a salary of $10,000 a year. The city court in which Magistrate Norris is now sitting pays $5,000. She was appointed for ten years in October, 1914. Franklin C. Hoyt is presiding justice of the Children's Court, with Edward F. Boyle and Samuel D. Levy as his associates.
