CONGRESS will be assembled at Washington on Monday week. As there is no Speaker to elect, President Tyler's Message will doubtless be delivered on the following day...

Whether the Executive plan for conducting the Fiscal operations of the Government and restoring a Sound and Uniform Currency to the People will be unfolded in the Message, embodied in the Treasury Report, or reserved to meet a formal call of Congress, we have not heard...

We shall have two good reporters early on the ground, and without endeavoring to publish long debates or dry details, we hope to present the spirit of what is doing as early and as lucidly as any of our cotemporaries.

The friends of American Industry and Reciprocal Commerce meet at the Repository of the American Institute in the Park on Thursday next at 7 o'clock.

JAMES B. CHARLES F. MITCHELL, as will be seen by our report of his Trial, was yesterday convicted of Forgery, as charged in the first indictment found against him. We believe there were several other indictments ready if this had failed.

DANIEL F. SLAUGHTER has been nominated for Congress by the Whigs of the Orange District, Virginia. This is most provoking to Messrs. Banks and Smith, the contending Loco-Focos, who resigned their claims in order to submit the question to the People.

MR. BURRITT'S LECTURE before the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen last evening was so bountifully attended that we, being of necessity a few moments too late, could not even get into the lecture-room. (We shall go earlier to the Tabernacle this evening.) We listened for a short time in an outer room, but found it impossible to catch more than the general scope and spirit of his discourse. It was a rapid and lucid history of the science of Astronomy, from its earliest infancy down to the establishment of the Newtonian System.

GREAT FIRE AT ST. JOHN, N. B.—Letters received at Boston from Eastport, Me., as well as the Bangor papers, contain an account of a fire which occurred on Monday the 15th inst. laid near the whole of St. John, N. B. in ashes. It broke out in a sail-loft in the evening and immediately spread with great fury, sweeping away all South Market wharf, the buildings, &c. down to Whitney's wharf, and from Prince William-st. to the water. The splendid new Market House, with several Banks, the Mayor's office and from 25 to 40 (for the number was not accurately counted) vessels lying at the wharves were consumed. The fire was still raging when the mail left, the wind blew very hard through the night and the light of the fire was distinctly seen at Eastport the next morning, as also on Tuesday night. This is the third great fire which has visited St. John within a brief space.

FIRE IN PROVIDENCE.—The Providence, R. I. Journal says that a fire broke out in the room of a boarder in the City Hotel of that city on Sunday morning. The building, except the North part, was entirely destroyed; the furniture was mostly saved, and the boarders in the South part escaped barely with their clothes, losing their books, wardrobes, &c. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defect in the chimney. The loss will probably be about $10,000, for which amount the building was insured.

On Saturday the warehouse occupied by Almy & Tyler and owned by J. K. Angell, was greatly injured in its third story by fire. It was insured for $4,000, which will more than cover the loss.

WRACKS.—The barque Nahant from this city for Boston with 3200 barrels of flour, ashore on George's Island, has bilged and has 10 or 12 feet of water in her. Her cargo is discharging into lighters.

The Boston Transcript says that the brig Constantia, from St. Jago de Cuba for Boston, was totally lost, with her cargo of sugar, molasses and tobacco, on Saturday evening, off Scituate. The C. was insured in Boston for $4000, and the cargo, valued at about $10,000, was principally insured there.

SAD ACCIDENT.—The Baltimore Patriot gives an account of a serious casualty which occurred in that city on Thursday last week. The schooner Arg. Ladd, while going up the Delaware, ran aground, and the Captain ordered the Mate, and two men and a boy, to take out a kedge anchor in the long boat, to enable them to haul her off.

While dropping the anchor, the flue caught the side of the boat, and immediately capsized it. The Captain being thus left alone, all four were drowned, and the vessel was forced to keep her position until Saturday, when she was taken to the city.

DEATH OF MISSIONARIES.—The New-Haven and New-London papers contain accounts of the death of the Rev. Coleby C. Mitchell and his young wife, in the interior of Syria. Mr. Mitchell last fall was a missionary among the Nestorians of Eastern Asia, soon after married Miss Richards, of New-Haven, and embarked with her for Smyrna, at which place he arrived some time in the spring.

In August the youthful pair started from Beyrouth for the interior, and after traveling through that desert country for nearly a month, Mr. Mitchell broke down and died under the fatigues and privations of the journey, after a sickness of only one day, and was buried in the sands by the Bedouins, without shroud or coffin. Mrs. Mitchell was seized by the pains of premature maternity, and survived her husband but a few days; it is a most melancholy case, and the fate of both the sufferers will be mourned by every one who knew them.

Mr. Mitchell was a young man of uncommon worth and fine talents, and has left a mother and sisters, whose bereavement may be imagined but cannot be described. The wife was very young, and is represented as every thing that was lovely in woman—of ardent piety, and of the utmost devotedness to her husband, and to the cause in which they had engaged.

WESTERN NAVIGATION.—Harbor appropriations are badly wanted on the west shore of Lake Michigan. Some people think it difficult and less expensive to transport iron ore, and other commodities, and ship it to the eastern markets, when the lake is calm and the mineral can be put on board the lake boats without peril—than by the river routes. During storms, however, it does not answer well. If the harbors of our territory on the Lake could be made safe by the Government of the U. S. a much larger and safer business could be done with our eastern friends, Milwaukee, Southport and Racine, should all have harbors.

QUALITY OF FUEL.—According to the experiments of Marcus Bull of Philadelphia, the following are the quantities of different kinds of wood required to throw off an equal quantity of heat—Hickory.....1 cord. Pitch Pine...1 1/2 cords. White Oak...4 3/4 " White Pine...9 1/2 " Hard Maple...6 2/3 " Anthracite Coal...4 tons. Soft Maple...7 1/2 " 15 "

TRIAL OF MITCHELL.

COURT OF SESSIONS...FOURTH DAY.

Before the Recorder, Judges Lynch and Neab, and Ald. Leonard and Hatfield.

The arguments of counsel in this case having terminated at 1 o'clock on Monday night, with the summing up of the District Attorney, at the opening of the Court this morning His Honor the Recorder charged the jury on the law and facts of the case. He remarked that such extraneous matter had been introduced by counsel, which he should endeavor to divert it, and to confine it entirely to the naked facts of the case, as given in evidence. The first business of the jury, His Honor said, was to inquire whether the instrument on which the indictment was founded was a forged instrument, and accented, if so, was it passed or forged by the prisoner at the bar? To enable the jury to pass on this subject understandingly, His Honor then viewed and examined the testimony of Messrs. Underhill, Reed and Lane as to the prisoner's identity, and his passing the forged drafts, the testimony of Officer Bowyer as to the prisoner's arrest and purporting confession, and the narrative or diary received from the officer, in which the prisoner stated his commission of forgeries, though not the identical one on which he was tried. His Honor next adverted to the evidence to show that the endorsements to the drafts, as also the filling up, were in the hand-writing of the accused, and left it with the jury to determine whether the identity of the accused and the proofs of his hand-writing were sufficiently clear and conclusive to warrant a conviction of the prisoner's guilt. After recurring to and commenting upon the evidence for the prosecution, and applying it to the case, His Honor turned to that for the defence, and alluded to the arguments advanced, to show, first, a want of sufficient evidence of identity of the prisoner, and secondly, if that identity were sufficiently established, that the accused was laboring under such an aberration of mind as rendered him unaccountable for his conduct. His Honor then proceeded to state and comment upon the testimony regarding the ability to know and the knowledge of the handwriting, and stated that the judgment of the signature of a party must be founded on a receipt of the handwriting of the party acquired by familiarity with it. The negative of an affirmative testimony as to the signature to the drafts and their filling up, with the strong doubts expressed by those who knew his hand-writing best, was fully detailed to the jury, who were to deduce therefrom the fact as to whether the prisoner did forge the drafts, or whether he uttered it knowing it to be forged.

The next evidence for defence, viz. that relating to the prisoner's insanity, was next adverted to. His Honor stated that the insanity of mind contended for in the accused must be fully and satisfactorily established. If the prisoner was destitute of intellect as not to be able to control his own actions, he is not accountable for his conduct. So of partial insanity, or lunacy coming suddenly upon the mind, or assailing it periodically, and disabling the person to act understandingly, the absence of accountability is the same. The question for the jury to determine was, whether the prisoner was in such a state of insanity as to be incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong—was the mind in such a situation as to enable him to concoct and form plans, and was it competent to judge of the consequences of these plans?

His Honor then remarked upon the mind and the will, and said where there was no will there was no crime. He also spoke of the motive that might be supposed to lead to the prisoner's insanity, and for the jury to inquire whether the motive (viz. the non-receipt of $200 from Mr. Weedy) was a sufficient motive to produce insanity in the prisoner, and if the jury believed him unconscious of the fact, he was not answerable to the law for his conduct. His Honor then reviewed the testimony of the mother and sister of the accused, as also of Mr. Naylor, Mr. Coleman, Mr. Underhill, &c., from the whole of which the jury might be able to arrive at a correct conclusion as to the prisoner's insanity, which might also be inferred from the acts he had committed. The testimony of Mr. Bowyer, with the contradiction of it in part by the witnesses and the sustenance of his character for veracity, by highly respectable witnesses, were stated and animadverted upon for and against him. After a statement on the evidence of sanity (often evinced by persons positively insane), in their legal intervals to such a degree as to deceive the most discerning, and after some appropriate remarks to show the allowance proper to be made in relation to the confession by persons situated as the prisoner was, and under the influence of a doctor, and after charging the jury that every reasonable doubt the jury must entertain in relation to the guilt of the accused was the property of the prisoner, His Honor left the case in the hands of the jury, who retired to their chambers a few minutes past 1 o'clock, and after an absence of two hours and a quarter, returned into Court with a verdict of Guilty, one of the jurors recommending the prisoner to mercy. Mr. Graham then gave notice of his intention to carry up the case on a bill of exceptions, and the Court granted him until the first day of the next term to prepare them.

It is convenient to those who have shaving-creams, or to those who are shaved by others, but this cream will. It has been tried by a great number of gentlemen, who declare in entirely unqualified terms that it is the best shaving-cream ever used. Wholesale druggists, 74 Maiden-lane.
