A soldier's letter from the Ninth Corps, Army of the Potomac, informs us that the tide of Rebel deserters still flows steadily northward.

The Rebel Gen. Price would seem still to be alive, as The Spectator (La.) News of Feb. 10, contains a note from him, defending himself against an attack by ex-Gov. Reynolds of Missouri.

Two Rebel steamers recently arrived at the mouth of the Red River with prisoners for exchange, and others are said to be on the way.

The War Department has received information that the Rebels in Canada are contemplating a raid on Rochester and Oswego.

An immediate movement on Mobile is anticipated, Gen. Canby having been expected to leave New-Orleans on the 23d ult.

On account of pressing official business the visit of Gov. Curtin of Pennsylvania to Charleston has been postponed.

SHERIDAN: Phil Sheridan again in the saddle! That Early should be again defeated follows as matter of course.

It is equally plain that Sheridan's task does not end at Charlottesville. The capture of that place destroys the northern line of railway communication between Richmond and Lynchburg.

But the fall of Charlottesville—or the defeat of the army in the field which was charged with its protection; it matters little which—means more than this.

But no matter for speculation. Loyal hearts will hear with exultation thatashing Phil Sheridan is once more at work, and will trust buoyantly to him and his gallant troopers.

THE INAUGURAL.

President Lincoln's first inauguration took place on one of the brightest Spring days ever vouchsafed to the genial climate of Washington.

We print the President's first Inaugural as well as his second. Their points of difference indicate the broad expanse which the Nation has tracked with bloody feet within the last four eventful, memorable years.

tion—so dark and angry in its morning—so halycon and radiant in its evening!

THE LATE CONGRESS.

A rather slow evangelist once preached to a slim Western audience a sermon which, if it had not dealt with the most momentous possible theme, might have been pronounced dull.

We are reminded of this anecdote by the fact that the end of the late Congress was better than some portion of its previous career had given reason to expect.

What is called the "Miscellaneous" appropriation bill failed—which we mourn not as those without hope. It contained many proper and necessary with some questionable provisions.

As to the quarrel about "Arbitrary Arrests," which caused the failure of the bill aforesaid, we cannot help thinking that Mr. Winter Davis and the House majority went too far.

We have said that the Appropriations were less prodigal than we had feared they would be; we must add that they were still larger than they should have been.

Usually, the House checks the tendency to extravagance rampant in the Senate; now, the Senate checks the prodigality of the House.

We rejoice that the House, by a decided vote, has ordered a division of the duties hitherto assigned to its most important Committee; the scrutiny of Appropriations being henceforth separated from the provision of Ways and Means.

MEXICO.

The reports about the cession of Sonora to France remained as conflicting as ever. The San Francisco Democrat, which is supposed to be Dr. Gwin's organ, denies emphatically that Napoleon has withdrawn from the colonization scheme.

French Government persist in representing the whole report as a mere invention. A late dispatch from Paris states that the question of the cession of Sonora to France was discussed in the Council of State.

Some new information upon this subject is given in a late number of the Memorial Diplomatique, a journal which is often well informed in regard to important negotiations in diplomatic circles.

The only thing that can be probable in the recent rumors of territorial cessions made by Mexico to France is the probably speedy realization of a plan of colonization of the State of Sonora.

We think it very probable that the account of the Memorial Diplomatique is substantially correct. Such a plan would naturally commend itself to both Maximilian and Louis Napoleon.
