

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

THE P. E. DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

CLOSURE OF THE SESSION—BISHOP POTTER'S SUGGESTIONS.

The session of the 80th annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church was opened yesterday with services, the Rev. Dr. Duncan of St. John's Church, at Matteawan, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Capron of Middletown, the Rev. Mr. Ambrose of Nova Scotia, the Rev. Mr. Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State, Judge Jarratt of Cold Spring, Gen. Merrill of Tarrytown, and the Hon. Charles Tracy, The Rt. Rev. Dr. Kerfoot, Bishop of Pittsburgh, was invited to a seat on the right of the Chairman. The Secretary read the report of the Committee on the Incorporation of Churches. The question of the admission of the Society of Mary to the Convention was the cause of much discussion, and was finally referred back to the Convention.

WORTHY BUILDING ENTERPRISES.

AN ELABORATE HOME FOR THE AGED.

The Baptist Home for the Aged, situated on the south side of Sixty-eighth-st., near Fourth-ave., opposite the new Normal College, was begun two years ago, under the direction of the Ladies' Home Society of the Baptist Church of the City of New-York, and is now nearly finished. The building has a frontage of 125 feet on Sixty-eighth-st., and will, when completed, extend to Sixty-seventh-st., although for the present it will have a depth of only 50 feet. It is five stories high, with a basement and under-cellar, and is surmounted by a fire-proof Mansard roof, with terra-cotta and iron cresting and finials. The walls are of the basement is constructed of brownstone, relieved by belts of cut and rubbed blue stone, while that of the superstructure is Philadelphia brick, with Nova-Scotia stone trimmings, and belt and sill courses. There are three projections from the main face of the building, which add much to its appearance. The main entrance will be a double platform stoop, surrounded by a heavy stone balustrade, and there will also be two entrances in the basement. The style of architecture is semi-Gothic; and, though the trustees have avoided any considerations of the kind which would result in a display, the building, it is said, will be a model of the kind. The principal story has a large parlor and reception room, and 13 rooms for inmates. The parlor is arranged as to be used as a chapel when necessary. On each of the four upper stories are 20 rooms for inmates, four of them being double. Every story is provided with a bath-room, water closet, and a kitchen proper, dining-room, matron's room, servants' apartments, etc. The building is divided by interior walls into a basement with a roofed sky-light, and a ventilated space, so as to give a constant supply of fresh air to each room by means of a fan system. The principal story is provided with a roofed sky-light, and a ventilated space, so as to give a constant supply of fresh air to each room by means of a fan system. The principal story is provided with a roofed sky-light, and a ventilated space, so as to give a constant supply of fresh air to each room by means of a fan system.

A JEWISH TEMPLE REMODELED.

The Temple Adas Jeshurun in Thirty-ninth-st., between Seventh and Eighth-aves., was erected about seven years ago, and at that time the building is said to have compared favorably with the other synagogues of the city. But the needs of the congregation, and the advance since made by Jewish citizens in the erection of places of worship, have induced the society to improve the building. It was at first proposed to sell the structure and on some other site to build a handsome and more commodious temple. But on looking into the matter, the society concluded that the proper place for worship for some years to come, at least—must be in the present neighborhood. The temple was formerly entered through three central doors, after ascending three or four stone steps, from which point the auditorium was reached by two flights of rather narrow stairs, leading from the center of the main floor. The interior was somewhat dark and uninviting. An iron portico has since been erected, covering a flight of seven stone steps, from which a wide walk leads to the temple proper, giving a commodious and comfortable appearance. The main floor is now on the level of the street, and the old stairs are to be removed. The temple is to be remodeled in every particular. The old windows are to be replaced by new ones made of iron and glass, and the interior is to be redecorated. A great many minor improvements are to be made. The entire building has been repainted, and the interior elaborately decorated. The cost of the whole improvement has been $15,000. The architects were D. & J. Jardine.

NOTABLE IMPROVEMENT IN YONKERS.

The Board of Commissioners, appointed a few weeks ago by the Supreme Court, to lay out Bronx and Westchester, and Kimball-aves., in the town of Yonkers, held a meeting on Tuesday evening to make assessments and awards. The Commission consists of Robert P. Getty, Thomas T. Morris, and N. H. Ellis. They have been diligently at work examining the ground of the proposed avenues, and hope to conclude their labors so as to report to the Court at the November term, and if possible at the October term. All these thoroughfares, with the exception of Bronx River-ave., are short connections between roads or avenues, and are designed to facilitate the interchange between prominent points, and to furnish new roads with easy access to depots on the Harlem Railroad. Mr. McLane-ave. is to be an extension of Highland-ave. It will start from a point near the intersection of the latter with Central-ave., and run in a southerly direction to the Bronx River road, skirting the property of Geo. McLane, and crossing the Tuckahoe River. It will be a little more than a mile in length. Bronx River-ave. will run in nearly a straight line north and south along the western bank of the river, and will connect Mr. McLane-ave. with Midland-ave. It will be nearly 2 miles long, and the town of Kinesbride will probably continue it to Woodlawn Cemetery. This is the original design, but the division of the old town of Yonkers into two towns, will probably result in the extension of the latter to Central-ave., a short distance north of Yonkers-ave., and will run thence in a westerly direction to the Tuckahoe River. Kimball-ave. is the shortest of the proposed new streets, but it will save a great distance in travel. It will start at the junction of two country roads, north of Mr. McLane's farm, and run in a southerly direction, intersecting Yonkers-ave., less than half a mile west of the bridge over the Bronx River. At West Yonkers, the proposed avenues are all to be laid out at the expense of the property to be benefited. The work will be done by the city, and the design is to facilitate the interchange between prominent points, and to furnish new roads with easy access to depots on the Harlem Railroad.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

The books for the payment of taxes on personal property will be opened tomorrow. Sophia C. Pfalzgraf has begun an action in the Supreme Court against C. F. August Pfalzgraf for the divorce on the ground of adultery. The interest on city and county bonds, due Nov. 1, will be paid by the Chamberlain on that day, and the transfer books will be closed tomorrow. Charles Fox, Son & Co. have instituted proceedings in the Supreme Court against J. Z. Coblenz & Co., to recover a debt of $24,500, with interest from Aug. 2. An attachment has been issued against defendants' property pending the issue. In the case of Washington E. Connor against Christopher H. Fast, in the Supreme Court, for an indebtedness upon a balance of account between them, amounting to $1,000, a writ of habeas corpus was granted, yesterday, and a writ of certiorari was granted, yesterday, to set aside the writ of habeas corpus.

THE LONG ISLAND CITY IMPROVEMENTS.

Geo. H. Hunter, President of the Common Council, and Acting Mayor during the impeachment proceedings against the Mayor, took the oath of office, on Tuesday. It is understood that new appointments will be made in all the Commissions by the Acting Mayor, though his right to make any removals is questioned by the sickness or disability of the Mayor, the President of the Common Council shall act as Mayor, but cannot sign any bills for some days after the beginning of his sickness or disability. Many believe that this provision will be of equal force to the Mayor, and that the Acting Mayor will be able to make any removals. The Mayor and City Judge were elected to their offices at the charter election held in the Spring of 1872—the former for three years, and the latter for one year. The Commissioner of Public Works is an appointee of the Mayor, and holds office during the latter's pleasure.

"THE LAY OF THE LABORER."

It was a long time ago, when the city was a town, and the people were poor, and the Mayor was a man of the people, and the people were the Mayor's friends, and the Mayor was the people's friend. It was a long time ago, when the city was a town, and the people were poor, and the Mayor was a man of the people, and the people were the Mayor's friends, and the Mayor was the people's friend. It was a long time ago, when the city was a town, and the people were poor, and the Mayor was a man of the people, and the people were the Mayor's friends, and the Mayor was the people's friend.

THE DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATIONS.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn Common Council, held on Sept. 9, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted: Whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the citizens of Brooklyn should know that the public funds of the city are being faithfully disbursed, and securely invested; therefore, Resolved, That the Finance Committee of the Board of the City of New-York, and the Board of the City of New-York, be and they are hereby authorized and instructed, at whatever cost necessary, to employ competent accountants to audit and report on the books and accounts of the various officers of the City of New-York, and of the Board of City Works, and former Street Commissioners, under the charge of the Controller; to investigate the condition of the various financial institutions in which the public funds of the City of New-York are deposited, and to report thereon to the Board of the City of New-York, and to the Common Council, as soon as possible; and the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated from the public account toward defraying the expenses of said examination.

ORGANIZATION OF THE EXAMINING COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn Common Council, held on Sept. 9, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted: Whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the citizens of Brooklyn should know that the public funds of the city are being faithfully disbursed, and securely invested; therefore, Resolved, That the Finance Committee of the Board of the City of New-York, and the Board of the City of New-York, be and they are hereby authorized and instructed, at whatever cost necessary, to employ competent accountants to audit and report on the books and accounts of the various officers of the City of New-York, and of the Board of City Works, and former Street Commissioners, under the charge of the Controller; to investigate the condition of the various financial institutions in which the public funds of the City of New-York are deposited, and to report thereon to the Board of the City of New-York, and to the Common Council, as soon as possible; and the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated from the public account toward defraying the expenses of said examination.

THE SUPERVISORS INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn Common Council, held on Sept. 9, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted: Whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the citizens of Brooklyn should know that the public funds of the city are being faithfully disbursed, and securely invested; therefore, Resolved, That the Finance Committee of the Board of the City of New-York, and the Board of the City of New-York, be and they are hereby authorized and instructed, at whatever cost necessary, to employ competent accountants to audit and report on the books and accounts of the various officers of the City of New-York, and of the Board of City Works, and former Street Commissioners, under the charge of the Controller; to investigate the condition of the various financial institutions in which the public funds of the City of New-York are deposited, and to report thereon to the Board of the City of New-York, and to the Common Council, as soon as possible; and the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated from the public account toward defraying the expenses of said examination.

THE SUPERVISORS INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn Common Council, held on Sept. 9, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted: Whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the citizens of Brooklyn should know that the public funds of the city are being faithfully disbursed, and securely invested; therefore, Resolved, That the Finance Committee of the Board of the City of New-York, and the Board of the City of New-York, be and they are hereby authorized and instructed, at whatever cost necessary, to employ competent accountants to audit and report on the books and accounts of the various officers of the City of New-York, and of the Board of City Works, and former Street Commissioners, under the charge of the Controller; to investigate the condition of the various financial institutions in which the public funds of the City of New-York are deposited, and to report thereon to the Board of the City of New-York, and to the Common Council, as soon as possible; and the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated from the public account toward defraying the expenses of said examination.

BROOKLYN JUSTICE.

EFFORTS TO JUSTIFY SPRAGUE.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

BROOKLYN JUSTICE.

EFFORTS TO JUSTIFY SPRAGUE.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

BROOKLYN JUSTICE.

EFFORTS TO JUSTIFY SPRAGUE.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City.

THE TRUST COMPANY, NOT THE CITY, AND BORROWED—THE GRAND JURY AT LARGE.

Mr. Sprague's attorneys, ex-Judge Edwin Moore and D. P. Barnard, are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received the money which he invested in different enterprises from the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he did not take it from the City. The District-Attorney and the public are making every possible effort to lead the District-Attorney and the public to believe that their client received