News from Washington.

The proposition lately made for the establishment of an Annual American Fair here has been received with great favor. Liberal subscriptions have already been made, and an organization will soon be formed.

The Secretary of the Treasury leaves shortly on a visit to Senator Pearce on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Assistant Secretary Hodne returned yesterday from Boston and resumed the duties of his office.

The Massachusetts Conditionals. Boston, Wednesday, May 28. One hundred and seventy members of the late Senate and House of Representatives of Massachusetts have published an address to the people, exposing and denouncing the bargain of the Democrats and Freeters for the election of Governor, U. S. Senator, &c.

The Address says: "We think it due to the far fame of our State, that such transactions should not go forth into the world, and be superintended by the usual principles and conduct of those who are trusted by the people of Massachusetts."

Death of Mrs. Preble. PORTLAND, Wednesday, May 28. Mrs. Preble, widow of Com. Edw. Preble, died in this city last evening, aged 81. Few women have done so much in unostentatious benevolence as she did, and her death will be held in respect by those who knew her best.

Large unoccupied house building between Union and Edgely wharves, fell into the dock last night, and is a heap of ruins.

Sale of the "House" Line of Telegraph. BOSTON, Wednesday, May 28. The "House" Telegraph Line between New York and Boston, was sold to-day at auction, for $20,400. A. M. Packard is the purchaser, it is said as agent for Mr. Downing.

The Trial in the Case of Shadrach's Rescue. BOSTON, Thursday, May 28. The trial of James Scott, colored, for aiding in the rescue of Shadrach, the fugitive slave, was resumed this forenoon before Judge Sprague.

The observation in my last that no respectable lawyer of this city could be obtained to defend the Government in the Shadrach cases, was fully verified this morning at the opening of the trials.

The Shadrach Rescue Cases—U. S. vs. James Corbridge and the Tribune. BOSTON, Tuesday, May 27. The observation in my last that no respectable lawyer of this city could be obtained to defend the Government in the Shadrach cases, was fully verified this morning at the opening of the trials.

Next came the impaneling of the jury, with a motion on the part of the Government to instruct the jury on the opinions of the Jurors as to the constitutionality of the Fugitive Slave Law, and the Jurors under it. This was strenuously resisted by Mr. Hale on the part of the prisoner as an innovation, a new kind of law, a new sort of jury trial, an attempt to control and restrict the office of the Jury, and to deprive it of its temporary and limited power.

The Jurors were called answered the questions put in a satisfactory manner, and were sworn in and impaneled, being selected by a conventional mode, to be according to custom, but which is certainly open to great objections, though very convenient to the Government, from Boston and Charlestown, except one from Chelsea, who was chosen by a Jury of the District of Massachusetts, but by a Jury of Boston and its suburbs. So far the case proceeded to-day, the Court having adjourned in the middle of the next morning, of which I will give you an account in my next.

The Fall River Strike. To the Editor of the New-York Tribune: In your paper of the 10th I find the manufacturers of Fall River again attempting to prejudice the minds of the friends of labor against that intemperate body of people who are foolish enough to refuse to work for nothing, and presumptuous enough to fancy they have a right to live if they work 13 or 14 hours per day. Perhaps it is hardly fair to suspect Mr. "X" of being an interested party, or acting from the impulse of other than the purest motives. No doubt his only object is to prevent the milk of human kindness, which he fears is too abundant among the tradesmen of York, from being conducted through any improper channels, and thus swallowed up by what he would call the children of idleness, who speak of the subject of dispute—the reduction. "Sometime in November notice was given by most of the Companies that a reduction would take place at a given time, and that the employees of the Company as a third party, and secondly from his not attempting to justify this proceeding on the part of said employers, that it is perfectly unnecessary to have a strike, as he ought to be satisfied with the reduction of cloth without anything to do with wages, (which at best is but a bore,) or, on the other hand, that the mills should stand idle until doomsday. He does not say much even to explain the reasons why the employees of the Company should not be satisfied with the reduction of cloth without anything to do with wages, (which at best is but a bore,) or, on the other hand, that the mills should stand idle until doomsday. He does not say much even to explain the reasons why the employees of the Company should not be satisfied with the reduction of cloth without anything to do with wages, (which at best is but a bore,) or, on the other hand, that the mills should stand idle until doomsday.

weavers have sent their agents over 200 miles of salt water to obtain assistance from the people of New-York in the shape of bread. The workmen of this city are sitting on with contemptuous substantial threats. "X" idea of a Committee of Examination is hardly original, as in the infancy of the strike we expressed our willingness to leave the matter to the decision of a meeting of the most intelligent and respected citizens of the town, and our officers were treated with contumely and disdain.

Again in what doleful accents he speaks of the folly of the people, to use his own phrase, in not coming their labor into market for the last six or six months, and that he would have been content to have received the $150,000. But "X" at the same time says that he could have coined 200,000 dollars, and perhaps your grief is occasioned principally by the fact that while coming 150,000 dollars for themselves, they would have received the same amount in addition to the profits which could have been previously to the reduction. But who are to blame for this, and who are the parties on strike? Not the operatives? They have sought to change. As one of the Delegates lately elected to the National Congress, the operatives were the conservative party in this instance as they wanted to preserve the old order of things at least until such time as the changes of trade demanded an alteration. While the employers on the contrary, were the radical party, anxious to effect a revolution without even deigning to assign a reason for it. Before closing, allow me to say that if "X" be as desirous of doing good as he would appear, he ought to have offered to employ those who are paying less than the rate which those of Fall River receive in the next place instead of charging those directing the movements of the people with dishonesty, he should have them arrested, prove his charges, and then offer to employ them on the same terms as the Fall River operatives.

LABOR REFORM. A Disgraceful Evil. To the Editor of the Tribune: Allow me to direct your attention to an aspect of the labor question, which, though not before the public eye, is one of the most serious evils which afflict our race. It is the habit of the people to look upon the movements of the people with dishonesty, he should have them arrested, prove his charges, and then offer to employ them on the same terms as the Fall River operatives.
